Britain's Churchill Era Ends

Ike, Senators Laud 'Winnie,' Wish Him Luck

Eisenhower Hopes Retirement Will Not End Public Service

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower wished Sir Winston Churchill good luck in retirement today but said "we shall never accept the fact that we are to be denied your counsel."

The President's words expressed the sentiments of many another government official and members of Congress who worked with Churchill through World War II and the first 10 years of the atomic age.

"Sir Winston Churchill is one of the great men of history," Secretary of State Dulles said in a statement.

There also were expressions of praise for Sir Anthony Eden, who inherits Churchill's mantel as Prime Minister.

George Certain Eden Capable

Sen. George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a leading Democrat in Congress, said "I am certain that Anthony Eden is capable and will do a good job."

"I know millions of Americans join me in the hope that Sir Winston Churchill's retirement does not mean the end of his magnificent public service," said Vice President Nixon.

Other comment:

Sen. Kefaver (D-Tenn): leader for good over a longer period of time than any other man in contemporary history. His influence and point of view will be missed at the time he is most needed."

Sen. Butler "Sorry"

Sen. Butler (R-Md): "I am very sorry to see him retire. He is a great man."

Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont): "His resignation is a loss to the free world. I hope it will not mean his retirement from politics, and that he will contribute of his wisdom and advice as he has in the past. Anthony Eden is a worthy successor to him."

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa): "It is rather saddening to see this great statesman bow out. I see no reason to believe our relations will deteriorate. I have every confidence there will be a continued, active, vigorous cooperation."

Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala): "It won't seem the same without him. Churchill is one of the great world leaders of all time."

Red Vessels Hit By Nationalists

TAIEPI, Formosa, April 5 (AP)—The Nationalists today struck by air and sea at Red naval concentrations across Formosa Strait and around the Matsus, where Communist activity reportedly has quickened this week.

The air force and Defense Ministry claimed a total of four small gunboats and six armed motorized junks damaged.

While there have been numerous alarms over the prospects of an imminent Red attack on the offshore islands, U.S. Army Secretary Robert Stevens discounted the reports before leaving Taipei for Hong Kong.

Stevens, who toured Nationalist bases, told newsmen the feeling that war is near is stronger in the United States than on Formosa. He said he did not think war was close at hand but "that's only an impression and I can't document it."

Dulles Says War Or Peace Up To China's Communists

OUT OF TV JOB—No sponsor, no audience, no money—that's the role 8-year-old performer Joey Sheptock is portraying. The Clifton, N. J., youngster, until recently a member of the cast of the Saturday morning kiddie TV show "Star Time," joined the unemployed when the show lost its sponsor. Until he lands another show job, he'll collect $30 week in unemployment checks as an idle dancer and character vocalist. Meanwhile, he's continuing his third grade studies. (AP Wirephoto)

Chicago's Demo Party Chieftain Elected Mayor

Returns from 3,044 of the city's 4,157 precincts, gave Daley 510,731, and 412,004 to Robert E. Merriam.

Daley, 52, chairman of the Cook County (Chicago) Democratic Committee, had solid backing in the normally strong organization wards and ran well in areas his opponent had counted on heavily.

Demo Slate Leading

The Democratic slate including Morris B. Sachs for treasurer and John C. Marcin for city clerk was leading comfortably on the basis of early returns.

Merriam, alderman of the 5th Ward for eight years, was a Democrat until a year ago. He has switched to the Republican side. He has appealed for support by a fusion of Republicans, Independents and Democrats who don't fancy their party's leadership.

Merriam campaigned against what he termed the "corrupt Democratic machine." If the Democrats remain in power, he contended, the city will be "wide open."

Demos In Control 24 Years

Daley rejoined that he wants a safer and cleaner city for his wife and seven children and citizens in general.

Democrats have contolled Chicago for 24 years. Incumbent Mayor Martin H. Kennelly was "dumped" by the Democratic organization. He was defeated by Daley for the party's mayoral nomination in the Feb. 22 primary.

Senators Would Delay Projected Marine Cutback

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Two Senate Democrats told Navy chiefs today that projected cuts in the Marine Corps ought to be called off as long as tension and uncertainty cloud Formosa.

That advice was offered by Sens. Stennis (D-Miss) and Robertson (D-Va) at hearings by a Senate Appropriations subcommittee on the 34-billion-dollar defense budget. Stennis said it should apply, too, to a proposed reduction in Army ground forces.

But Secretary of the Navy Thomas stood fast for the administration defense program and its contemplated cut in Marine Corps numbers—from 224,000 men on July 1, 1954, to 193,000 by June 30, 1956.

Enough To Defend Formosa

"I think that if Formosa is attacked," Thomas testified, "we have enough to protect Formosa."

Yet he conceded that an attack on the Chinese Nationalist stronghold would "portend further operations" and require a "greater mobilization." That appeared to be a way of saying that a war over Formosa, which the United States is committed to defend, might spread into a more general conflict.

Carney Issues Denial

Adm. Robert Carney, chief of naval operations, denied he had predicted the Reds might strike at outlying islands along the Chinese coast around April 15.

He said he had discussed the capabilities of the Red Chinese but did not predict what they would do.

Thomas insisted the Navy's share of the defense budget—$8,918,000 — will produce a strong, flexible, mobile force that can "withstand any initial onslaught," retaliate with weight and precision, and expand quickly if the need arises.

Iranian Premier Zahedi Resigns Due To Ill Health

TEHRAN, Iran, April 5 (AP)—Gen. Fazollah Zahedi, the strong man who destroyed the Mossadegh dictatorship and dramatically restored the exiled Shah to the peacock throne of Iran in 1953, resigned in ill health today.

His successor is likely to be another of the royal court favorites who helped engineer the coup that defeated old Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and set Iran back on the road to cooperation with the Western world.

Tehran newspapers said the Shah had asked Hussein Ala, a court minister popular with the people and members of Parliament, to assume the premiership.

A court informant said Zahedi's health had been bad this winter. His son, Ardesnir Zahedi, said he was going to Europe, possibly Germany, for medical treatment.

Miner Dies In Cave-In

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5 (AP)—At least one person was killed today and two others are missing and believed dead in a cave-in at the Dolomite oal mine of the Woodward Iron Co. Another miner was hurt seriously.

Londoners Stare History In Face Without Knowing It

LONDON, April 5 (AP) — Three thousand persons stared history full in the face outside Buckingham Palace today and many recognized only a tired old man.

They saw Sir Winston Churchill ride up to the palace in a limousine and, after a spell inside, ride away again. He had presented Queen Elizabeth II his resignation as Prime Minister.

But because of London's newspaper strike—now in its 12th day—most of the viewers were utterly in the dark as a page of history flipped over before their eyes.

"Pardon me," said a Scot, Malcolm MacFie, "I've been standing here for two hours and I haven't the foggiest notion what all this is about."

His case appeared typical.

A mounted policeman moved into the crowd on the sidewalk before the palace and looked down on the throng massed around his horse.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

"What are you doing here?" asked a woman who had a baby in her arms.

"I'm here because you're here," said the policeman.

This was about 3:40 p.m.

At 4:22 p. m. the Queen's car swung up before the gates.

"Ah," sighed the crowd.

Eight minutes later, Churchill's car hove into view.

"Who is it, who is it?" was the cry in the crowd.

But it took only a second to recognize the round, pinkish face of the man in the back seat, the big black cigar and those mischievous eyes.

"It's Winston!"

U. S. Still Hopes For Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the United States wants to deal with Red China in a civilized peaceful way in order to avoid war in the highly dangerous Formosa area.

"We have made perfectly clear our desire that there shall be no war, our desire that there shall be a cease-fire," he told a news conference.

"If there is any war it will be entirely due to the provocation and initiative of those (Red Chinese).

"If, in fact they are faithful to what they talk about—peace—then there will be no fighting in the area."

At the same time, Dulles emphasized the United States intends to help defend Nationalist-held Formosa and the Pescadores against Red attack, if it comes.

One Commitment

But, he said, the United States commitment to defend Formosa and the Pescadores is the only one it has in that region. "We have no commitment of any kind, sort or description, expressed or implied," he said, which binds the United States to do anything more.

Dulles' remarks still left the way open, however, for American forces to help defend the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

But the main emphasis of his comments were on the Eisenhower administration's continuing efforts to arrange a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait and avoid any conflict.

Dulles, in answering questions, cited last week's decision to permit 75 Chinese students to return home as an example of America's desire to deal with the Chinese Communists on a civilized, peaceful basis.

Hopes Move Influences Reds

He expressed hope this move would have some influence on Red China's leaders, by showing that the United States does not barter in human lives. The Red Chinese are still holding a number of Americans in prison.

Turning to other world issues, Dulles made these comments:

Big Four — He doubts whether it would be possible to arrange a formal Big Four foreign ministers meeting with Russia as early as June. Such meetings require careful preparation but he and the foreign ministers of England and France may discuss a later meeting with Russia in Paris some time in May when the 15-nation North Atlantic Council meets.

Western Germany — He wants Chancellor Adenauer's government to play an active role in any East-West talks which deal with Germany's future.

McCormick Leaves Most Of Estate In Trust For Charity

In his will, made public today, McCormick also designated three of his executives to direct operations of the Tribune.

Value of the estate was not disclosed.

Named executors of his estate were Chesser M. Campbell; William D. Maxwell, managing editor of the Tribune, and J. Howard Wood, treasurer of the Tribune Co.

Campbell, who was vice president of the Tribune Co., was elected president by company directors shortly after terms of the will were disclosed.

Lofty Atomic Test Rescheduled Today

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 5 (AP)—Atomic scientists changed their mind today and rescheduled for 9 a.m. tomorrow the highest nuclear test made in the United States.

An earlier announcement said there would be no test tomorrow because of unfavorable weather. However, a later re-evaluation apparently indicated improving wind conditions aloft.

The shot, designed to wipe out an enemy air fleet, is to be touched off six miles above the Atomic Energy Commission proving ground at Yucca Flat.

Russia Offers Atom Aid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 5 (AP)—Russia told the U.N. Economic and Social Council today it is ready to help other countries establish experimental centers for the use of atomic power for peaceful purposes.

Chinese Reds Set Up Strong Watchdog Unit

New Purges Likely As Peiping Admits 5-Year Plan Failure

TOKYO, Wednesday, April 6 (AP)—China's Communist high command has set up a powerful watchdog committee over the party, Peiping radio said today, thus threatening new purges.

People's Daily, official party newspaper, laid down the law on the heels of the purge of Kao Kang, boss of the five-year plan; Jao Shu-shih, party leader in East China; and seven minor figures.

Peiping said Kao committed suicide. Washington officials believe he was liquidated. Jao and others possibly are being saved for public trials as leaders crack the whip over the party and people.

People's Daily admitted failures in the initial two years of the first five-year plan.

Emphasis On Heavy Industry

"It probably requires three five-year plans to build a Socialist society," the paper said, "but to build a powerful, highly industrialized Socialist country requires decades of arduous effort, possibly 50 years."

"The emphasis has to be laid on heavy industry," said Peiping, because of the alleged threat of "imperialist aggression." The people were told to tighten their belts in these grim words:

"The people of our whole country must be mobilized. They must put hard and creative work into every kind of job; they must raise output, practice the strictest economy, and work in close cooperation with one another so as to fulfill and overfulfill the first five-year plan."

Kao Blamed Party Orders

And while the party and people struggle to industrialize China, watchdog committees will guard against further Kao-Jao type "conspiracies to seize power in the party and state," Peiping said.

Kao, former boss in Manchuria, took over the first five-year plan in 1953. It broke down. He is said to have told the party its directives were responsible for failures. That may have cost him his life.

Michigan Races Still Undecided; Recounts Likely

DETROIT, April 5 (AP)—Virtually complete unofficial returns tonight showed only two certain winners—one a Democrat and one a Republican—emerging from Michigan's election of eight state officers yesterday. It was the closest spring election in Michigan's history.

Earlier returns today appeared to have given a Democratic-Labor coalition a sweeping victory over Republicans in contests for eight state judicial and education offices. Not since the Roosevelt heyday of 1933 had Democrats showed such power in a spring election, traditionally a walkaway for the GOP.

The CIO Political Action Committee and the CIO United Auto Workers Union campaigned actively for the Democrats.

But with only 135 of the state's 4,783 precincts still out, it appeared that official recounts might be needed to determine the outcome. Republicans elected for sure one of the two Supreme Court justices up for election. Democrats appeared sure of the election of one of two regents for the University of Michigan.

All eight state offices at stake had been filled by Republicans, except one post held by appointment from the Democratic governor.

Democrats held leads in five races and Republicans in three.

U.N. Secretary Hopes For Release Of Fliers

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 5 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold said today he will continue negotiations with Red China for release of 17 American airmen as long as he feels his efforts are useful.

He told a news conference he has not given up hope. He added he had no deadline for halting negotiations but acknowledged he is beginning to feel "a certain impatience."

Soviet Reminded Austria Treaty Big 4 Concern

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—The Western powers reminded Russia tonight that the making of an Austrian peace treaty is the responsibility of all the Big Four governments—not just the Soviets.

In a joint declaration, the United States, Britain and France at the same time publicly welcomed any clarification of Russia's somewhat confusing statements on concluding the pact. It suggested that if steps are shortly to be taken which could actually give Austria full independence they "could appropriately be discussed" by the big power ambassadors and the Austrian government in Vienna.

Russia has been talking since Feb. 8 about possible new and more acceptable terms for finishing the long-stalled Austrian pact and ending occupation of the country by troops of the Soviet Union and the three Western powers. The question of when the troops might be withdrawn has been a critical issue for years.

On April 11 Chancellor Julius Raab and several other high officials in the Austrian government are going to Moscow for diplomatic talks on just what Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and other members of the Bulganin-Khrushchev regime have in mind.

U.S. officials doubt the Russians are prepared to make concessions in their previous position without demanding new concessions which would be equally unacceptable to the Western powers.

However no one in Washington, London or Paris seems to be sure what Molotov is up to and today's statement said in effect that all three capitals hope Raab will find out.

Judge Saves His Voice, Writes Out Court Sentences

PITTSBURGH, April 5 (AP) — Judge Samuel A. Weiss didn't say a word in Allegheny County Criminal Court today as he handed out sentences.

One defendant said:

"I got six months and he didn't even open his mouth!"

The judge has been suffering from a throat ailment. His doctors told him not to use his voice.

Today he appeared with a "magic" writing slate on which he briefly scribbled each sentence. He showed it to the defendant, then flipped a piece of cellophane, erasing the surface, and was ready for the next case.

MacArthur Aide Defends His Chief

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—For the second time in a week, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's aide tonight bitterly denounced a published report that his chief favored concessions to Russia to get her into the war against Japan in 1945.

"No competent evidence whatsoever exists" to support the view that concessions to Russia at the Yalta conference stemmed in part from MacArthur's advice, said Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney.

Whitney's statement replied to an article in the current issue of the Reporter magazine by Louis Morton, chief of the Pacific Section of the Army's Office of Military History.

Morton wrote that MacArthur "stated emphatically at the time of Yalta to more than one visitor that American forces should not invade Japan until three months after the Red army attacked in Manchuria."

Night Club Cancels Lanza's Contract; Failed To Appear

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 5 (AP)—The Hotel New Frontier said today it has canceled Mario Lanza's $100,000 night club engagement because the tenor failed to appear.

At a news conference this afternoon, the hotel management declared Lanza broke his contract, which called for the biggest money ever paid an entertainer here. The singer did not show up at last night's premiere and there was a wave of rumors over the reason.

The confusion mounted today. Dr. J. R. McDaniel, who forbade Lanza's appearance at the last moment last night because of "acute respiratory infection and laryngitis" told a hotel official today that Lanza was physically fit to sing tonight. Lanza reportedly was examined early this morning.

But this afternoon Lanza's agent and other confidants held a meeting, after which they told the hotel that the tenor could not sing tonight. They said he might show up tomorrow or the next day.

The New Frontier bosses declared that they suffered a $20,000 loss because they picked up the tab for last night's gala premiere after Lanza failed to show.

Lanza was scheduled to get the $100,000 for a two-week engagement.

At least one segment of this gambling capital profited from the Lanza no-show. The rumors around town were that bookmakers made a killing on bets that Lanza would not perform.

The management declared none of the bosses had seen Lanza since he arrived last Thursday with a large entourage.

Old Statesman, Still Flashing V Sign, Resigns

'Winnie' Clears Way For Eden To Become Prime Minister Today

LONDON, April 5 (AP)—Under the weight of his 80 years, Sir Winston Churchill stepped down tonight as Britain's Prime Minister — still flashing the champion's V-for-Victory sign.

He thus cleared the way for his political heir, Sir Anthony Eden, to become Prime Minister tomorrow and take up the fight of the nationwide election campaign just ahead.

Churchill's resignation closed quietly a chapter in 20th Century history, in strange contrast to the strife and turmoil that marked much of his 55 years in politics. A strike had silenced London's big newspapers.

Queen Elizabeth II, moved at the retirement of her first minister, broke with normal procedure and held off summoning the 57-year-old Eden to form a new government. It was a sympathetic gesture of a young Queen to an old statesman who first served under her great great - grandmother, Queen Victoria. This was to be his day.

"Good Ole Winnie"

For months Churchill stubbornly resisted pleadings of his wife, doctor and friends to take things easier. Today he gave in, put on his Sunday best with top hat and gold watch chain, and rode from Downing street to Buckingham Palace to tender his resignation.

Shouts of the thousands milling outside—echoing the "Good Ole Winnie" of days of triumph — set his pink-cheeked face beaming. He waved a silent thanks.

Churchill spent 41 minutes in the palace with the Queen and then emerged—still smiling. He slowly climbed into the back seat and sat back puffing a bit cigar in the manner of a man relaxed by the lifting of a weight from his shoulders. The evening sun hung in a pale blue sky.

He rode back slowly to No. 10 Downing St. to pack his bags. Crowds holding vigil outside serenaded him: 'For he's a jolly good fellow."

Churchill Waves To Crowd

By late evening the crowds had grown to massive dimensions and slowly the chant went up "We want Winnie."

Up and down Downing Street, into Whitehall and even in the cloistered courtyards of the Foreign Office it was taken up until it drowned out the noise of traffic.

Then at 8:45 p.m. a window of No. 10 was opened and Churchill leaned out, waving his cigar and beaming.

Tomorrow, the official tributes begin in the House of Commons, with leaders of all parties speaking.

Political life came to a standstill for the moment as the news of

Two States Battle Huge Snowdrifts

SHERIDAN, Wyo., April 5 (AP)—Snowplows bit into drifts as much as 16 feet deep today in a mammoth digout operation after the worst blizzard to hit Wyoming and Montana in many years.

Motorists and bus travelers by the hundreds were stranded in towns and ranch houses. Many country schools were closed. Traffic accidents due to the storm have taken three lives in the two states.

Sheridan, a city of 11,500 not far south of the Montana-Wyoming border, was cut off from plane and bus transportation although trains began running today.

Snow fell continuously for 44 hours, leaving a record 39 inches on the ground by this morning.

Billings, a Southern Montana oil and livestock city of more than 32,000, was pelted by a record 41.9 inches in three days. Havre in the north had 27 inches and Bozeman 24.

Hundreds of automobiles in the two states were abandoned to the storm and were covered by drifts.

Russian Hangs Self

VIENNA, Austria, April 5 (AP)—Vienna police said a Russian carrying a Venezuelan passport hanged himself yesterday in an Austrian hotel in Vienna's Soviet sector.

Police said they were satisfied the man, identified as Boris Grankov, 44, committed suicide and the case was closed as far as they were concerned. They said there was nothing to confirm rumors he was a Russian diplomat and killed himself rather than return to Moscow.

U. S. Still Hopes For Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said today the United States wants to deal with Red China in a civilized peaceful way in order to avoid war in the highly dangerous Formosa area.

"We have made perfectly clear our desire that there shall be no war, our desire that there shall be a cease-fire," he told a news conference.

"If there is any war it will be entirely due to the provocation and initiative of those (Red Chinese).

"If, in fact they are faithful to what they talk about—peace—then there will be no fighting in the area."

At the same time, Dulles emphasized the United States intends to help defend Nationalist-held Formosa and the Pescadores against Red attack, if it comes.

One Commitment

But, he said, the United States commitment to defend Formosa and the Pescadores is the only one it has in that region. "We have no commitment of any kind, sort or description, expressed or implied," he said, which binds the United States to do anything more.

Dulles' remarks still left the way open, however, for American forces to help defend the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

But the main emphasis of his comments were on the Eisenhower administration's continuing efforts to arrange a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait and avoid any conflict.

Dulles, in answering questions, cited last week's decision to permit 75 Chinese students to return home as an example of America's desire to deal with the Chinese Communists on a civilized, peaceful basis.

Hopes Move Influences Reds

He expressed hope this move would have some influence on Red China's leaders, by showing that the United States does not barter in human lives. The Red Chinese are still holding a number of Americans in prison.

Turning to other world issues, Dulles made these comments:

Big Four — He doubts whether it would be possible to arrange a formal Big Four foreign ministers meeting with Russia as early as June. Such meetings require careful preparation but he and the foreign ministers of England and France may discuss a later meeting with Russia in Paris some time in May when the 15-nation North Atlantic Council meets.

Western Germany — He wants Chancellor Adenauer's government to play an active role in any East-West talks which deal with Germany's future.

Chicago's Demo Party Chieftain Elected Mayor

Returns from 3,044 of the city's 4,157 precincts, gave Daley 510,731, and 412,004 to Robert E. Merriam.

Daley, 52, chairman of the Cook County (Chicago) Democratic Committee, had solid backing in the normally strong organization wards and ran well in areas his opponent had counted on heavily.

Demo Slate Leading

The Democratic slate including Morris B. Sachs for treasurer and John C. Marcin for city clerk was leading comfortably on the basis of early returns.

Merriam, alderman of the 5th Ward for eight years, was a Democrat until a year ago. He has switched to the Republican side. He has appealed for support by a fusion of Republicans, Independents and Democrats who don't fancy their party's leadership.

Merriam campaigned against what he termed the "corrupt Democratic machine." If the Democrats remain in power, he contended, the city will be "wide open."

Demos In Control 24 Years

Daley rejoined that he wants a safer and cleaner city for his wife and seven children and citizens in general.

Democrats have contolled Chicago for 24 years. Incumbent Mayor Martin H. Kennelly was "dumped" by the Democratic organization. He was defeated by Daley for the party's mayoral nomination in the Feb. 22 primary.

Senators Would Delay Projected Marine Cutback

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Two Senate Democrats told Navy chiefs today that projected cuts in the Marine Corps ought to be called off as long as tension and uncertainty cloud Formosa.

That advice was offered by Sens. Stennis (D-Miss) and Robertson (D-Va) at hearings by a Senate Appropriations subcommittee on the 34-billion-dollar defense budget. Stennis said it should apply, too, to a proposed reduction in Army ground forces.

But Secretary of the Navy Thomas stood fast for the administration defense program and its contemplated cut in Marine Corps numbers—from 224,000 men on July 1, 1954, to 193,000 by June 30, 1956.

Enough To Defend Formosa

"I think that if Formosa is attacked," Thomas testified, "we have enough to protect Formosa."

Yet he conceded that an attack on the Chinese Nationalist stronghold would "portend further operations" and require a "greater mobilization." That appeared to be a way of saying that a war over Formosa, which the United States is committed to defend, might spread into a more general conflict.

Carney Issues Denial

Adm. Robert Carney, chief of naval operations, denied he had predicted the Reds might strike at outlying islands along the Chinese coast around April 15.

He said he had discussed the capabilities of the Red Chinese but did not predict what they would do.

Thomas insisted the Navy's share of the defense budget—$8,918,000 — will produce a strong, flexible, mobile force that can "withstand any initial onslaught," retaliate with weight and precision, and expand quickly if the need arises.

Iranian Premier Zahedi Resigns Due To Ill Health

TEHRAN, Iran, April 5 (AP)—Gen. Fazollah Zahedi, the strong man who destroyed the Mossadegh dictatorship and dramatically restored the exiled Shah to the peacock throne of Iran in 1953, resigned in ill health today.

His successor is likely to be another of the royal court favorites who helped engineer the coup that defeated old Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and set Iran back on the road to cooperation with the Western world.

Tehran newspapers said the Shah had asked Hussein Ala, a court minister popular with the people and members of Parliament, to assume the premiership.

A court informant said Zahedi's health had been bad this winter. His son, Ardesnir Zahedi, said he was going to Europe, possibly Germany, for medical treatment.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5 (AP)—At least one person was killed today and two others are missing and believed dead in a cave-in at the Dolomite oal mine of the Woodward Iron Co. Another miner was hurt seriously.

Londoners Stare History In Face Without Knowing It

LONDON, April 5 (AP) — Three thousand persons stared history full in the face outside Buckingham Palace today and many recognized only a tired old man.

They saw Sir Winston Churchill ride up to the palace in a limousine and, after a spell inside, ride away again. He had presented Queen Elizabeth II his resignation as Prime Minister.

But because of London's newspaper strike—now in its 12th day—most of the viewers were utterly in the dark as a page of history flipped over before their eyes.

"Pardon me," said a Scot, Malcolm MacFie, "I've been standing here for two hours and I haven't the foggiest notion what all this is about."

His case appeared typical.

A mounted policeman moved into the crowd on the sidewalk before the palace and looked down on the throng massed around his horse.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

"What are you doing here?" asked a woman who had a baby in her arms.

"I'm here because you're here," said the policeman.

This was about 3:40 p.m.

"Ah," sighed the crowd.

Eight minutes later, Churchill's car hove into view.

"Who is it, who is it?" was the cry in the crowd.

But it took only a second to recognize the round, pinkish face of the man in the back seat, the big black cigar and those mischievous eyes.

"It's Winston!"

McCormick Leaves Most Of Estate In Trust For Charity

In his will, made public today, McCormick also designated three of his executives to direct operations of the Tribune.

Value of the estate was not disclosed.

Named executors of his estate were Chesser M. Campbell; William D. Maxwell, managing editor of the Tribune, and J. Howard Wood, treasurer of the Tribune Co.

Campbell, who was vice president of the Tribune Co., was elected president by company directors shortly after terms of the will were disclosed.

Lofty Atomic Test Rescheduled Today

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 5 (AP)—Atomic scientists changed their mind today and rescheduled for 9 a.m. tomorrow the highest nuclear test made in the United States.

An earlier announcement said there would be no test tomorrow because of unfavorable weather. However, a later re-evaluation apparently indicated improving wind conditions aloft.

The shot, designed to wipe out an enemy air fleet, is to be touched off six miles above the Atomic Energy Commission proving ground at Yucca Flat.

Russia Offers Atom Aid

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 5 (AP)—Russia told the U.N. Economic and Social Council today it is ready to help other countries establish experimental centers for the use of atomic power for peaceful purposes.

Chinese Reds Set Up Strong Watchdog Unit

New Purges Likely As Peiping Admits 5-Year Plan Failure

TOKYO, Wednesday, April 6 (AP)—China's Communist high command has set up a powerful watchdog committee over the party, Peiping radio said today, thus threatening new purges.

People's Daily, official party newspaper, laid down the law on the heels of the purge of Kao Kang, boss of the five-year plan; Jao Shu-shih, party leader in East China; and seven minor figures.

Peiping said Kao committed suicide. Washington officials believe he was liquidated. Jao and others possibly are being saved for public trials as leaders crack the whip over the party and people.

People's Daily admitted failures in the initial two years of the first five-year plan.

Emphasis On Heavy Industry

"It probably requires three five-year plans to build a Socialist society," the paper said, "but to build a powerful, highly industrialized Socialist country requires decades of arduous effort, possibly 50 years."

"The emphasis has to be laid on heavy industry," said Peiping, because of the alleged threat of "imperialist aggression." The people were told to tighten their belts in these grim words:

"The people of our whole country must be mobilized. They must put hard and creative work into every kind of job; they must raise output, practice the strictest economy, and work in close cooperation with one another so as to fulfill and overfulfill the first five-year plan."

Kao Blamed Party Orders

And while the party and people struggle to industrialize China, watchdog committees will guard against further Kao-Jao type "conspiracies to seize power in the party and state," Peiping said.

Kao, former boss in Manchuria, took over the first five-year plan in 1953. It broke down. He is said to have told the party its directives were responsible for failures. That may have cost him his life.

Michigan Races Still Undecided; Recounts Likely

DETROIT, April 5 (AP)—Virtually complete unofficial returns tonight showed only two certain winners—one a Democrat and one a Republican—emerging from Michigan's election of eight state officers yesterday. It was the closest spring election in Michigan's history.

Earlier returns today appeared to have given a Democratic-Labor coalition a sweeping victory over Republicans in contests for eight state judicial and education offices. Not since the Roosevelt heyday of 1933 had Democrats showed such power in a spring election, traditionally a walkaway for the GOP.

The CIO Political Action Committee and the CIO United Auto Workers Union campaigned actively for the Democrats.

But with only 135 of the state's 4,783 precincts still out, it appeared that official recounts might be needed to determine the outcome. Republicans elected for sure one of the two Supreme Court justices up for election. Democrats appeared sure of the election of one of two regents for the University of Michigan.

All eight state offices at stake had been filled by Republicans, except one post held by appointment from the Democratic governor.

Democrats held leads in five races and Republicans in three.

U.N. Secretary Hopes For Release Of Fliers

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 5 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold said today he will continue negotiations with Red China for release of 17 American airmen as long as he feels his efforts are useful.

He told a news conference he has not given up hope. He added he had no deadline for halting negotiations but acknowledged he is beginning to feel "a certain impatience."

Soviet Reminded Austria Treaty Big 4 Concern

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—The Western powers reminded Russia tonight that the making of an Austrian peace treaty is the responsibility of all the Big Four governments—not just the Soviets.

In a joint declaration, the United States, Britain and France at the same time publicly welcomed any clarification of Russia's somewhat confusing statements on concluding the pact. It suggested that if steps are shortly to be taken which could actually give Austria full independence they "could appropriately be discussed" by the big power ambassadors and the Austrian government in Vienna.

Russia has been talking since Feb. 8 about possible new and more acceptable terms for finishing the long-stalled Austrian pact and ending occupation of the country by troops of the Soviet Union and the three Western powers. The question of when the troops might be withdrawn has been a critical issue for years.

On April 11 Chancellor Julius Raab and several other high officials in the Austrian government are going to Moscow for diplomatic talks on just what Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and other members of the Bulganin-Khrushchev regime have in mind.

U.S. officials doubt the Russians are prepared to make concessions in their previous position without demanding new concessions which would be equally unacceptable to the Western powers.

However no one in Washington, London or Paris seems to be sure what Molotov is up to and today's statement said in effect that all three capitals hope Raab will find out.

Judge Saves His Voice, Writes Out Court Sentences

PITTSBURGH, April 5 (AP) — Judge Samuel A. Weiss didn't say a word in Allegheny County Criminal Court today as he handed out sentences.

One defendant said:

"I got six months and he didn't even open his mouth!"

The judge has been suffering from a throat ailment. His doctors told him not to use his voice.

Today he appeared with a "magic" writing slate on which he briefly scribbled each sentence. He showed it to the defendant, then flipped a piece of cellophane, erasing the surface, and was ready for the next case.

MacArthur Aide Defends His Chief

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—For the second time in a week, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's aide tonight bitterly denounced a published report that his chief favored concessions to Russia to get her into the war against Japan in 1945.

"No competent evidence whatsoever exists" to support the view that concessions to Russia at the Yalta conference stemmed in part from MacArthur's advice, said Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney.

Whitney's statement replied to an article in the current issue of the Reporter magazine by Louis Morton, chief of the Pacific Section of the Army's Office of Military History.

Morton wrote that MacArthur "stated emphatically at the time of Yalta to more than one visitor that American forces should not invade Japan until three months after the Red army attacked in Manchuria."

Night Club Cancels Lanza's Contract; Failed To Appear

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 5 (AP)—The Hotel New Frontier said today it has canceled Mario Lanza's $100,000 night club engagement because the tenor failed to appear.

At a news conference this afternoon, the hotel management declared Lanza broke his contract, which called for the biggest money ever paid an entertainer here. The singer did not show up at last night's premiere and there was a wave of rumors over the reason.

The confusion mounted today. Dr. J. R. McDaniel, who forbade Lanza's appearance at the last moment last night because of "acute respiratory infection and laryngitis" told a hotel official today that Lanza was physically fit to sing tonight. Lanza reportedly was examined early this morning.

But this afternoon Lanza's agent and other confidants held a meeting, after which they told the hotel that the tenor could not sing tonight. They said he might show up tomorrow or the next day.

The New Frontier bosses declared that they suffered a $20,000 loss because they picked up the tab for last night's gala premiere after Lanza failed to show.

Lanza was scheduled to get the $100,000 for a two-week engagement.

At least one segment of this gambling capital profited from the Lanza no-show. The rumors around town were that bookmakers made a killing on bets that Lanza would not perform.

The management declared none of the bosses had seen Lanza since he arrived last Thursday with a large entourage.

Old Statesman, Still Flashing V Sign, Resigns

'Winnie' Clears Way For Eden To Become Prime Minister Today

LONDON, April 5 (AP)—Under the weight of his 80 years, Sir Winston Churchill stepped down tonight as Britain's Prime Minister — still flashing the champion's V-for-Victory sign.

He thus cleared the way for his political heir, Sir Anthony Eden, to become Prime Minister tomorrow and take up the fight of the nationwide election campaign just ahead.

Churchill's resignation closed quietly a chapter in 20th Century history, in strange contrast to the strife and turmoil that marked much of his 55 years in politics. A strike had silenced London's big newspapers.

Queen Elizabeth II, moved at the retirement of her first minister, broke with normal procedure and held off summoning the 57-year-old Eden to form a new government. It was a sympathetic gesture of a young Queen to an old statesman who first served under her great great - grandmother, Queen Victoria. This was to be his day.

"Good Ole Winnie"

For months Churchill stubbornly resisted pleadings of his wife, doctor and friends to take things easier. Today he gave in, put on his Sunday best with top hat and gold watch chain, and rode from Downing street to Buckingham Palace to tender his resignation.

Shouts of the thousands milling outside—echoing the "Good Ole Winnie" of days of triumph — set his pink-cheeked face beaming. He waved a silent thanks.

Churchill spent 41 minutes in the palace with the Queen and then emerged—still smiling. He slowly climbed into the back seat and sat back puffing a bit cigar in the manner of a man relaxed by the lifting of a weight from his shoulders. The evening sun hung in a pale blue sky.

He rode back slowly to No. 10 Downing St. to pack his bags. Crowds holding vigil outside serenaded him: 'For he's a jolly good fellow."

Churchill Waves To Crowd

By late evening the crowds had grown to massive dimensions and slowly the chant went up "We want Winnie."

Up and down Downing Street, into Whitehall and even in the cloistered courtyards of the Foreign Office it was taken up until it drowned out the noise of traffic.

Then at 8:45 p.m. a window of No. 10 was opened and Churchill leaned out, waving his cigar and beaming.

Tomorrow, the official tributes begin in the House of Commons, with leaders of all parties speaking.

Two States Battle Huge Snowdrifts

SHERIDAN, Wyo., April 5 (AP)—Snowplows bit into drifts as much as 16 feet deep today in a mammoth digout operation after the worst blizzard to hit Wyoming and Montana in many years.

Motorists and bus travelers by the hundreds were stranded in towns and ranch houses. Many country schools were closed. Traffic accidents due to the storm have taken three lives in the two states.

Sheridan, a city of 11,500 not far south of the Montana-Wyoming border, was cut off from plane and bus transportation although trains began running today.

Snow fell continuously for 44 hours, leaving a record 39 inches on the ground by this morning.

Billings, a Southern Montana oil and livestock city of more than 32,000, was pelted by a record 41.9 inches in three days. Havre in the north had 27 inches and Bozeman 24.

Hundreds of automobiles in the two states were abandoned to the storm and were covered by drifts.

Russian Hangs Self

VIENNA, Austria, April 5 (AP)—Vienna police said a Russian carrying a Venezuelan passport hanged himself yesterday in an Austrian hotel in Vienna's Soviet sector.

Police said they were satisfied the man, identified as Boris Grankov, 44, committed suicide and the case was closed as far as they were concerned. They said there was nothing to confirm rumors he was a Russian diplomat and killed himself rather than return to Moscow.

Sen. Knowland Spurns Idea Of Formosan Trusteeship

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) said today there has been talk of a United Nations trusteeship for Formosa. He spurned the idea as "appeasement" of the Communists.

The Senate minority leader said a trusteeship would mean disarming half a million Chinese Nationalists and make them feel they were being "liquidated."

Formosans, he said, would view a trusteeship as "nothing more than multiple colonialism."

"What U.N. mouse," Knowland asked, "is going to bell the Nationalist cat?"

The Californian was speaking in general terms and it was not clear from his remarks, made at the weekly luncheon of the Dutch Treat Club, if he knew of a move to set up a Formosa trusteeship.

No nation has formally proposed it, although the British are believed to have given the idea some consideration and the Chinese on both sides are known to view it with disfavor.

Pa. Welcomes Ike, Mamie As Voting Residents Of State

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Pennsylvania formally welcomed President and Mrs. Eisenhower today as voting residents of the state.

Felicitations were recently extended in a resolution adopted by the Pennsylvania Legislature. State Rep. Francis Worley presented it to Eisenhower at the White House today.

Residents of the District of Columbia have no vote. But like other presidents, Eisenhower has been traveling to his home polling place on election day. Since 1948, that's been in New York. Eisenhower lived there while president of Columbia University.

Now the Eisenhowers spend as much time as possible at the country place they've rebuilt on the edge of Gettysburg in Adams County, Pa. They'll make it their permanent home when the President retires.

State Dept. Fired Two Reds In 1954

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—The State Department fired two employes during 1954 on charges they had Communist party affiliations.

A third employe was dropped as a different sort of security risk, its nature not stated.

This information was given to members of the House Appropriations Committee at a closed-door session last month. The testimony was made public today.

Dennis A. Flinn, security director for the State Department, gave the security risk firing figures. He said in response to questions the department has fired a total of 104 employes for sex perversion, 83 of them in the foreign service and 21 in the department proper.

There are 11,282 employes in the department.

W. R. Scott McLeod, the department's security administrator, testified that all the employes have now been fully investigated.

Carney Denies Predicting War Around April 15

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Adm. Robert Carney said today he had never predicted war might break out in the Formosa Straits around April 15.

The chief of naval operations got in his denial when questioned by Sen. Ellender (D-La) at hearings on the defense budget before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Carney talked with a number of reporters March 24. Stories appeared the next day that this country had reason to think the Chinese Communists might strike at the Matsus or Quemoy about April 15. They are islands just off the Chinese mainland still in the hands of the Chinese Nationalists.

President Eisenhower told a news conference last Wednesday that if the Reds were to move in mid-April, it was information he didn't have.

Ellender took note of all this and said it had stirred up considerable excitement in the United States and in other countries. He wanted to know whether Carney had changed his mind. The admiral told him:

"I have not changed my mind because I never made such a statement."

Old Statesman

Churchill's resignation spread. Only 20 members lounged on the green benches of the House of Commons when word reached Parliament. Quickly the lobbies began to bustle as members moved into clusters and whispered. There was a slight melancholy air about the whole building—with even Churchill's Socialist political enemies feeling the impact.

Foreign Secretary Eden, the loyal protege and friend who is inheriting Churchill's mantle, was absent.

The Churchill Cabinet has offered its resignation, in accord with tradition, but Eden is expected to keep the same Conservative party team that has ruled the nation since 1951. Eden is expected to relinquish his old job when he moves up to Prime Minister. Defense Minister Harold Macmillan, likely will be foreign secretary. Macmillan, whose family controls the big Macmillan publishing house, served under President Eisenhower in North Africa.

With the chancellor of the exchequer, Richard A. Butler, as Eden's No. 2 man, the rest of the Churchill government is expected to remain the same.

Churchill himself has no inclination to serve in the Cabinet and reportedly has adjusted himself to a role as elder statesman—making only occasional appearances in the Commons.

He and Lady Churchill are leaving next Tuesday for Sicily, where he intends to relax in the sun and paint in his first vacation in a year and a half.

Cheers, Chidings Taken In Stride By Winnie

LONDON, April 5 (AP) — Winston Spencer Churchill laid down his burden today.

Urged on by his wife, Clementine, and his doctors and prodded by political friend and foe alike, he finally gave in to his 80 years and the exhaustion of two major strokes.

As he drove to Buckingham Palace to deliver up the seals of office, some thoughtful people in the crowds that cheered him must have remembered his 80th birthday speech last Nov. 30.

"I am now nearing the end of my journey," he had said.

Friends said he has of late become increasingly aware of his own failings: Of his increasing deafness, his sudden lapses into sleep and, most of all, of an occasionally faltering memory.

But even as he posed for cameramen on the steps of 10 Downing St. today, it seemed as if he might be having second thoughts.

Pouting from behind a big cigar, he turned back and looked up at the grimy old building that he fought so hard to occupy and now must leave.

Churchill, cheered by the crowds today, has known both cheers and stony silence from the countrymen he has loved and served so long.

In the dark days of Hitler's blitz he was cheered continuously whenever he set foot outside Westminster. But in the equally grim days of World War I people turned their backs on him after the disastrous landings in the Dardanelles.

Churchill took both the cheers and the chidings—and came back for more.

Eden Bows Head As He Sees Churchill Depart

Churchill shuffled out, got into a car and was driven slowly off.

It was Sir Anthony Eden.

Navy Secretary Assails Report

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas today angrily accused a Hoover Commission task force of refusing him a report on military waste while letting a magazine writer have it.

Thomas also described the report as "inaccurate" and said he resented "bitterly" charges that military men are sabotaging unification of the armed services.

He said the report, as quoted in the article, showed only "the horrible examples" of waste and told nothing of progress being made by the armed services in eliminating it.

"They're trying to destroy the administration in the eyes of the public and I think it's shocking—shameful!" Thomas told a School of Politics of the Women's National Republican Club.

The magazine article, entitled "Ridiculous Waste in the Armed Services," was written by W. L. White and appeared in this month's Reader's Digest.

Carney Denies Predicting War Around April 15

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Adm. Robert Carney said today he had never predicted war might break out in the Formosa Straits around April 15.

The chief of naval operations got in his denial when questioned by Sen. Ellender (D-La) at hearings on the defense budget before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Carney talked with a number of reporters March 24. Stories appeared the next day that this country had reason to think the Chinese Communists might strike at the Matsus or Quemoy about April 15. They are islands just off the Chinese mainland still in the hands of the Chinese Nationalists.

President Eisenhower told a news conference last Wednesday that if the Reds were to move in mid-April, it was information he didn't have.

Ellender took note of all this and said it had stirred up considerable excitement in the United States and in other countries. He wanted to know whether Carney had changed his mind. The admiral told him:

"I have not changed my mind because I never made such a statement."

Churchill's resignation spread. Only 20 members lounged on the green benches of the House of Commons when word reached Parliament. Quickly the lobbies began to bustle as members moved into clusters and whispered. There was a slight melancholy air about the whole building—with even Churchill's Socialist political enemies feeling the impact.

Foreign Secretary Eden, the loyal protege and friend who is inheriting Churchill's mantle, was absent.

The Churchill Cabinet has offered its resignation, in accord with tradition, but Eden is expected to keep the same Conservative party team that has ruled the nation since 1951. Eden is expected to relinquish his old job when he moves up to Prime Minister. Defense Minister Harold Macmillan, likely will be foreign secretary. Macmillan, whose family controls the big Macmillan publishing house, served under President Eisenhower in North Africa.

With the chancellor of the exchequer, Richard A. Butler, as Eden's No. 2 man, the rest of the Churchill government is expected to remain the same.

Churchill himself has no inclination to serve in the Cabinet and reportedly has adjusted himself to a role as elder statesman—making only occasional appearances in the Commons.

He and Lady Churchill are leaving next Tuesday for Sicily, where he intends to relax in the sun and paint in his first vacation in a year and a half.

Cheers, Chidings Taken In Stride By Winnie

Urged on by his wife, Clementine, and his doctors and prodded by political friend and foe alike, he finally gave in to his 80 years and the exhaustion of two major strokes.

As he drove to Buckingham Palace to deliver up the seals of office, some thoughtful people in the crowds that cheered him must have remembered his 80th birthday speech last Nov. 30.

"I am now nearing the end of my journey," he had said.

Friends said he has of late become increasingly aware of his own failings: Of his increasing deafness, his sudden lapses into sleep and, most of all, of an occasionally faltering memory.

But even as he posed for cameramen on the steps of 10 Downing St. today, it seemed as if he might be having second thoughts.

Pouting from behind a big cigar, he turned back and looked up at the grimy old building that he fought so hard to occupy and now must leave.

Churchill, cheered by the crowds today, has known both cheers and stony silence from the countrymen he has loved and served so long.

In the dark days of Hitler's blitz he was cheered continuously whenever he set foot outside Westminster. But in the equally grim days of World War I people turned their backs on him after the disastrous landings in the Dardanelles.

Churchill took both the cheers and the chidings—and came back for more.

Navy Secretary Assails Report

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas today angrily accused a Hoover Commission task force of refusing him a report on military waste while letting a magazine writer have it.

Thomas also described the report as "inaccurate" and said he resented "bitterly" charges that military men are sabotaging unification of the armed services.

He said the report, as quoted in the article, showed only "the horrible examples" of waste and told nothing of progress being made by the armed services in eliminating it.

"They're trying to destroy the administration in the eyes of the public and I think it's shocking—shameful!" Thomas told a School of Politics of the Women's National Republican Club.

The magazine article, entitled "Ridiculous Waste in the Armed Services," was written by W. L. White and appeared in this month's Reader's Digest.

The cheerful songs of tree frogs are heard most often during damp weather and before a storm.

Eden Bows Head As He Sees Churchill Depart

Churchill shuffled out, got into a car and was driven slowly off.

It was Sir Anthony Eden.

Hagerty Enjoys Being Press Secretary To Ike; Says "I Never Lied To Reporter"

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP) — Being Irish, James Campbell Hagerty is a scrapper. Being a scrapper, he thoroughly enjoys being press secretary to President Eisenhower.

It's true that on a few occasions newsmen have heard him explode that the job isn't worth the king-size headaches. But they have heard him on more occasions say it is a challenge he loves.

Take this last week for example, and an episode that linked Hagerty's name to one of the biggest stories of the week. He still won't say whether he played a key role in it, but he would be the last to deny that it was one of the times he liked his job.

The nation's front pages were playing big a Washington story that the Chinese Reds might attack Quemoy and the Matsu Islands soon. If they did, it could mean the United States would be drawn into a war in the Far East.

Subsequently, Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, was named in several dispatched as the source of the prediction that an attack might be launched within weeks.

The White House declined comment on the forecast. Then last Monday evening someone sat down to dinner with a group of newsmen and a few hours later there was a rash of stories saying the President didn't believe any attack on Quemoy and the Matsus was imminent.

A bit later there were stories in the New York Post and the New York Daily News, which did not have representatives at the dinner, naming Hagerty as the source.

Hagerty holds two news conferences a day and at the first one after the dinner episode he underwent a barrage of questions from angry reporters who had not been invited to the affair the night before—a dinner, incidentally, which was arranged by newsmen.

"No comment. . .No comment . . .No comment," was Hagerty's repeated reply to demands that he say whether he had given an account of Eisenhower's views. The President later backed up the account publicly.

A "no comment" from many a press secretary might mean just that. But newsmen who know Hagerty well have come to realize you have to analyze that usually noncommittal remark when it comes from Eisenhower's press secretary.

There was the time in 1953, for instance, when Eisenhower met in Bermuda with British Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel. A London colleague of a Washington reporter who knew Hagerty well picked up a hot tip on the conference developments. The London newsman went to Hagerty and asked whether his information was correct.

"You know so-and-so," don't you?" Hagerty asked, naming the London man's Washington colleague.

"Sure I do" said the inquirer.

"Well, you go tell him I said, no comment, and ask him what it means."

After listening carefully to all the subtleties of the exchange with Hagerty, the London man's American colleague told him:

"There's only one answer. Hagerty is telling you that you are right. Go ahead and file your story."

The London newsman did—and he turned out to be absolutely right.

That incident isn't relative with any thought in mind that Hagerty definitely was the source of Eisenhower's views about the Carney forecast. It's related simply to point up that it isn't always good news judgment to take a Hagerty "no comment" at face value.

Sometimes a man who covers Hagerty regularly knows almost beyond a doubt that Hagerty's "no comment" means that what the reporter is asking about is true. The reporters know that because he also knows that if it were not, Hagerty usually would tell him so in so many words.

A Hagerty remark reporters hear frequently is: "I never have lied to a reporter."

Sometimes he won't talk, but he says he would much rather keep mum when he finds it necessary than to give a newsman a bum steer deliberately.

He can and does come up on occasion though with a hair-splitting reply to a question. The answer on those occasions always is literally true but may not tell anywhere near the whole story.

His reply may touch off five minutes of further questioning and if he is pinned down Hagerty may grin and say:

"All right, what did you expect me to say? I work for the President, don't I? I'm not going to let him down and if you think I ever will you're crasy."

Eisenhower once paid Hagerty a compliment by referring to him, without giving the term any particular thought, as a technician. As a former newspaperman, Hagerty is a technician who knows reporters' problems and they are glad a man with that kind of a background is press secretary.

The major innovation under Hagerty at the White House has been to open the President's news conferences to the television and theatre newsreel cameras. That has brought some criticism, but the step seems to have been commended generally in the news business.

The criticism has centered mainly on Hagerty's policy of usually declining to release all the President's remarks for TV and the newsreels. Hagerty decides what will be released. Generally it is most of the conference, and he almost always refuses to explain why he knocks out the sections he does.

He points out that all newsmen still are free to write or talk about any presidential remarks which are not made available on film. "There is no censorship" he declares.

Hagerty, 45, is the son of James A. Hagerty, who until he retired last year was political reporter for New York Times.

The younger Hagerty, a native of Plattsburg, N.Y., also worked on the Times—as Columbia University correspondent while he was going to school and full time starting in 1934.

From 1938 to 1943 he was legislative correspondent for the Times in Albany, N.Y. In 1940 he covered Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee that year. Three years later he became press secretary to Thomas E. Dewey, then governor of New York, and served in that capacity when Dewey campaigned unsuccessfully for the presidency in 1944 and 1948.

When Eisenhower came home from Europe in 1952 to go after the presidency, Hagerty took a leave of absence from Dewey's staff to take part in the campaign. He took over as press secretary after Eisenhower won the nomination.

Radioactive Gold Used To Combat Prostate Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

CHICAGO, April 5 (AP) — Radioactive gold is helping overcome cancer of the prostate gland, perhaps the biggest cancer threat in men, an Iowa physician said this week.

The atoms of gold pursue and catch runaway cancer cells and destroy them with their radioactive rays.

Benefits from this entirely new treatment — discovered accidentally — were described by Dr. Rubin H. Flocks, urologist of the State University of Iowa, to science writers interviewing cancer specialists under auspices of the American Cancer Society.

The gold treatment combined with surgery has been used on 300 men whose cancers were too far advanced for cure by surgery alone.

Thirty-four of the first 100 are alive 2½ to 4 years later with no signs of cancer. Even better results are hoped for from improved techniques used on the more recent 200 cases, Dr. Flocks said.

Cancers often spread from the spot where they started. Runaway cells can travel along lymph channels to lodge elsewhere and start new cancers.

The radioactive gold can chase them down if the cells have not traveled too far or invaded the blood or bones, Dr. Flocks said.

A reddish-purple salt water containing the gold is injected into the cancerous area of the gland. The gold atoms are also carried along lymph channels to overtake many escaping cells. Some of the cancer is also removed surgically when possible.

The gold shoots off X-rays and beta rays, which are electrons, for one week.

The treatment is being used by a team including Dr. Flocks and Drs. H. Dabney Kerr, H. B. Elkins, Titus E. Evans and David Culp.

Dr. Wood Named Hopkins Vice President

BALTIMORE, April 5 (AP)—Dr. W. Barry Wood Jr., as famous as a doctor as he was as an All-America quarterback at Harvard in 1931, today was named vice president both of Johns Hopkins University and Johns Hopkins Hospital.

He presently is professor of medicine and head of the department at Washington University's School of Medicine in St. Louis.

At Hopkins he will be coordinating officer for the three institutions which make up the Johns Hopkins medical center—the hospital, the School of Medicine, and the School of Hygiene and Public Health.

The announcement specified his duties will be more scientific than administrative. His main concern will be to see that those who take care of patients, those who teach medicine and public health and those engaged in medical research all work and plan for the future together.

He also will hold academic rank as professor of microbiology.

Dr. Wood, 45, is a member of the Harvard Board of Overseers and of the Board of Trustees of the Rockfeller Foundation.

He graduated from Harvard in 1932 with highest academic honors, summa cum laude, and with varsity letters in baseball, hockey and tennis. He was captain of the football team.

Bull Sale Set Today

FRONT ROYAL, Va., April 5 (AP)—The fourth annual Field Day and Bull Sale will be staged here tomorrow by the Beef Cattle Research Station at Front Royal.

Forty-five bulls will be sold at public auction. A total of 52 bulls will be shown and graded with seven remaining at the station. The group will include 13 Angus, 17 Herefords and 22 Shorthorns.

The sale is held annually to dispose of bulls that are in excess of the station's needs.

Pilot Presumed Dead As Sabrejet Crashes In Bay

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—An F-86 Sabrejet of the 113th Fighter Wing of the District of Columbia National Guard crashed into Chesapeake Bay this afternoon, apparently killing the pilot.

Andrews Air Force Base said the plane was reported to have gone into a spin at 15,000 feet and crashed one mile offshore from Long Beach, Md., and about seven miles north, northwest of Code's Point at 1:15 p.m.

Dr. Wood Named Hopkins Vice President

BALTIMORE, April 5 (AP)—Dr. W. Barry Wood Jr., as famous as a doctor as he was as an All-America quarterback at Harvard in 1931, today was named vice president both of Johns Hopkins University and Johns Hopkins Hospital.

He presently is professor of medicine and head of the department at Washington University's School of Medicine in St. Louis.

At Hopkins he will be coordinating officer for the three institutions which make up the Johns Hopkins medical center—the hospital, the School of Medicine, and the School of Hygiene and Public Health.

The announcement specified his duties will be more scientific than administrative. His main concern will be to see that those who take care of patients, those who teach medicine and public health and those engaged in medical research all work and plan for the future together.

He also will hold academic rank as professor of microbiology.

Dr. Wood, 45, is a member of the Harvard Board of Overseers and of the Board of Trustees of the Rockfeller Foundation.

He graduated from Harvard in 1932 with highest academic honors, summa cum laude, and with varsity letters in baseball, hockey and tennis. He was captain of the football team.

Anti-Integration Leader To Learn His 'Fate' Today

DOVER, Del., April 5 (AP) — A judge plans to rule tomorrow morning whether Bryant W. Bowles violated the law in his ardent fight against integration of whites and Negroes in the public schools.

The young roofing contractor, head of the National Association for the Advancement of White People, is accused of violating Delaware's school attendance laws and of conspiring with others to violate them.

Common Pleas Judge A. B. Magee, before whom Bowles was tried last week, announced he would deliver his decision tomorrow. Bowles is expected to appeal if he is convicted.

The charges grew out of a controversy over integration last September at Milford, Del., High School.

The Milford Board of Education admitted 11 Negroes to what had been a school for whites only. Some parents kept their children home. Disorders broke out. The school was closed for a week.

The Milford school board resigned. The State board said the Milford integration plan had not been submitted to it in advance, as required by directive.

The State Supreme Court ruled the school was not compelled to accept Negroes until the U.S. Supreme Court issues a formal mandate implementing its decision of last May that separate schools are illegal.

Bowles came to Delaware from his home at Arlington, Va., at the height of dispute and made speeches against integration.

At his trial last week, Bowles contended neither he nor the NAA-WP was responsible for the school boycott or the disorders.

State trooper and detectives testified he had told mass meetings people had a right to keep their children out of school if they felt the youngsters might get hurt. He was quoted as saying if parents kept their children home long enough something would be done about integration.

Bowles argued meetings to protest integration started in Milford as early as Sept. 17 and he did not become active until Sept. 26. Two witnesses said they urged Bowles on Sept. 24 to get into the Milford controversy but he declined until a chapter of the NAA-WP had been formed. This was done on Sept. 26 in a mass meeting at the Harrington, Del., airport.

Three of the four local school board members who resigned said they had not done so because of Bowles. A dozen parents said they did not keep their children home because of anything Bowles said or did.

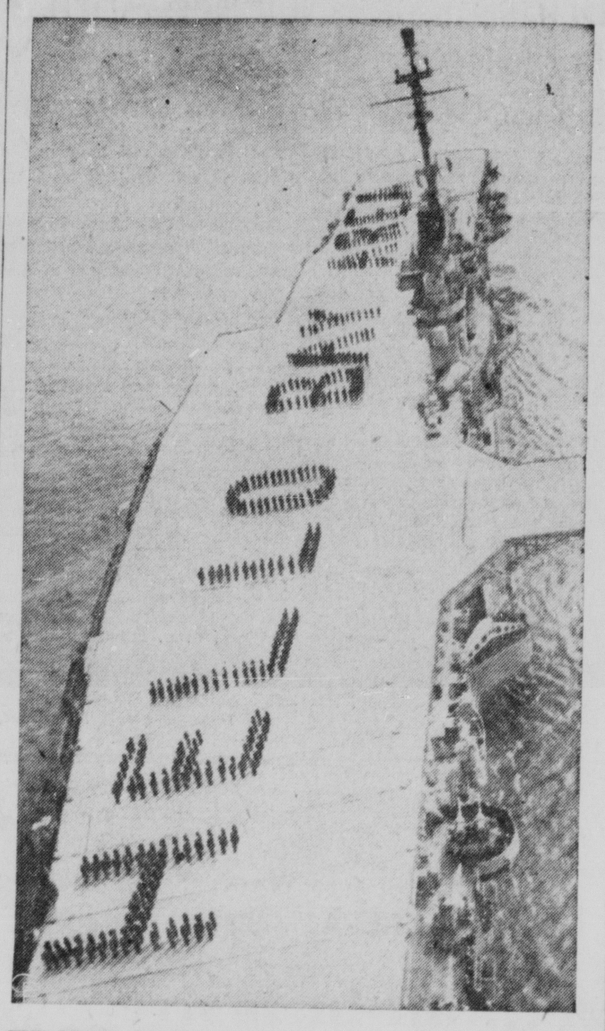
Parents Pick Birthday

BELLEVUE, Neb., April 5 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark not only picked a name for a new daughter, they picked her birthday, too.

Harriet Holly Stark was born on the stroke of midnight which separated Sunday night, April 3 from Monday morning, April 4. The doctor said the parents might properly decide which date would be the baby's birthday.

The Starks picked April 4 because Mrs. Stark's uncle, Byard Dodge of Webster City, Iowa, was born on that date.

The pressure of your teeth may be as much as 150 pounds when you chew.



END OF SEA TESTS — Standing in formation, crewmen of the historic U. The Shangri-La is en route to San Diego after sea tests and 26-month modernization.

Firemen Rescue Trapped Youngsters

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Two youngsters were rescued by a fireman when they were trapped today on the third floor of a burning apartment building.

Eliza Turner, 8, and her nephew, Anderson Jones Jr., 3, are in serious condition in Children's Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

An 18-month-old girl, Peggy Pendergast, was carried from a basement apartment by her mother. The child, already ill, was hospitalized for observation.

Five other children escaped without help.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Thieves Lock Safes Trying To Open Them

HAGERSTOWN, April 5 (AP) — Thieves apparently worked half the night with drill and chisel in an unsuccessful attempt to open two safes at a hardware wholesale house here last night.

Officials of R. D. Kee Inc. said the thieves would have been wasting their time even if they'd been successful.

The safes weren't locked in the first place—apparently the would-be safecrackers locked them in trying to get them open.

There was no money in them anyway.

Two Different Stories Told About How Contract Given Partners Of State Employe

BALTIMORE, April 5 (AP) — Two different stories were related today about how a state contract happened to be awarded to law partners of a State employe.

The State employe is James N. Phillips, full-time $5,000 per year lawyer for the Department of Employment Security.

Phillips is also a member of the Baltimore law firm of Phillips, Sloan and Krause.

The firm which obtained a $13,280 per year contract for waxing the floors of the State agency's office is called the Maryland Waxing Service, Inc. Its officers are listed as Fletcher Krause, John W. Sloan, both law partners of Phillips, and Mrs. Donna W. Griffiths, a former secretary of the law firm.

John M. DeWitt, who lives at the same address as Sloan, is also an officer.

William H. Mahaney, administrative head of the State Department of employment Security, said he knew nothing of Phillips' connection with the waxing firm which was formed last summer.

He said the firm got the contract by submitting a bid which was $10 per month cheaper than the bid submitted by The Abacus Cleaning Service, Inc., which did the work in previous years.

However, Harold E. Seegar, vice president of Abacus, said his firm had not submitted a bid. Seegar said he was informed by letter that the State agency would not "renew our annual contractual arrangement."

Phillips said he only uses the offices his law firm occupies on weekends and that he knew nothing of the formation of the waxing firm other than scraps of conversation he overheard.

He said he did nothing to help get the contract.

Krause said Phillips shares in the waxing firm's profits because he is an officer in the law firm. He added, however, that Phillips did not receive a full one third share because he is not a full one third partner in the law firm.

Krause is treasurer of the waxing firm which has no other contracts other than the one with the State agency.

Mahaney said DeWitt was the only member of the waxing firm ever contacted by the State agency in connection with the waxing service.

Suitland Post Office Complaints Answered

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP) — A Post Office Department official said today use of government-owned property in Suitland, Md., was studied before a new post office was built in Suitland.

The new post office, built under a lease arrangement, is across a street from some 200 acres of government - owned but unoccupied land.

The official said this land was not used for these reasons:

1. No money is available to the department for improvement of federal property.

2. At the time of the study the government-owned land was being considered for possible use by another government department.

Concerning complaints that the new post office has inadequate parking, the officials said it is more important to have the parking lot adjacent to the mail handling facilities rather than have more space across the street.

Anti-Integration Leader To Learn His 'Fate' Today

DOVER, Del., April 5 (AP) — A judge plans to rule tomorrow morning whether Bryant W. Bowles violated the law in his ardent fight against integration of whites and Negroes in the public schools.

The young roofing contractor, head of the National Association for the Advancement of White People, is accused of violating Delaware's school attendance laws and of conspiring with others to violate them.

Common Pleas Judge A. B. Magee, before whom Bowles was tried last week, announced he would deliver his decision tomorrow. Bowles is expected to appeal if he is convicted.

The charges grew out of a controversy over integration last September at Milford, Del., High School.

The Milford Board of Education admitted 11 Negroes to what had been a school for whites only. Some parents kept their children home. Disorders broke out. The school was closed for a week.

The Milford school board resigned. The State board said the Milford integration plan had not been submitted to it in advance, as required by directive.

The State Supreme Court ruled the school was not compelled to accept Negroes until the U.S. Supreme Court issues a formal mandate implementing its decision of last May that separate schools are illegal.

Bowles came to Delaware from his home at Arlington, Va., at the height of dispute and made speeches against integration.

At his trial last week, Bowles contended neither he nor the NAA-WP was responsible for the school boycott or the disorders.

State trooper and detectives testified he had told mass meetings people had a right to keep their children out of school if they felt the youngsters might get hurt. He was quoted as saying if parents kept their children home long enough something would be done about integration.

Bowles argued meetings to protest integration started in Milford as early as Sept. 17 and he did not become active until Sept. 26. Two witnesses said they urged Bowles on Sept. 24 to get into the Milford controversy but he declined until a chapter of the NAA-WP had been formed. This was done on Sept. 26 in a mass meeting at the Harrington, Del., airport.

Three of the four local school board members who resigned said they had not done so because of Bowles. A dozen parents said they did not keep their children home because of anything Bowles said or did.

Parents Pick Birthday

BELLEVUE, Neb., April 5 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark not only picked a name for a new daughter, they picked her birthday, too.

Harriet Holly Stark was born on the stroke of midnight which separated Sunday night, April 3 from Monday morning, April 4. The doctor said the parents might properly decide which date would be the baby's birthday.

The Starks picked April 4 because Mrs. Stark's uncle, Byard Dodge of Webster City, Iowa, was born on that date.

END OF SEA TESTS — Standing in formation, crewmen of the historic U. The Shangri-La is en route to San Diego after sea tests and 26-month modernization.

Firemen Rescue Trapped Youngsters

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—Two youngsters were rescued by a fireman when they were trapped today on the third floor of a burning apartment building.

Eliza Turner, 8, and her nephew, Anderson Jones Jr., 3, are in serious condition in Children's Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

An 18-month-old girl, Peggy Pendergast, was carried from a basement apartment by her mother. The child, already ill, was hospitalized for observation.

Five other children escaped without help.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Thieves Lock Safes Trying To Open Them

HAGERSTOWN, April 5 (AP) — Thieves apparently worked half the night with drill and chisel in an unsuccessful attempt to open two safes at a hardware wholesale house here last night.

Officials of R. D. Kee Inc. said the thieves would have been wasting their time even if they'd been successful.

The safes weren't locked in the first place—apparently the would-be safecrackers locked them in trying to get them open.

There was no money in them anyway.

Two Different Stories Told About How Contract Given Partners Of State Employe

BALTIMORE, April 5 (AP) — Two different stories were related today about how a state contract happened to be awarded to law partners of a State employe.

The State employe is James N. Phillips, full-time $5,000 per year lawyer for the Department of Employment Security.

Phillips is also a member of the Baltimore law firm of Phillips, Sloan and Krause.

The firm which obtained a $13,280 per year contract for waxing the floors of the State agency's office is called the Maryland Waxing Service, Inc. Its officers are listed as Fletcher Krause, John W. Sloan, both law partners of Phillips, and Mrs. Donna W. Griffiths, a former secretary of the law firm.

John M. DeWitt, who lives at the same address as Sloan, is also an officer.

William H. Mahaney, administrative head of the State Department of employment Security, said he knew nothing of Phillips' connection with the waxing firm which was formed last summer.

He said the firm got the contract by submitting a bid which was $10 per month cheaper than the bid submitted by The Abacus Cleaning Service, Inc., which did the work in previous years.

However, Harold E. Seegar, vice president of Abacus, said his firm had not submitted a bid. Seegar said he was informed by letter that the State agency would not "renew our annual contractual arrangement."

Phillips said he only uses the offices his law firm occupies on weekends and that he knew nothing of the formation of the waxing firm other than scraps of conversation he overheard.

He said he did nothing to help get the contract.

Krause said Phillips shares in the waxing firm's profits because he is an officer in the law firm. He added, however, that Phillips did not receive a full one third share because he is not a full one third partner in the law firm.

Krause is treasurer of the waxing firm which has no other contracts other than the one with the State agency.

Mahaney said DeWitt was the only member of the waxing firm ever contacted by the State agency in connection with the waxing service.

Suitland Post Office Complaints Answered

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP) — A Post Office Department official said today use of government-owned property in Suitland, Md., was studied before a new post office was built in Suitland.

The new post office, built under a lease arrangement, is across a street from some 200 acres of government - owned but unoccupied land.

The official said this land was not used for these reasons:

1. No money is available to the department for improvement of federal property.

2. At the time of the study the government-owned land was being considered for possible use by another government department.

Concerning complaints that the new post office has inadequate parking, the officials said it is more important to have the parking lot adjacent to the mail handling facilities rather than have more space across the street.

Great Books Has Review Of Sterne

The "artful artlessness" of Lawrence Sterne's style and the subtlety of his humor were brought out by Mrs. A. J. Mirkin in reviewing his life, his novel "Tristram Shandy" and the Queen Anne period, early 18th Century, in English literature. The review was presented at the meeting of the Great Books Group of the Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Milton Granet, LaVale.

Mrs. Mirkin pointed out that reading had just come into its own. There was a great vogue for reading and there were over 2,000 coffee houses in London, where people gathered to read or be read to; it was the period of Addison, Steele and their "Spectator" newspaper.

Sterne defies rapid reading, she said. In order to be appreciated he must be read at a leisurely rate. The book is one to be picked up and read, not at one time, but a chapter or section at a time. There are nine volumes of the book. She explained that Sterne wrote two a year, beginning when he was 46 years old. Up to that time he was more or less an obscure country parson.

Pointing out that although Sterne was wracked with tuberculosis, he continued to write until his death at 55, Mrs. Mirkin said that he was so lionized in both London and Paris for his "Tristram Shandy," and so well paid for the volumes as they were published, that it made it possible for him to live in Southern France and Italy until his death. However, a man of extravagant tastes, he died a pauper.

Characters who live on in literature such as Uncle Toby, his father, Walter Shandy, Dr. Slop, his mother, Mrs. Shandy, have become well known types in literature, Mrs. Mirkin said, and his style, "Shandyism."

Readings were given by various members of parts of the book which they liked particularly for the wit and subtlety.

Spring flowers were used for the elaborate decorations of the house and refreshment table.

Others attending were Mrs. John Cupler II, Mrs. Faye Hersch, Mrs. William Durland, Mrs. Amer Suter, Mrs. Howard Briggs, Mrs. Harold Reese, Miss Leila Stevens, Mrs. Carolyn Dunlap and Mrs. Max Bastian.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Suter, College Avenue, Frostburg, May 2, when John Locke's "Essay Concerning Human Understanding" will be the topic and Mrs. Granville Shirley will give the review.

Pink and white snapdragons and spring flowers decorated the house. The same color scheme was repeated in the shower cake centering the table, and streamers cascading from a wedding bell in the archway.

Besides the mothers of the couple, other guests were Mrs. John Dougherty, Mrs. William Kelly, Mrs. Francis Kelly, Philadelphia; Mrs. Walter Murray, Mrs. Richard Blake, Mrs. Ursula Dougherty, Miss Nell Kelly, Miss Beurie Dougherty, Miss Mary Kelly, Miss Rosemary Dougherty,

Women's Assoc. Changes Time, Date Of Monthly Meet

The meeting date and time of the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church were changed at the monthly business session, held Monday evening. Mrs. Gaither L. Martin presided.

Meetings have been changed from the first Monday until the first Tuesday of the month, and some will be held in the afternoon and others in the evening. The association will recess during July and August.

Plans also were discussed for holding the annual winter bazaar.

Devotionals were conducted by Mrs. W. A. Britt and Mrs. John Lower gave a group of five readings. They were "The Message of Easter," "The Dogwood Legend," "He Passed this Way," "A Ballad of Trees and Easter," and "Calvary."

A liturgy cantata, "The Message of the Cross," featured the program. In the form of responsive reading by the group, with Mrs. Edward Solomon leader, it was presented in three parts, the message of praise, suffering and Calvary, with the text by Rev. Louis Greene, and music by J. Sheldon Scott. It was interspersed with hymns by the group. Mrs. James Conrad sang, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?" Mrs. S. T. Weatherholt played the piano. Miss Lillian Boughton was in charge of the program.

Concluding the evening a social was held with the members of the Heacox-Diehl Circle as hostesses. Fifty members attended.

The second day will include a tour of the South Branch Valley. In Moorefield, the rose garden and home of Mrs. H. S. Pownall and the home and garden of Mrs. Curtis McCoy will be visited. Continuing, the group will visit the Smokehole, one of the very picturesque spots in West Virginia, which includes Eagle Rock, the South Branch of the Potomac River, Hermit Island, and other scenic points. Stops will be made at scenic spots overlooking Germany Valley and at Seneca Rocks. The second night will be spent at Romney.

May 5 the group will visit Bickle's Knob and Gaudineer Tower, viewing some of nature's gardens, and the Monongahela National Forest. Lunch will be at Watoga State Park, after lunch there will be a drive through the park. The tour will continue to Lewisburg where a visit will be made to the Old Stone Church, the General Lewis Hotel, and the home and garden of Mrs. Randolph Hock. The night will be spent in Lewisburg or White Sulphur Springs, as the tour participant wishes.

On May 6, the group will visit the terrace and garden of the Greenbrier Hotel and will then go via Organ Cave to Bluefield and Bramwell. At Bramwell, the rhododendron garden of E. S. Keesling will be visited. This garden consists of approximately 11 acres of azaleas and rhododendrons.

Anyone who plans to participate in the garden tour should make reservations for hotel accommodations ahead of time. For full information, write to T. D. Gray, Extension Landscape Architect, Oglebay Hall, Morgantown, West Virginia.

The Sodality breakfast will be held in June. Mrs. Newnam was named to arrange the date.

Miss Mary Margaret Daugherty, chairman of the lending library inaugurated last month, explained that all contributions of good literature will be accepted for the library. Any member may secure a book or magazine for reading on a meeting night, and a record will be kept of the literature loaned. The group discussed procuring a book case for the library.

Reports of the bake and rummage sale were given by Mrs. Newnam, with $30 raised on the former and $20 on the latter. Proceeds are added to the society treasury for the projects, which have included $25 each for the church speaking system, Marian Year shrine and Father Hewitt's anniversary and Easter flowers for the church.

Great Books Has Review Of Sterne

The "artful artlessness" of Lawrence Sterne's style and the subtlety of his humor were brought out by Mrs. A. J. Mirkin in reviewing his life, his novel "Tristram Shandy" and the Queen Anne period, early 18th Century, in English literature. The review was presented at the meeting of the Great Books Group of the Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Milton Granet, LaVale.

Mrs. Mirkin pointed out that reading had just come into its own. There was a great vogue for reading and there were over 2,000 coffee houses in London, where people gathered to read or be read to; it was the period of Addison, Steele and their "Spectator" newspaper.

Sterne defies rapid reading, she said. In order to be appreciated he must be read at a leisurely rate. The book is one to be picked up and read, not at one time, but a chapter or section at a time. There are nine volumes of the book. She explained that Sterne wrote two a year, beginning when he was 46 years old. Up to that time he was more or less an obscure country parson.

Pointing out that although Sterne was wracked with tuberculosis, he continued to write until his death at 55, Mrs. Mirkin said that he was so lionized in both London and Paris for his "Tristram Shandy," and so well paid for the volumes as they were published, that it made it possible for him to live in Southern France and Italy until his death. However, a man of extravagant tastes, he died a pauper.

Characters who live on in literature such as Uncle Toby, his father, Walter Shandy, Dr. Slop, his mother, Mrs. Shandy, have become well known types in literature, Mrs. Mirkin said, and his style, "Shandyism."

Readings were given by various members of parts of the book which they liked particularly for the wit and subtlety.

Spring flowers were used for the elaborate decorations of the house and refreshment table.

Others attending were Mrs. John Cupler II, Mrs. Faye Hersch, Mrs. William Durland, Mrs. Amer Suter, Mrs. Howard Briggs, Mrs. Harold Reese, Miss Leila Stevens, Mrs. Carolyn Dunlap and Mrs. Max Bastian.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Suter, College Avenue, Frostburg, May 2, when John Locke's "Essay Concerning Human Understanding" will be the topic and Mrs. Granville Shirley will give the review.

Templar Bible Class of First Presbyterian Church will meet at 8 p. m. April 14, instead of tomorrow.

Fairview Avenue WSCS will meet at 7:30 tonight at the church.

Pink and white snapdragons and spring flowers decorated the house. The same color scheme was repeated in the shower cake centering the table, and streamers cascading from a wedding bell in the archway.

Besides the mothers of the couple, other guests were Mrs. John Dougherty, Mrs. William Kelly, Mrs. Francis Kelly, Philadelphia; Mrs. Walter Murray, Mrs. Richard Blake, Mrs. Ursula Dougherty, Miss Nell Kelly, Miss Beurie Dougherty, Miss Mary Kelly, Miss Rosemary Dougherty, Miss Catherine Dougherty, Miss Irene Dougherty and Miss Mary Margaret Dougherty.

Announcement was made of the state spring conference, April 30 in Baltimore. The regular and associate staff of doctors of the hospital are hosts for the dance.

Women's Assoc. Changes Time, Date Of Monthly Meet

The meeting date and time of the Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church were changed at the monthly business session, held Monday evening. Mrs. Gaither L. Martin presided.

Meetings have been changed from the first Monday until the first Tuesday of the month, and some will be held in the afternoon and others in the evening. The association will recess during July and August.

Plans also were discussed for holding the annual winter bazaar.

Devotionals were conducted by Mrs. W. A. Britt and Mrs. John Lower gave a group of five readings. They were "The Message of Easter," "The Dogwood Legend," "He Passed this Way," "A Ballad of Trees and Easter," and "Calvary."

A liturgy cantata, "The Message of the Cross," featured the program. In the form of responsive reading by the group, with Mrs. Edward Solomon leader, it was presented in three parts, the message of praise, suffering and Calvary, with the text by Rev. Louis Greene, and music by J. Sheldon Scott. It was interspersed with hymns by the group. Mrs. James Conrad sang, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?" Mrs. S. T. Weatherholt played the piano. Miss Lillian Boughton was in charge of the program.

Concluding the evening a social was held with the members of the Heacox-Diehl Circle as hostesses. Fifty members attended.

Opposition To Rose As National Flower Doesn't Daunt Rep. Bolton

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)— It came as no particular surprise to Rep. Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio) when she ran into opposition in her campaign to make the rose our national flower.

After all, she said today, for 100 years there were strenuous objections to making "The Star Spangled Banner" our national anthem. Main objection: The melody is from an old drinking tune.

And the choice of the eagle for the great seal of the United States drew lively protests from Benjamin Franklin.

Franklin preferred a turkey.

But the opposition to identical bills introduced by Mrs. Bolton and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine), to make the rose the national flower, has been outvoted by the rose bloc, Mrs. Bolton said in a statement for the "congressional record." The margin, in her mail at least, is for the rose, 4 to 1.

The objections?

Well, Mrs. B. says many people feel Congress has "more important things to do" than to worry about the rose problems. She concedes this, but adds:

"In these times of international turmoil we are so preoccupied with troubles and failures, crises and frustrations, that we should welcome an occasional diversion of this sort."

Others claim the rose isn't a native of this country. But Mrs. Bolton said fossils have been found in Oregon showing the rose was here six million years ago, which is about as native as you can get.

Still others point out that the rose already is the national flower of England. To this, Mrs. Bolton and 30 million other rose growers in this country pay not the slightest heed.

Mrs. B. says 17 other countries use red, white and blue in their flags, and that doesn't stop us. And at least six countries use the eagle in their coats of arms.

Which fetches us around to Franklin. John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Franklin were named to draw up a great seal of the United States.

The eagle won, but Franklin fought him valiantly.

"I wish that the bald eagle had not been chosen as the representation of our country," Franklin wrote in 1784, two years after its adoption. "He is a bird of bad moral character; He does not get his living honestly . . . He watches the labor of the fishing - hawk, and when that diligent bird has at length taken a fish, and is bearing it to his nest for the support of his mate and young ones, the bald eagle pursues him and takes it from him. . . .

"But, like those among men who live by sharping and robbing, he is generally poor, and often very lousy. Besides he is a rank coward; the little kingbird, not bigger than a sparrow attacks him boldly and drives him out of the district."

In some portrayals, Franklin noted, the bald eagle looks like the turkey, which was fine by him. For the turkey "is, besides (though a little vain and silly, it is true, but not the worse emblem for that,) a bird of courage, and would not hesitate to attack a grenadier of the British Guards, who would presume to invade his farmyard with a red coat on."

Franklin is so convincing, it almost makes you want to throw away your dollar bills with the pictures of that lousy eagle on their backs. Almost, that is.

Surgeons Leave Man With His Brother's Kidney, One Of Own

BOSTON, April 5 (AP)—Up to last Saturday Richard Herrick, 23, of Northboro, Mass., was the only man alive with three kidneys—his own two diseased organs and a third transplanted from his twin, Ronald, that saved his life.

Today he has two kidneys.

Doctors on Saturday removed one of his nonfunctioning organs, leaving him with his brother's and his other diseased kidney which will be removed at a future date.

Richard's life had been despaired of until last Dec. 23 when doctors transplanted, in an unprecedented operation, a kidney from his brother.

Only one of his own diseased kidneys was removed Saturday because doctors did not want to expose him to the shock of removing both impaired organs in one operation.

Richard, said by medical experts to be the only person living with another's kidney in his body, entered Peter Bent Brigham Hospital nonchalantly for his Saturday operation and was just as unconcerned after the surgery.

Brownell Says:

Some Teachers Are Little More Than "Baby Sitters"

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—U. S. Commissioner of Education S. M. Brownell said yesterday teachers in some places are nothing more than "baby sitters."

He said he was much more concerned about America having an "adequate, prepared teacher for each child," by 1959-60 than having a place for the child to sit in school.

Speaking to 75 educators gathered here for a conference of elementary education supervisors, Brownell said:

"We know one of the big problems you face is trying to get along with the baby sitters you have in some places because you can't get adequately trained teachers."

Men and women in the conference room stirred and some smiled at each other when the commissioner said it.

Brownell said he wasn't trying to minimize for one second the classroom shortage problem.

"Sometimes we get so involved in the minutiae of trying to see that they (school children) have a place to sit down, have competent teachers, see that the teachers get good pay, and that we have good textbooks that we don't have a chance to keep our eye on the ball, which is to see that folks are getting the very best we can help them have," he said.

Brownell said he and Mrs. Hobby, secretary of health, education and welfare, had been testifying before congressional committees on the classroom shortage problem.

"If we continue building classrooms at the present rate of 60,000 a year," he said, "we still will be 160,000 classrooms short by 1959-60."

Brownell said other countries, by and large, look to this country and other Western countries for their ideas, he said, but "countries with other ideologies than ours" are bidding for the chance to help these other countries.

"We have, in addition to the problems we have here, I think," he said, "also the responsibility to see how we can be of assistance to those other countries."

Fairchild To Deliver Assault Transports

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 5 (AP)—The first C123 assault transports will be delivered next month to the 18th Air Force's 463rd Trooper Carrier Wing at Ardmore, Okla., the Air Force announced today through Faichild Airplane Corp.

Fairchild is building more than 150 of the huge transports which can haul up to 60 fully-equipped troops or some 24,000 pounds of vehicles and combat supplies.

Powered by two Pratt & Whitney 2,500-horsepower engines, the plane is designed specifically for short-field landings and takeoffs in and out of sub-standard or unimproved frontline fields.

It is the first airplane of its type to be assigned to an Air Force tactical unit, Fairchild said.

The Ardmore wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. Cecil H. Childre, has organized the 16th Troop Carrier Squadron to operate the new planes.

The first two production models of the transport were tested by the Air Research and Development Command last fall.

Brownell Says:

Some Teachers Are Little More Than "Baby Sitters"

WASHINGTON, April 5 (AP)—U. S. Commissioner of Education S. M. Brownell said yesterday teachers in some places are nothing more than "baby sitters."

He said he was much more concerned about America having an "adequate, prepared teacher for each child," by 1959-60 than having a place for the child to sit in school.

Speaking to 75 educators gathered here for a conference of elementary education supervisors, Brownell said:

"We know one of the big problems you face is trying to get along with the baby sitters you have in some places because you can't get adequately trained teachers."

Men and women in the conference room stirred and some smiled at each other when the commissioner said it.

Brownell said he wasn't trying to minimize for one second the classroom shortage problem.

"Sometimes we get so involved in the minutiae of trying to see that they (school children) have a place to sit down, have competent teachers, see that the teachers get good pay, and that we have good textbooks that we don't have a chance to keep our eye on the ball, which is to see that folks are getting the very best we can help them have," he said.

Brownell said he and Mrs. Hobby, secretary of health, education and welfare, had been testifying before congressional committees on the classroom shortage problem.

"If we continue building classrooms at the present rate of 60,000 a year," he said, "we still will be 160,000 classrooms short by 1959-60."

Brownell said other countries, by and large, look to this country and other Western countries for their ideas, he said, but "countries with other ideologies than ours" are bidding for the chance to help these other countries.

"We have, in addition to the problems we have here, I think," he said, "also the responsibility to see how we can be of assistance to those other countries."

Fairchild To Deliver Assault Transports

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 5 (AP)—The first C123 assault transports will be delivered next month to the 18th Air Force's 463rd Trooper Carrier Wing at Ardmore, Okla., the Air Force announced today through Faichild Airplane Corp.

Fairchild is building more than 150 of the huge transports which can haul up to 60 fully-equipped troops or some 24,000 pounds of vehicles and combat supplies.

Powered by two Pratt & Whitney 2,500-horsepower engines, the plane is designed specifically for short-field landings and takeoffs in and out of sub-standard or unimproved frontline fields.

It is the first airplane of its type to be assigned to an Air Force tactical unit, Fairchild said.

The Ardmore wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. Cecil H. Childre, has organized the 16th Troop Carrier Squadron to operate the new planes.

Students Of Government Get Lesson From Source

By ARTHUR EDSON

The school house: Congress.

The class: Students of government at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., plus a few reporters who enrolled for a quickie refresher course.

The first thing all us students learned was, don't pay any attention to the time set for a committee hearing, in this case 10 a.m.

All students were present, but the teachers weren't. They had some good excuses, though, as can be seen from this exchange, at 10:07, between Hebert and Rep. Mendel Rivers (D-SC):

Rivers: "I've been on the job since 6:25."

Hebert: "Well, you're a little late now."

Rivers said he had four conferences and had been in his office before 6:30, honest, he had.

Class was called to order, and the counsel, John Courtney, gave a brief report on what investigations have been completed and what is to come up next.

Then the 14 Wesleyan scholars were introduced, including two exchange students, Jean-Pierre Desbons of the University of Paris and Kai Horby of Copenhagen.

Among the home grown products was Robert Luckie of Norfolk, Va., who drew an incredulous inquiry from Rep. Porter Hardy Jr. (D) of Churchland, Va.

"What," Hardy asked, "are you doing with that Yankee crowd?"

Judging from the questions, the students had been impressed by what they saw on television of that celebrated hearing involving Sen. Joe McCarthy (R-Wis) and the Army. What's all this talk about one-man hearings?

Committee members assured the students that they long had had a rule that any hearing should have both a Republican and Democrat present.

How come, a student wondered, if you're the Armed Services subcommittee, you didn't look into that Ft. Monmouth business instead of letting McCarthy's Investigations Committee do it.

Long explanation of how the Senate goes its way, and the House can't do much about it. Also that there are certain overlapping authorities comparable, Hebert said, to jurisdictional fights among unions.

Of battles fought behind scenes in congress, Hebert said: "If they're not jurisdictional fights, there's strong jurisdictional feeling."

But he said the House and Senate try to get along with each other. When Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) headed a committee similar to this one, Hebert said:

"We never poached on another man's territory."

One difficulty: The teachers, being congressmen, were eager to talk, and they didn't mind finding small points on which to differ with each other. So the air was filled with such comments as:

"Perhaps I can clear this up," or "Let me explain this to you, son."

"There's a little confusion here,"

But the students said they got something from their novel classwork. "It helps us understand the textbooks," Ed Beglin of Elizabeth, N.J., said.

The two foreign students asked no questions, but they said they got a lot of it, too, and grinned amiably at everyone.

Planned Output Of Polio Vaccine Nearly Doubled

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—Nearly twice as much Salk polio vaccine as was originally planned for production—enough to immunize 30 million people—is expected to be available by early summer, an authority said today.

Dr. Hart Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said indications now are that pharmaceutical houses have greatly upped their production volume.

"Unfortunately," he said, "there has been a tendency recently to build up scares about shortages that I don't believe are going to materialize."

With a verdict on effectiveness of the vaccine due April 12, Dr. Van Riper said his best information is that sufficient vaccine to innoculate 30 million people will be ready before June 30.

That's just before the peak polio seasons begins in July, and lasts through August, September and October.

Originally, only enough vaccine to immunize 18 million people was expected to be put in production before the results of tests are announced next week.

Under original plans, the foundation contracted for enough vaccine to immunize nine million, and pharmaceutical houses said they would turn out additional supplies to vaccinate nine million others.

However, Dr. Van Riper said, "We have reason to believe that the supply will be considerable in excess of that."

This indicated the extra amounts already are in process, since it takes at least 90 days to turn out a batch of the vaccine.

There are 61 million Americans under 21—in the age group deemed in the polio danger zone. Most highly susceptibel, however, are children from 5 to 8.

If the April 12 announcement reveals the vaccine works, Dr. Van Riper said that there "might be a day or two" of rush on supplies.

"But the situation will adjust quickly," he said.

He said that judging by past experience, only about 75 per cent of those in the age category deemed susceptible will seek immunizations.

The foundation's vaccine supply will go to immunize all first and second-grade school children, most of whom are 6 or 7 years old.

Others will have to seek immunization through doctors, to whom the vaccine will be sold through drug stores.

Polio Vaccine Priority System Worked Out

DETROIT, April 5 (AP)—A priority system for inoculating children against polio was set up today by the American Academy of Pediatrics for its 4,200 members although the verdict on the Salk vaccine is still a week away

Three top priority groups would receive the vaccine if it is proved successful. These are pre-first grade children over one year of age, school children in grades 3 through 8, and pregnant women.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will inoculate children of the first and second grades.

The academy accepted the fact that the vaccine has not been officially proven yet and said it must be reported successful and licensed by the National Institute of Health first.

Dr. Crawford Bost of San Francisco, president, said the academy executive committee set up the system after consulting with top epidemiologists.

It was decided to advise that the vaccine be given to the three mentioned groups because they are most susceptible to the disease.

French Reforms Require Action And Less Talk

PARIS, April 5 (AP) — Long after most outsiders decided that something was wrong with the French governmental system, Frenchmen have come to the same conclusion.

There's a lot of talk about doing something about it. But it may take a long time for any action. The same divisions which caused the poor functioning of the present system may prevent action on changes. Almost everyone has his own ideas about what should be done.

Premier Edgar Faure told a news conference last week he thought "of all the reforms which must be made, that for our institutions seems to me to be the most important—and most difficult to accomplish." He said the necessity for attending Parliamentary debates, often organized simply to harass the government, made life unbearable for a minister.

Before former Premier Pierre Mendes-France was thrown out of office, he told the Assembly "because of these daily combats mysteriously launched against the government, we need three times as much energy, three times as much strength to work toward our goals".

The flank attacks in the Assembly on the government, of which Mendes-France complained so bitterly, all have the same purpose—to throw it out of office. The tactic succeeds so well that France has had 20 different governments since the liberation. But the deputies who have thrown out the governments one by one never once have endangered their own terms in office.

This ministerial instability is causing most of the howling. A number of bills have been introduced in Parliament for constitutional reform, and several of them aim at insuring a longer life for Cabinets.

Paul Reynaud, who saw one regime crumble under him in 1940 when he was Premier, has taken the lead in crying for reform. He has proposed two positive steps which he believes will help to restore order. First, he wants to revise the method for amending the Constitution, so that amendment can be made easier. Then he wants to amend the Constitution so that the Assembly will be dissolved in case a Premier is voted out of office before two years in power.

Reynaud's proposals got a first parliamentary test last Thursday—and lost, for the moment. Reynaud wanted urgent consideration. To get this priority discussion a majority of all members of the committee on elections and constitutional law was necessary. His bills got only 20 votes when they needed 23.

The committee did vote a resolution approving the idea of constitutional changes, however. It asked Premier Edgar Faure to appear before it on May 5—two days after Parliament returns from its spring vacation—to give the government view.

Faure has announced that he personally favors Reynaud's ideas, but the Cabinet has not yet been called on to fix its collective attitude. Faure has promised to put a special committee to work on the problem to make recommendations.

U.S. Officials Believe Red Propaganda Based On Distortion Fundamentally Weak

By ROGER D. GREENE
AP Staff Writer

American officials believe a fundamental weakness of Communist propaganda is that it cannot deliver what it promises.

"Propaganda built on lies does not stand up indefinitely," says Theodore C. Streibert, head of the United States Information Agency.

"When one offers 'pie in the sky,' a time comes when one must let people know that the pie is at least baking."

Nevertheless, Streibert and other U.S. officials acknowledge that the Communists have made effective inroads with their global avalanche of propaganda, including such inventions as the germ warfare accusations against the United States during the Korean War.

Defending the U.S. policy of sticking to the facts, Streibert says:

"Peoples of the world are hungry for dependable information. One of the unforgivable sins of the Communists is that they have perverted the channels of information —radio, the press, motion pictures, etc.—using them all in a campaign of distortion and outright lies.

"In the hands of the Communists, today's techniques of information have become weapons of deceit and destruction."

American agencies delight in catching the Communists in such activities and exposing them.

For example, some months ago the Communist regime in Hungary decreed that in order to conserve fuel Hungarians could not turn on the heat until temperatures reached a certain level. The government radio station then issued false weather reports.

Last summer the Voice of America took advantage of a boner by the Red Chinese radio to broadcast:

"This is the Voice of America . . . Tonight's story is told by the Peiping radio itself . . . Six thousand Chinese peasants, armed with sickles and stolen firearms, have been fighting Chinese Red army troops all week . . . Many have been executed.

"The hungry peasants have been fighting to defend their rice and grain, seized by the Peiping government and sold to the U.S.S.R. to feed the Soviet people . . ."

This may have been the first tipoff to the upheaval that was climaxed Feb. 8 with the resignation of Soviet Premier Malenkov for "failure" in the field of agriculture.

Certainly it gave the lie to Soviet propaganda broadcasts at the time.

Catching the enemy in lies and then exposing him has on occasion been a devastating propaganda weapon. But the cold war has also pointed up the chief shortcoming of this tactic: it dictates awaiting a move by the enemy, rather than moving aggressively against him first.

Some critics complain that the USIA talks too softly against an opponent who scoffs at rules in what is essentially a battle for survival.

Noting that the USIA has more than 7,000 employes in 158 overseas posts, Streibert says:

"These are not soft jobs. The Communists do not say it with flowers. They are far more likely to toss a bomb through the window or stage a raid as they have done in Calcutta, Dublin, Madras, Buenos Aires and elsewhere.

"They have assassinated several of our agents in Thailand. They killed an Iranian staffer in Damascus. Three were slugged and beaten on the streets of Tehran . . ."

Chou, Nehru Will Share Spotlight At Conference

By OLEN CLEMENTS

BANDUNG, Indonesia, April 5 (AP)—Red China's Premier Chou En-lai may try to get the African-Asian conference to back his country's demands for a seat in the United Nations. But any success will hinge a lot on India's Prime Minister Nehru.

These two political stalwarts of Asia will hold much of the spotlight at the conference to open here April 18.

What Nehru and Chou say and do may well make it worth the price of admission for delegates from the 29 Asian and African nations making up three-fifths of the world's population.

Nehru and Chou are friendly. But some say there are political factors involved in their relationship which put both men on guard when they meet.

Chou has been silent since he was named to head Red China's team to Bandung. Nehru has not. Last week in Parliament Nehru described the conference as a sign of the resurgence of Asia.

But some Asian observers believe Chou is coming to Bandung with the hope of grabbing the leadership of the African-Asian world. A seat for Red China in the U.N. would fit in with those hopes.

There is also the belief among other Asian observers that Chou may try to swing the Bandung meeting toward a third world bloc led by Red China. These observers say Red China would rather lead such a bloc than remain in the Soviet orbit.

Nehru has said the conference will not take sides in the cold war between East and West.

There are other world leaders coming to Bandung who are able to hold their own with either Chou or Nehru in debate and political shrewdness. These include the Philippines minister without portfolio, Carlos P. Romulo, Prime Minister Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, and Prime Minister U Nu of Burma.

Japan will send its first diplomatic team. The Japanese, because of their industrial leadership in Asia and once-powerful military forces, will hold a good hand in the Bandung poker game.

Officially the conference was called to consider problems of special interest to Africans and Asians such as national sovereignty, racialism and colonialism, promotion of world peace, exploration of common interests, and the study of social, economic and cultural problems.

The subject of the atom and hydrogen bomb has been added to the proposed agenda.

World tobacco production increased about four per cent from 1953 to 1954, says the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Student Hides Out In Store To Learn Safe Combination

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 5 (AP)—The near-fantastic story of how a University of Florida honor student hid out in Cohen Bros. department store for two weeks and learned the combination to the vault was revealed in Criminal Court yesterday.

James K. Buie, 29, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering to commit a felony and grand larceny. Sentence was deferred.

County Solicitor Harry H. Martin said Buie was caught inside the store in 1953 but that it was not learned until Jan. 13 this year that he had actually built a hideaway on the third floor and had lived there while observing opening of the vault so closely that he was able to determine the combination.

The prosecutor said Buie, an electrical engineering student, gained entry sometime around Oct. 1, 1953, by pulling a wire loose on a temporary enclosure at the rear of the store, where remodeling was being done.

On Oct. 17, a watchman discovered him on the third floor—where the store's offices and vault are located. Police captured him.

On Jan. 13, Cohen Bros. officials sent a carpenter to make repairs behind air conditioning equipment on the third floor, and Buie's hideout was discovered.

Stitcher Field To Qualify For Improvements

The Mayor and Council yesterday approved an agreement for leasing Stitcher Field and adjoining North End Playground from the county, and City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said the fact the lease can run 30 years will qualify the area for improvement from a $150,000 recreation improvement bond issue.

The agreement, already approved by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, calls for leasing the area to the city for 15 years at an annual $1 rental fee, with an option to renew for 15 more years.

Finan said the 30-year term puts the area in a position to qualify for funds raised by the bond issue, but that improvements should be of the nature that would have a normal life not exceeding the term of the contract.

Cites Needed Work

Mayor Roy W. Eves pointed out that the area is in need of such improvements as blacktopping, lighting and fencing, which would fall within the time requirement.

The first money to be taken from the recreation bond issue will be spent for fencing areas at three local playsites.

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz to advertise for bids.

Involved are 1,478 lineal feet of chain link for fencing Post Playground and 525 lineal feet of the same type for Lamont Street. The order also asks bids on 452 lineal feet of medium weight, 11 gauge 1¾ inch mesh, woven full width with knuckled bottom and top for the North End tennis court. Specifications are available at Buchholtz's office.

Has Board Approval

The three projects have been recommended by the Cumberland Recreation Board.

In another action, Buchholtz was authorized to seek bids on a chlorine dispenser or its equivalent for use at Constitution Park swimming pool.

Effective April 1 and running until March 31, 1970, the North End agreement would provide that the area be used solely for recreation under supervision of the Recreation Department.

The city would maintain, add equipment or change the sites as recommended for recreational purposes under the agreement and would be responsible for all activity on the grounds.

Election Is Slated By Local Optimists

A vote for officers of the Cumberland Optimist Club will be cast today at 6:15 p. m. during the weekly dinner meeting of the organization at Central YMCA.

According to a report of the nominating committee the following members are running for office:

Fire Checked Here

Firemen from South End yesterday afternoon responded to a call received from a resident near 215 Oak Street. The occupant of that address was burning off a lot and had a permit in his possession. The call was received at 3:35 p. m. firemen said.

Equity Suits Filed

Voting Machine

dent of the Election Board, said 103 machines will be purchased under the proposal.

Both Commissioners James Orr and Charles N. Wilkinson agreed that a loan from county banks should be considered before any purchase is decided upon. The Jamestown firm has a financing plan whereby the county could buy the devices with an interest rate of 2¼ per cent. The purchase would be made on a 10-year plan with a certain sum set aside for the principal and interest each year. The county would have the right to pay off the balance before the period ended and thereby save on interest costs.

The Election Board voted unanimously Monday to purchase the machines. The members of the board checked machines made by the Jamestown firm which are in use in Washington and Anne Arundel counties. The machines would be manually operated as approximately $100 per machine can be saved by not using the electrically operated devices.

Each machine will cost $1,422 in comparison to $1,473 for the machines of the Shoup Voting Machine Company, the only other bidder on the contract.

Wilson said that approximately $8,000 will be saved the first year of operation. He explained about $2,000 will be spent in advertising of various kinds in an educational plan to acquaint voters with the machines. In following years the savings by using voting machines will be an estimated $12,000.

The cost to the county for the machines will actually amount to about $3,000 annually for interest charges as a result of the savings on the modern and efficient voting machine system, Wilson stated.

Bill Is Killed

A bill calling for reorganization of the Allegany County Juvenile Court was killed in the Maryland Senate Monday when Senator Robert B. Kimble refused to accept an amendment made by the county's House delegation.

A spokesman for Sen. Kimble said the delegation struck out the entire bill as passed by the Senate and substituted new provisions. The House proposed that the Juvenile magistrate be empowered to name a secretary-stenographer at a salary of $2,400 to be employed at the discretion of the magistrate. Another clause called for the appointment of another probation officer by judges of the Allegany County Circuit Court and that both new employes would work for indefinite periods.

The Kimble spokesman said the amendment was confusing and unconstitutional.

Among the bills enacted Monday were:

HB 844 by Reed—Defining the special taxing areas in existence as of January 1, 1953, in Allegany County as incorporated municipalities for the purpose of distributing state income taxes.

HB 845 by Allegany Delegation—Authorizing the appointment of a humane officer in Allegany County to issue dog licenses and to take custody of dogs running at large.

HB 846 by Allegany Delegation—Authorizing the Cresaptown Improvement Association to construct and maintain street lights in the special taxing area, subject to a referendum.

HB 765 by Reed—Amending the law as to certain teachers retired in Allegany County.

SB 528 by Kimble—Providing for clerical assistance for the Trial Magistrates Court in Cumberland.

HB 225 by Allegany and Garrett Delegations—Regulating strip coal mining requiring operators to cover and plant pits (Amended).

HB 443 by Garrett Delegation—Providing certain tax exemptions in Garrett County for new businesses and industries and for extensions and additions to established industries (Amended).

VFW Nominees Are Selected

A nomination of officers of Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was held last night during a meeting at the post home.

All nominees are unopposed although nominations will be reopened the night of the election which will be Tuesday, April 19, beginning at 8 p. m.

Nominees include Cornelius Rice, commander; Guy Smith, senior vice commander; Russell Meyers, junior vice commander; V. J. Winner, quartermaster.

Child's Thumb Is Cut

Thomas Ort, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ort, 810 Elmwood Lane, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday for treatment of a deep laceration of the left thumb, suffered after it was caught by a closing car door.

Mrs. Mary Powell, 63, Route 3, Ridgeley, was admitted to Sacred Heart yesterday afternoon for X-rays and treatment of possible chest injuries, suffered when she fell in the yard of her home.

Miss Mamie O'Rourke, 72, Lonaconing, was admitted late yesterday afternoon to Sacred Heart for X-rays and treatment of a hip injury suffered in a fall at her home.

Md. Tax Setup

of the House, got up and announced shortly after 2 a.m.:

"I'm personally going over to the Senate and get the bill."

Boone Demands Bill

He marched down the aisle with delegates trooping behind and across the corridor into the Senate chamber. Planting himself firmly in the center aisle, he watched with a frown as the Senate debated whether to give up the bill to the delegates who had invaded the chamber.

They finally voted to do it and Boone returned in triumph to loud cheers of the House. Delegates then took up the bill, rejected an amendment to have some of the extra racing day money go to crippled children and proceeded to kill the bill.

The Senate finally went home at 2:50 a.m. and the House at 3:05 a.m., with their anger still not completely cooled.

The tax program as finally enacted called for:

Withholding of income taxes to begin July 1 with exemptions for dependents being set at a flat $800 per person instead of the present $1,000 for taxpayer and wife and $600 for others.

Equalization of gross receipts taxes at 2 per cent except for railroads, which remain at present levels.

Application of the sales tax to equipment not readily obtainable in Maryland and items rented or leased by companies.

Keeping for the State $4,336,360, half of the extra "windfall" money resulting from withholding taxes which ordinarily would have gone to counties and Baltimore City.

Gov. McKeldin, in a message to the Legislature, again criticized the program as not taking "cognizance of the real needs of the State" and said it necessitates presenting another completely new program to the next General Assembly.

He had advocated raising the sales and income taxes one per cent each as an increased permanent revenue basis for the State, but lawmakers decided to put these off for a year in order to get a better picture of the long-range fiscal problem.

Sybert, the state's top legal officer and a veteran legislator himself, was in both chambers for passage of the tax bills to consult with Democratic leaders on proper procedures and insure constitutionality of the bills.

Although he warned both the House and Senate that it was entirely possible the matter might have to go to the Court of Appeals he said later that he thought the parliamentary proceedings were conducted properly. In event of a court test of one of the tax bills, it probably would end up in the high court and Sybert would have to defend it for the State.

It was a brand new situation for the attorney general as well as legislators. Rules provide for a conference committee working on one bill. In this case there were a number of different bills under consideration.

After the conference committee report was adopted as a formality, each bill was acted on separately in both houses. Rules governing conference committee reports were suspended as a double precaution that what the legislators were doing would be correct.

Other Bills Enacted

During the hours of haggling over tax measures, senators and delegates also found time to enact such important legislation bills implementing home rule for cities and towns, requiring use of voting machines throughout the state by 1956 and placing a ceiling of 2 million dollars on any surplus the State may acquire, with the remainder going toward reduction of the State debt and consequently the property tax which finances it.

Also before going home, the Senate confirmed Gov. McKeldin's statewide and magisterial appointments with a few minor exceptions and Senate Republicans named as their minority leader next year Harry Phoebus, 61-year old Princess Anne automobile dealer and veteran legislator.

The choice of Phoebus came as somewhat of a surprise in view of his individualism on key administration measures. He had previously said he didn't want the job.

Sen. Stanford Hoff (R-Carroll) had been regarded as the most likely choice for the job held by Sen. Kimble (R-Allegany) the past four sessions. Kimble was appointed by McKeldin as head of the Department of Employment Security.

Stitcher Field To Qualify For Improvements

The Mayor and Council yesterday approved an agreement for leasing Stitcher Field and adjoining North End Playground from the county, and City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said the fact the lease can run 30 years will qualify the area for improvement from a $150,000 recreation improvement bond issue.

The agreement, already approved by the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, calls for leasing the area to the city for 15 years at an annual $1 rental fee, with an option to renew for 15 more years.

Finan said the 30-year term puts the area in a position to qualify for funds raised by the bond issue, but that improvements should be of the nature that would have a normal life not exceeding the term of the contract.

Cites Needed Work

Mayor Roy W. Eves pointed out that the area is in need of such improvements as blacktopping, lighting and fencing, which would fall within the time requirement.

The first money to be taken from the recreation bond issue will be spent for fencing areas at three local playsites.

The Mayor and Council yesterday authorized Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz to advertise for bids.

Involved are 1,478 lineal feet of chain link for fencing Post Playground and 525 lineal feet of the same type for Lamont Street. The order also asks bids on 452 lineal feet of medium weight, 11 gauge 1¾ inch mesh, woven full width with knuckled bottom and top for the North End tennis court. Specifications are available at Buchholtz's office.

Has Board Approval

The three projects have been recommended by the Cumberland Recreation Board.

In another action, Buchholtz was authorized to seek bids on a chlorine dispenser or its equivalent for use at Constitution Park swimming pool.

Effective April 1 and running until March 31, 1970, the North End agreement would provide that the area be used solely for recreation under supervision of the Recreation Department.

The city would maintain, add equipment or change the sites as recommended for recreational purposes under the agreement and would be responsible for all activity on the grounds.

Election Is Slated By Local Optimists

A vote for officers of the Cumberland Optimist Club will be cast today at 6:15 p. m. during the weekly dinner meeting of the organization at Central YMCA.

According to a report of the nominating committee the following members are running for office:

Fire Checked Here

Firemen from South End yesterday afternoon responded to a call received from a resident near 215 Oak Street. The occupant of that address was burning off a lot and had a permit in his possession. The call was received at 3:35 p. m. firemen said.

Equity Suits Filed

Voting Machine

dent of the Election Board, said 103 machines will be purchased under the proposal.

Both Commissioners James Orr and Charles N. Wilkinson agreed that a loan from county banks should be considered before any purchase is decided upon. The Jamestown firm has a financing plan whereby the county could buy the devices with an interest rate of 2¼ per cent. The purchase would be made on a 10-year plan with a certain sum set aside for the principal and interest each year. The county would have the right to pay off the balance before the period ended and thereby save on interest costs.

The Election Board voted unanimously Monday to purchase the machines. The members of the board checked machines made by the Jamestown firm which are in use in Washington and Anne Arundel counties. The machines would be manually operated as approximately $100 per machine can be saved by not using the electrically operated devices.

Each machine will cost $1,422 in comparison to $1,473 for the machines of the Shoup Voting Machine Company, the only other bidder on the contract.

Wilson said that approximately $8,000 will be saved the first year of operation. He explained about $2,000 will be spent in advertising of various kinds in an educational plan to acquaint voters with the machines. In following years the savings by using voting machines will be an estimated $12,000.

The cost to the county for the machines will actually amount to about $3,000 annually for interest charges as a result of the savings on the modern and efficient voting machine system, Wilson stated.

Bill Is Killed

A bill calling for reorganization of the Allegany County Juvenile Court was killed in the Maryland Senate Monday when Senator Robert B. Kimble refused to accept an amendment made by the county's House delegation.

A spokesman for Sen. Kimble said the delegation struck out the entire bill as passed by the Senate and substituted new provisions. The House proposed that the Juvenile magistrate be empowered to name a secretary-stenographer at a salary of $2,400 to be employed at the discretion of the magistrate. Another clause called for the appointment of another probation officer by judges of the Allegany County Circuit Court and that both new employes would work for indefinite periods.

The Kimble spokesman said the amendment was confusing and unconstitutional.

Among the bills enacted Monday were:

HB 844 by Reed—Defining the special taxing areas in existence as of January 1, 1953, in Allegany County as incorporated municipalities for the purpose of distributing state income taxes.

HB 845 by Allegany Delegation—Authorizing the appointment of a humane officer in Allegany County to issue dog licenses and to take custody of dogs running at large.

HB 846 by Allegany Delegation—Authorizing the Cresaptown Improvement Association to construct and maintain street lights in the special taxing area, subject to a referendum.

HB 765 by Reed—Amending the law as to certain teachers retired in Allegany County.

SB 528 by Kimble—Providing for clerical assistance for the Trial Magistrates Court in Cumberland.

HB 225 by Allegany and Garrett Delegations—Regulating strip coal mining requiring operators to cover and plant pits (Amended).

HB 443 by Garrett Delegation—Providing certain tax exemptions in Garrett County for new businesses and industries and for extensions and additions to established industries (Amended).

All nominees are unopposed although nominations will be reopened the night of the election which will be Tuesday, April 19, beginning at 8 p. m.

Nominees include Cornelius Rice, commander; Guy Smith, senior vice commander; Russell Meyers, junior vice commander; V. J. Winner, quartermaster.

Child's Thumb Is Cut

Mrs. Mary Powell, 63, Route 3, Ridgeley, was admitted to Sacred Heart yesterday afternoon for X-rays and treatment of possible chest injuries, suffered when she fell in the yard of her home.

Miss Mamie O'Rourke, 72, Lonaconing, was admitted late yesterday afternoon to Sacred Heart for X-rays and treatment of a hip injury suffered in a fall at her home.

of the House, got up and announced shortly after 2 a.m.:

"I'm personally going over to the Senate and get the bill."

Boone Demands Bill

He marched down the aisle with delegates trooping behind and across the corridor into the Senate chamber. Planting himself firmly in the center aisle, he watched with a frown as the Senate debated whether to give up the bill to the delegates who had invaded the chamber.

They finally voted to do it and Boone returned in triumph to loud cheers of the House. Delegates then took up the bill, rejected an amendment to have some of the extra racing day money go to crippled children and proceeded to kill the bill.

The Senate finally went home at 2:50 a.m. and the House at 3:05 a.m., with their anger still not completely cooled.

The tax program as finally enacted called for:

Withholding of income taxes to begin July 1 with exemptions for dependents being set at a flat $800 per person instead of the present $1,000 for taxpayer and wife and $600 for others.

Equalization of gross receipts taxes at 2 per cent except for railroads, which remain at present levels.

Application of the sales tax to equipment not readily obtainable in Maryland and items rented or leased by companies.

Keeping for the State $4,336,360, half of the extra "windfall" money resulting from withholding taxes which ordinarily would have gone to counties and Baltimore City.

Gov. McKeldin, in a message to the Legislature, again criticized the program as not taking "cognizance of the real needs of the State" and said it necessitates presenting another completely new program to the next General Assembly.

He had advocated raising the sales and income taxes one per cent each as an increased permanent revenue basis for the State, but lawmakers decided to put these off for a year in order to get a better picture of the long-range fiscal problem.

Sybert, the state's top legal officer and a veteran legislator himself, was in both chambers for passage of the tax bills to consult with Democratic leaders on proper procedures and insure constitutionality of the bills.

Although he warned both the House and Senate that it was entirely possible the matter might have to go to the Court of Appeals he said later that he thought the parliamentary proceedings were conducted properly. In event of a court test of one of the tax bills, it probably would end up in the high court and Sybert would have to defend it for the State.

It was a brand new situation for the attorney general as well as legislators. Rules provide for a conference committee working on one bill. In this case there were a number of different bills under consideration.

After the conference committee report was adopted as a formality, each bill was acted on separately in both houses. Rules governing conference committee reports were suspended as a double precaution that what the legislators were doing would be correct.

Other Bills Enacted

During the hours of haggling over tax measures, senators and delegates also found time to enact such important legislation bills implementing home rule for cities and towns, requiring use of voting machines throughout the state by 1956 and placing a ceiling of 2 million dollars on any surplus the State may acquire, with the remainder going toward reduction of the State debt and consequently the property tax which finances it.

Also before going home, the Senate confirmed Gov. McKeldin's statewide and magisterial appointments with a few minor exceptions and Senate Republicans named as their minority leader next year Harry Phoebus, 61-year old Princess Anne automobile dealer and veteran legislator.

The choice of Phoebus came as somewhat of a surprise in view of his individualism on key administration measures. He had previously said he didn't want the job.

Sen. Stanford Hoff (R-Carroll) had been regarded as the most likely choice for the job held by Sen. Kimble (R-Allegany) the past four sessions. Kimble was appointed by McKeldin as head of the Department of Employment Security.

Fire Razes Restaurant Near Uniontown

Investigation is continuing in the $28,000 flash fire which destroyed the Brown Derby Restaurant along U. S. Route 40 about 17 miles east of Uniontown early Monday.

Feared lost in the blaze was the 45-year-old caretaker, Robert Green, who firemen later located in Friendsville where he attended a theater Sunday night.

Green occupied living quarters in the rear of the one-story popular mountain establishment. Defective wiring in his room was blamed for the disastrous fire .

Mr. and Mrs. August Yeager, owners of the restaurant, went to Florida last Thursday and left the business in charge of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Martin. Cabins on the property were not damaged by flames.

Farmington firemen who went to the scene estimated that 45 minutes elapsed before they were called to the stone structure. When they arrived, the blaze was out of control.

Authorities said final action will not be taken until the Yeagers return from Florida.

"Y" Youth Division Program Planned

The Youth Division of Central YMCA will hold an Easter program tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Youth Lobby, L. R. Dehn, program secretary, announced yesterday.

Dehn will give the message, "The Builder of Souls." All young people are welcome to attend.

The Rec Club will not sponsor its weekly program this Friday evening because of the observance of Good Friday.

Trial Motion Denied

Judge H. M. Calhoun Monday denied the motion for a new trial for David Gilpin, conservation commission game manager of Romney, who was recently convicted of involuntary manslaughter in Hampshire County Circuit Court.

John Ailes and G. K. Kump, attorneys for Gilpin, submitted the motion for a new trial after Gilpin was found guilty by the Hampshire Court. The attorneys have until May 5 to decide whether they will take the case to the West Virginia State Supreme Court.

The case arose out of the accidental shooting of Grover J. Michael, of Shanks, when he was returning to get a deer he had illegally killed.

The case has been closely followed by law enforcement officers of the state, due to the fact that Judge Calhoun is alleged to have told the jury that an enforcement officer cannot draw his weapon except in self defense.

$117 Raised For Crippled

Members of Cumberland Aerie 245, F. O. Eagles, raised $117.89 for the benefit of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children through the sale of Easter lily lapel flowers last Saturday in downtown Cumberland.

Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary of the league, said the Eagles turned over the money Monday. Meanwhile, she said the response to the sale of Easter Seals through letters mailed to 22,000 individuals is progressing very slowly.

Only 7,000 persons have returned money for the Easter Seals they received by mail. About 700 of the letters were returned due to either wrong addresses or the persons having moved to new residences. Several hundred others returned the Easter Seals without a donation.

Mrs. Annan said the Easter Seal sale is looked upon for a major portion of the income of the league. Those persons who have not yet done so are asked to send in their donations for the Easter Seals. They are urged to use the attractive seals when sending cards or letters to friends.

2 Men Hurt In Accident

Two young men were injured early yesterday when their car went out of control and crashed against a power pole about three miles north of Cumberland on Bedford Road.

Admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital at 1:45 a. m. were Floyd Engle, 21, driver of the auto, and Elmer Miller, 21, both of RD 3, Bedford.

Engle suffered a lacerated right eyelid and nose injury and was released after treatment. His comknee and elbow and was in "fair" condition yesterday.

State Police said the crash caused an electric light failure in the Bedford Road area. Trooper Robert D. Wolford is investigating.

Patricia Marie McKinley, 13, daughter of Mrs. Frances H. McKinley, 309 Springdale Street, was taken to the same hospital last night at 10:40 with second degree burns of the right thigh, arm and back. She is in "fair" condition.

Attaches said her clothing ignited when she backed into a gas heater at home.

Board Given Vote Budget

The budget of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors for the fiscal year starting July 1 was submitted to the county commissioners yesterday.

It was signed by William A. Wilson, board president, and Edward P. Kaylor, clerk. The budget totals $31,306.60. A total of $11,940 is set aside for salaries of the two registrars, three supervisors, clerk, attorney and messenger.

A total of $16,391.60 is set aside for poll workers, clerical help, substitute registrars, janitor, and printing costs. Another $2,975 is included for telephone, office expense and travel costs.

The two registrars, one Republican and the other a Democrat, each receive a salary of $3,000 annually. Three supervisors are paid $1,800 each; the attorney's salary is $1,000, the clerk $1,200 and the messenger, $500. Office expense is listed at $2,000.

$117 Raised For Crippled

Members of Cumberland Aerie 245, F. O. Eagles, raised $117.89 for the benefit of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children through the sale of Easter lily lapel flowers last Saturday in downtown Cumberland.

Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary of the league, said the Eagles turned over the money Monday. Meanwhile, she said the response to the sale of Easter Seals through letters mailed to 22,000 individuals is progressing very slowly.

Only 7,000 persons have returned money for the Easter Seals they received by mail. About 700 of the letters were returned due to either wrong addresses or the persons having moved to new residences. Several hundred others returned the Easter Seals without a donation.

Mrs. Annan said the Easter Seal sale is looked upon for a major portion of the income of the league. Those persons who have not yet done so are asked to send in their donations for the Easter Seals. They are urged to use the attractive seals when sending cards or letters to friends.

Big news about

Buick's 4-Door Riviera

THIS brand-new kind of automobile—the sensation of all the Auto Shows this year—is now rolling off the Buick assembly lines in volume numbers. That's the first news.

And the second is just as wonderful—this dramatic new model is very definitely everything that eager buyers hoped it would be.

For the 4-Door Riviera is the first "hardtop" ever available with separate doors for rear-seat passengers—plus rear-compartment room big as a Buick-size family sedan.

It comes breezing in with all the low-lined sweep and wide open visibility of Buick's original 2-Door Riviera—and with luxurious new spaciousness in its sizeable and full-length 4-door body.

With windows down, no posts appear for the rear doors, and you get a completely unobstructed view at both sides.

You find rear doors are hinged at their front edges to swing wide and free, and assure easy entrance and exit.

And you'll find legroom, headroom and hiproom extra-generous both front and rear—with interiors tailored in fabrics and patterns specially reserved for the 4-Door Riviera.

Best of all, this new Buick beauty comes off the line in both the low-price SPECIAL Series and the high-powered CENTURY Series.

So you can pick your 4-Door Riviera with the potent performance of a 188-hp or 236-hp Buick V8 engine—the swift getaway and gas saving of Variable Pitch Dynaflow*—the velvet stride of the Million Dollar Ride—the long list of Buick bonus features at no extra cost—and all at "great buy" prices that have helped move Buick into America's "Big Three" of best sellers.

But—better come see us about the 4-Door Riviera now.

With all-out production—and a prompt order—this newest excitement in cars will be yours that much sooner.

than all premium-priced gasolines combined?

Surveys made among Automotive Engineers show that their favorite gasoline is High-Test Blue Sunoco. In fact, of those who compared Blue Sunoco with premium-priced brands, 95% said that regular-priced Blue Sunoco equals or excels premium-priced gasolines for over-all performance.

Why such popularity with Automotive Engineers? Because Sun Oil Company's traditional policy is to concentrate its efforts and facilities on making only one grade of gasoline—High-Test, premium-performing Blue Sunoco, and sell it at regular gas price. Sun's catalytic refining processes, in which Sun is years ahead of the industry, help us produce a cleaner-burning gasoline with high anti-knock power for modern high-compression engines, and sell it at regular gas price.

Blue Sunoco's preference by Automotive Engineers, the men who know most about cars, is proof that Sun's traditional one-grade policy pays off for motorists.

Follow the lead of Automotive Engineers—use High-Test Blue Sunoco in your car! Enjoy premium performance at regular gas price.

Rural Civil Defense Is Important Too

True D. Morse, acting secretary of agriculture, has reassured Congress that the Agriculture Department is increasing its efforts to inform the rural population of the most feasible precautions to take in the event of an atomic disaster.

Much stress has been placed on the importance of protecting and evacuating large cities during such a catastrophe, but the tendency has been to overlook the farm residents because their abodes are not likely to be enemy targets.

What has been forgotten is that large amounts of radioactive fall-out spread over thousands of acres of productive farmland can become a more serious disaster than any industrial holocaust. Makeshift factories can be rebuilt from rubble in a relatively short time, but contaminated fields would be ready to produce again only after a lapse of years.

In a letter to a member of the House Agriculture Committee, Morse said top agriculture officials "have been kept fully informed regarding the hazards of fission products to agriculture, as fast as the basic technical information has been obtained." Morse continued: "This department and the Federal Civil Defense Administration are working in cooperation with AEC at the present time on the problem of contamination from radioactive fall-out as it applies to soils, crops, livestock and food supplies."

There is only one disconcerting paragraph in the Morse letter. That one says that "security restrictions" have prevented the farmers from having access to this information. It seems rather absurd to spend so much time, effort and money in compiling information designed to help a certain segment of the population in an emergency and then classify and file it without reporting its contents to those concerned.

The only net result such an action can produce is to confuse the farmers who now know there is information which could help them protect themselves and their property if they were allowed to see it.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

An Admiral's Contribution

Vice Admiral Wilson Brown had the extraordinary experience of serving as the naval aide to four presidents, Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt, and for a short time, Truman. Few men have had the opportunity of being so constantly with so many presidents of the United States.

In his memoirs which I read in the magazine, "American Heritage," he recounts this experience with President Truman:

"During the wakeful hours of the night before I had asked myself what was the most important problem of the war situation that I should bring to President Truman's attention while I still had the chance. I decided that the increasing Russian arrogance since Yalta was most important. Circumstances gave me a good opening, for I had the report of lend-lease that came to my desk each month for delivery to the President. And so when Leahy had finished his brief summing up of problems before the Joint Staff, I told President Truman about Stalin's bitter messages accusing us of bad faith in negotiations for the surrender of Austrian troops and of President Roosevelt's angry reply. I mentioned also Roosevelt's growing concern for the increasing number of reports of Russian misdeeds. I handed Mr. Truman an inventory of lend-lease supplies then en route to Russia—a perfectly amazing list of shiploads of locomotives, railroad cars, miles of track, trucks, artillery, gasoline, food—and stated that the Russian people were not being told where those vast stores came from, and that the Russian government never even said 'thank you' to us. I urged the President to take the list home and study it carefully at his leisure. 'Thank you, I will,' he said, and I felt confident that he would not forget the matter in the flurry of his first day of office."

It is a small episode but it opens the door to broad speculation as to what might have developed in American-Russian relations had Roosevelt lived out his fourth term. We have here authentic, internal evidence that Roosevelt was growing concerned over "the increasing number of reports of Russian misdeeds." This was after Yalta where Roosevelt gave Stalin more lands and souls than Stalin asked for. It was Roosevelt who suggested the restoration of Russia's "rights" in Manchuria, which effectively made it possible for Russia to conquer China and set up a Chinese Communist government in that country.

Roosevelt, we know, was not moving in the dark. He had conceived "The Grand Design," the assumption that American generosity would convince Stalin that this country had no imperialistic intentions, that we sought only to give but not to take.

Nobody has yet reported what Stalin thought of it all. In terms of Marxian dialectical materialism, he must have believed us to be stupid, because no nation could succeed in the struggle for existence which gave away its strength and potentials to its enemies. And Stalin knew who the next enemy of the United States would be because Lenin had announced it many years before.

Roosevelt's disappointment must have been unendurable. He had staked the fate of his nation on the correctness of his appraisal of Stalin's character. He had given to Russia—that is, to Stalin—$11,000,000,000 of America's wealth to win the Communist leader over to Roosevelt's conception of the future, embodied perhaps in the Atlantic Charter. He must have suspected or even known before his death, if we are to take the hint from Admiral Wilson Brown, that he was dealing with a bandit and a blackmailer who would demand and demand and demand and give nothing.

The tragedy for Roosevelt must have been that he knew that he was dying and that he could do nothing to undo the evils of Teheran and Yalta.

But this is not understandable: Why did he not call in Harry Truman, his inevitable successor, to tell him what he had in his thoughts? It will be recalled that when Truman took over, it was in an atmosphere of uncertainty and confusion. Truman had not been kept in touch with the situation. He played no such role as Richard Nixon does in the Eisenhower administration. Roosevelt must have known that Harry Truman could not be ready for transactions with Stalin. Nevertheless, Roosevelt took not one step to prepare his successor for the San Francisco or Potsdam conferences. It is perhaps a problem in psychology rather than politics.

International Law Plays Part In Defense Of Islands

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Time was when the mention of the phrase "international law" meant certain, well-defined principles of international conduct which history and custom had placed in a recognized code.

But today the words "international law" can be bandied about in public and few people question their real meaning in given situations. This may be due to unfamiliarity with the precedents or to forgetfulness.

Thus, in the new resolution backed by several Democratic senators who now want to reverse the decision taken by an overwhelming majority of both houses recently, which gave the President authority to defend Formosa and related areas, there occurs this language:

U. S. Recognizes Nationalists

"Whereas the United States under international law has no territorial rights or claims to the Matsu and Quemoy islands; and whereas a military defense of said islands by the United States subjects the United States to the charge of acts of aggression and involvement in a Chinese civil war; . . ."

But, under international law, the Republic of China is today the recognized government, and there is no involvement in a civil war from a legal standpoint if the United States continues to recognize the same government. To honor the request of a constituted government for military aid in resisting rebellion is a well-established principle of international law and, so far as the United States government is concerned, the Nationalist government is the constituted government.

In Greece, for example, the United States rendered military assistance to the constituted government a few years ago.

Other Legalizing Factors

Entirely apart from the principle of extending military aid to a recognized government, there are other facts which would legalize the action of the United States in defending the Quemoy and Matsu islands. Thus, the government of Red China took part in a major war in Korea against the United States and Allied forces. An armistice now has been signed, but an armistice is not a treaty of peace. It continues from the viewpoint of international law the legal conditions of a state of war which existed as against Red China before the armistice was signed.

This armistice, moreover, has been repeatedly violated by the Red Chinese. Americans captured during the war have not been returned as required by that agreement.

Yet so far afield have some American writers gone in their anxiety to appease the Red Chinese that the United States government now is blatantly accused of having a "guilty conscience" in ordering the release of the 76 Chinese students held in America during the Korean War.

One editorial in an eastern newspaper concedes that "it would have been foolhardy to have permitted persons who could aid the Chinese to return during the fighting" in Korea but argues that "after the fighting ceased, there was no moral or legal justification for retaining them."

U. S. To Be Commended

Since when does an armistice which stops the fighting also end the legal rights of two belligerents? The United States has very right to retain any foreign nationals during a state of war and, when an armistice comes, to return only those specified in the agreement. It is for a peace treaty, when duly signed and ratified, to say what disposition should be made of the foreign nationals and their property seized during a war. For, after all, it was a war in Korea—more than 140,000 Americans were killed or wounded in it.

The American government, therefore, cannot be rightly accused of having a sense of guilt but rather must be commended for doing a generous thing—not required by international law or the terms of the armistice—in giving up custody of the Red Chinese students. For they possess information about atomic physics and technical skills acquired during their stay in this country which could be used against American troops if the existing armistice breaks down and the Korean War is resumed. Also, since when does a government formally declare an "aggressor" by the United Nations, and still unpunished, acquire "rights" under international law?

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Ratification of the Bonn codicils is the cleverest rumor we've inhaled since the invention of upside-down cake.

It took some doing for France to see eye-to-keyhole with the militaristic Prussian. Paris has been invaded oftener than a moonshiner's dog has been kicked.

The French have not forgotten Bismarck, Hohenzollern or Shickelgruber. The French school-boy learns his arithmetic on invasion numerals.

Even Bonn hesitated over staking blunderbuses to 500,000 West Germans with spastic trigger-fingers.

There are some wrist-cuffing marginations in the protocols of belligerence. Under Paragraph 182, Article 674, Section 99,622, there will be no heeling or heiling.

And that's only the first draft of the pink papers. The 500,000 rookheimers will not be permitted to throw remote-controlled darts at out-size wall maps. Nor to give the Schickelgruber salute unless they bend the elbow. Nor can they sing that song about the hoarse weasel.

The French are right. Can you go to sleep waiting for upstairs West Germans to drop the other 500,000 shoes?

The West German army will line up on the Russian border. One iron-ribbed verboten order will be no "about face."

They must keep one foot on the floor while waltzing the Blue Danube, the lids on their steins must be up between the hours of six and twelve and medals from the last front must be worn on the back.

Only then will the French asthma breathe freely and their sinuses return to sea-level.

We hope this is one treaty that works out instead of working loose. There is always a chance of the next dance being a goose-step.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Housewives haven't been told about it, but the Agriculture Department has quietly stopped its research in homemaking. This means an end to bulletins and pamphlets on consumer buying, home management, interior decorating, kitchen helps, home economics and related subjects.

Characteristically, this service to housewives will be transferred to do research for business firms. Both the funds and the personnel of the Agriculture Department will be assigned to food and nutrition research useful for marketing and processing for the meat packers, the canners and the food companies.

This move to eliminate household helps is an outgrowth of President Eisenhower's 1952 campaign speech against the government pamphlet, "Tools for Food Preparation and Dishwashing." Speaking all over the U.S.A., he held up this pamphlet as "a symbol of shameful wasting of tax funds."

Actually, Ike hadn't read the pamphlet, didn't know it was loaded with helpful hints to housewives and was one of the most popular pamphlets the government issued. After he moved into the White House, the Agriculture Department obliviously continued to publish the pamphlet. In fact, 15,000 new copies were printed and more than 22,000 copies mailed to inquiring housewives during the last two years. It had a bigger sale than ever before.

This column finally pointed out that Ike's famous symbol of waste was still being printed in greater quantities than ever, and when this news got to the White House it so infuriated the President, who still hadn't read the pamphlet, that he ordered it stopped.

Whereupon the Agriculture Department went to even greater lengths to please the President. It began cutting down on all public research aimed at helping housewives. Now the whole home-economics program has been cut out altogether.

Ducky Congressman

Ohio's Democratic Congressman Ashley of Toledo took Senator Bricker to task for being too harsh on Ohio's duck population, which caused Mike Di Salle, ex-mayor of Toledo, to comment that Ashley's criticism had probably won the freshman congressman the vote of every duck in Ohio.

"Trouble is," added Di Salle, "that on election day all of Ohio's ducks are in Canada!"

Grunewald Got Raw Deal

It may seem strange for this writer, who was the first to expose the influence peddling of Henry Grunewald, to state, now that he's been convicted, that I feel sorry for him. Nevertheless, that is the case.

Grunewald was convicted on the basis of the Oliphant diary, a 3,000-page, closely typed record made by Charley Oliphant, former counsel of Internal Revenue, of every phone call he received, every caller who asked him for a favor.

That diary is now one of the most closely guarded secrets of Washington. It is held in the safe of an assistant secretary of the treasury. Originally it was sent to a congressional committee, which found the name of all sorts of big shots — from senators to cabinet members. Considered too hot to handle, it was sent back. The congressmen didn't want to touch it.

More recently, the Justice Department has singled out Grunewald and a few others for prosecution. Unquestionably, they were guilty of influence peddling and tax fixing. I reported this in some detail as early as six years ago. But were they the main culprits?

In my opinion they were not. They are chiefly the scapegoats for a lot of big shots who remain in the background, untouched.

Lady And Prime Minister

Glamorous Clare Boothe Luce did not hurt her diplomatic prestige during the visit of Italian Premier Mario Scelba. Though she tried to keep in the background, the fact is that when you put a beautiful blonde lady ambassador beside a nice, rotund, slightly bald little man — the man is bound to come out second best even though he is prime minister of one of our most important allies in Europe.

Mrs. Luce even wore absolutely flat heels in order not to tower above Premier Scelba. It didn't make any difference.

The lady ambassador translated for Scelba when he talked with Eisenhower, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, and Foreign Aid Director Stassen—much to the surprise of everyone. For, two years ago, Mrs. Luce spoke not a word of Italian.

In one State Department briefing the ambassadress sat doodling with a pencil. Those who peeked over her shoulder saw she was sketching a State Department stenographer. This time, thought the State Department career men, Mrs. Luce won't know what it's all about.

When the conversation ended, however, the U.S. ambassadress to Italy launched a barrage of questions which showed she had grasped every word of the briefing.

NOTE—Ike wants to send Mrs. Luce as envoy to France, replacing Ambassador Douglas Dillon who is resigning.

Indiana Politics

Senator Capehart of Indiana was pleased as punch when the Louisville Courier-Journal, after lampooning him for several years, cited him for outstanding achievement. It liked the way he had been investigating FHA corruption.

Though the Courier-Journal is published in Kentucky, just across the Ohio river from Indiana, it has considerable circulation in the senator's home state and he, a Republican, was not unhappy about getting kind words from a Democratic newspaper.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has also taken an editorial position in favor of a second toll bridge across the Ohio River from Louisville to Jeffersonville, Ind., and for keeping the old bridge on a toll basis. This was a matter on which the Indiana senator had taken no stand; but when he spoke at Jeffersonville the other day a delegation of citizens called on him to protest this plan.

Capehart listened carefully, finally said: "Why do you come to me with this? You talked to me about this two years ago and I told you then that I was for whatever you want."

"We remember that," piped one old fellow at the back of the room, "but the Courier-Journal has been buttering you up so pretty lately that we wanted to make sure you hadn't changed your mind."

New Slant On Life

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, April 5—(INS)—My gosh, my gosh, I my goshed the other morning when I saw a picture of a stage full of fellows taking bows and holding the Oscars they had won for the great picture "On The Waterfront."

My gosh, I continued to my gosh, Malcolm Johnson certainly has lost weight. I can't even see him in the picture. So I dropped down to the caption to see where he was standing in the midst of the beaming left to right, and it wasn't a case of his being wafer thin at all. He just wasn't there in that happy lineup, joining one and all in saying, "Shucks, it warn't nothing."

So a few hours later Malcolm and I were lunching. Am pleased to report that the man who won the Pulitzer prize for bravely collecting the bulk of the waterfront material from which Budd Schulberg wrote his fine script is looking well-fed. He's now a valued public relations man.

Mike Isn't Bitter

It was comforting, he said, to hear from so many of the newspaper guys and dolls that day, all of whom began the conversation with, "How do you like them bums out there taking all those bows and making all that dough when, after all, it was you etc. etc. etc."

Mike, as we know him and respect him, isn't bitter, though once he owned five per cent of the movie, an option he lost when the original company that had the property was frightened out of making it—having received threats of boycott action by waterfront officials, one of whom is now under indictment for robbing his own union.

Early in the spring of 1948 Edmond P. Bartnett, city editor of the old New York Sun, assigned Mike to look into the murder of Tom Collentine, a waterfront hiring boss. Collentine was the latest in a considerable string of victims.

"Lot of unrest down there," Bartnett said. "Maybe you can get a story out of it." Mike worked for six weeks, got nowhere. Nobody was talking. Not even the police. For a time he thought of chucking the assignment and admitting failure, but he hung on until one day he got a call from a former FBI man he knew who had taken a job with a trucking concern.

The FBI man put Mike next to an informer whom he instantly suspected. But the fellow had the lowdown on shakedowns, thievery, kickbacks, shylocks, shape-ups, and murder. Armed with that background he found Bill Keating in the DA's office and Keating showed him dusty files which lacked a bit of evidence here and a bit there to put the subjects of those files behind bars. Mike went after the additional evidence.

Dangerous Work

It was the first time Mike had ever heard of Meyer Lansky, who was described to him as "one of the brightest boys in the syndicate." He had never heard of the syndicate either, so there followed more weeks of work . . . dangerous work done without the power of subpoena or too many muscles.

The 24-part series began November 7, 1948. Instantly his phone began ringing. Strange voices warned him or his wife to stop the series or he'd be killed. "The calls worried my wife a lot," he remembered the other day, "but not me. I kept thinking of old Peg (Westbrook Pegler). If they hadn't killed him through the years they were not going to kill me."

It was through the articles that Mike met Father John Corridan, S. J., "the waterfront priest." Corridan deeply impressed Mike.

"He got me emotionally involved with the people of the waterfront," Mike said. "Until then I had just looked upon his assignment as a rattling good crime story. I didn't care whether the guys were exploited or not.

"But he changed me . . . just as later he changed Budd Schulberg. I don't think I actually believed in God for 20 years before I met Corridan, and when I began to again I didn't join his team . . . I went into another church.

"But the important thing is that through him and that assignment I got a new slant on life. They're welcome to their Oscars and the dough. I got something more out of it."

Perforation, Hemorrhage Make Ulcer Serious

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Peptic ulcer is not always a simple condition that can be cured by going on a milk diet and taking baking soda. Healing the lesion is the aim, so that it will not bleed or perforate. While in the majority of victims the ulcer closes without too much difficulty, there is no way of determining beforehand whether a particular lesion will behave or go on a rampage.

Perforation is the most dangerous and dramatic of all ulcer complications. It is a simple process in that the ulcer grows larger and deeper and finally raises through the wall of the stomach or intestine. When this occurs, acid and other digestive juices—along with anything else that is present in the stomach—will spill into the abdominal cavity.

It is an agonizing experience and the victim drops in his tracks and refuses to move. This is understandable as the slightest movement shifts the caustic juices into new areas. Pain is written in every line of the face, which is ashen and drenched with perspiration. Even breathing hurts and it is a struggle to talk.

Meanwhile the abdominal muscles become taut and hard as a board. When the physician attempts to examine the affected area, the sufferer cringes because he is afraid to be touched.

When this complication develops, operation is imperative and the sooner it is done, the better the outlook. The usual operation is not difficult as most surgeons do no more than close the perforated hole. This is followed by the liberal use of antibiotics and by blood transfusions.

Hemorrhage is another complication that adds to the seriousness of ulcer. In this condition, the lesion erodes a blood vessel and the blood loss depends upon the size of the involved vein or artery, and how soon a clot forms. Most hemorrhages cease spontaneously, but should bleeding continue, emergency surgery may be needed to save life.

Internal bleeding manifests itself in several ways. Vomiting black blood and passing tarry stools may be the first clues. When hemorrhage is more extensive, the victim feels weak, faint, and dizzy and unless something is done, he collapses.

Bed rest is essential and an ice-bag placed over the abdomen helps to shrink the bleeding blood vessel. Morphine allays apprehension and quiets the individual. Small but frequent feedings also are of value because food in the stomach encourages the cessation of bleeding.

STONES FROM INACTIVITY

A. M. writes: Can kidney stones be the result of inactivity due to leg amputation?

Yes. During prolonged rest from any cause, calcium has a tendency to leave the bones and pass out through the kidneys. An overabundance of this material encourages crystals to form and stones to develop.

Not in moderation. On the other hand, many attacks of diverticulitis have been traced to overindulgence. Consequently, individuals who harbor these pockets in the colon should not drink unless

Rural Civil Defense Is Important Too

True D. Morse, acting secretary of agriculture, has reassured Congress that the Agriculture Department is increasing its efforts to inform the rural population of the most feasible precautions to take in the event of an atomic disaster.

Much stress has been placed on the importance of protecting and evacuating large cities during such a catastrophe, but the tendency has been to overlook the farm residents because their abodes are not likely to be enemy targets.

What has been forgotten is that large amounts of radioactive fall-out spread over thousands of acres of productive farmland can become a more serious disaster than any industrial holocaust. Makeshift factories can be rebuilt from rubble in a relatively short time, but contaminated fields would be ready to produce again only after a lapse of years.

In a letter to a member of the House Agriculture Committee, Morse said top agriculture officials "have been kept fully informed regarding the hazards of fission products to agriculture, as fast as the basic technical information has been obtained." Morse continued: "This department and the Federal Civil Defense Administration are working in cooperation with AEC at the present time on the problem of contamination from radioactive fall-out as it applies to soils, crops, livestock and food supplies."

There is only one disconcerting paragraph in the Morse letter. That one says that "security restrictions" have prevented the farmers from having access to this information. It seems rather absurd to spend so much time, effort and money in compiling information designed to help a certain segment of the population in an emergency and then classify and file it without reporting its contents to those concerned.

The only net result such an action can produce is to confuse the farmers who now know there is information which could help them protect themselves and their property if they were allowed to see it.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

An Admiral's Contribution

Vice Admiral Wilson Brown had the extraordinary experience of serving as the naval aide to four presidents, Coolidge, Hoover, Roosevelt, and for a short time, Truman. Few men have had the opportunity of being so constantly with so many presidents of the United States.

In his memoirs which I read in the magazine, "American Heritage," he recounts this experience with President Truman:

"During the wakeful hours of the night before I had asked myself what was the most important problem of the war situation that I should bring to President Truman's attention while I still had the chance. I decided that the increasing Russian arrogance since Yalta was most important. Circumstances gave me a good opening, for I had the report of lend-lease that came to my desk each month for delivery to the President. And so when Leahy had finished his brief summing up of problems before the Joint Staff, I told President Truman about Stalin's bitter messages accusing us of bad faith in negotiations for the surrender of Austrian troops and of President Roosevelt's angry reply. I mentioned also Roosevelt's growing concern for the increasing number of reports of Russian misdeeds. I handed Mr. Truman an inventory of lend-lease supplies then en route to Russia—a perfectly amazing list of shiploads of locomotives, railroad cars, miles of track, trucks, artillery, gasoline, food—and stated that the Russian people were not being told where those vast stores came from, and that the Russian government never even said 'thank you' to us. I urged the President to take the list home and study it carefully at his leisure. 'Thank you, I will,' he said, and I felt confident that he would not forget the matter in the flurry of his first day of office."

It is a small episode but it opens the door to broad speculation as to what might have developed in American-Russian relations had Roosevelt lived out his fourth term. We have here authentic, internal evidence that Roosevelt was growing concerned over "the increasing number of reports of Russian misdeeds." This was after Yalta where Roosevelt gave Stalin more lands and souls than Stalin asked for. It was Roosevelt who suggested the restoration of Russia's "rights" in Manchuria, which effectively made it possible for Russia to conquer China and set up a Chinese Communist government in that country.

Roosevelt, we know, was not moving in the dark. He had conceived "The Grand Design," the assumption that American generosity would convince Stalin that this country had no imperialistic intentions, that we sought only to give but not to take.

Nobody has yet reported what Stalin thought of it all. In terms of Marxian dialectical materialism, he must have believed us to be stupid, because no nation could succeed in the struggle for existence which gave away its strength and potentials to its enemies. And Stalin knew who the next enemy of the United States would be because Lenin had announced it many years before.

Roosevelt's disappointment must have been unendurable. He had staked the fate of his nation on the correctness of his appraisal of Stalin's character. He had given to Russia—that is, to Stalin—$11,000,000,000 of America's wealth to win the Communist leader over to Roosevelt's conception of the future, embodied perhaps in the Atlantic Charter. He must have suspected or even known before his death, if we are to take the hint from Admiral Wilson Brown, that he was dealing with a bandit and a blackmailer who would demand and demand and demand and give nothing.

The tragedy for Roosevelt must have been that he knew that he was dying and that he could do nothing to undo the evils of Teheran and Yalta.

But this is not understandable: Why did he not call in Harry Truman, his inevitable successor, to tell him what he had in his thoughts? It will be recalled that when Truman took over, it was in an atmosphere of uncertainty and confusion. Truman had not been kept in touch with the situation. He played no such role as Richard Nixon does in the Eisenhower administration. Roosevelt must have known that Harry Truman could not be ready for transactions with Stalin. Nevertheless, Roosevelt took not one step to prepare his successor for the San Francisco or Potsdam conferences. It is perhaps a problem in psychology rather than politics.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Housewives haven't been told about it, but the Agriculture Department has quietly stopped its research in homemaking. This means an end to bulletins and pamphlets on consumer buying, home management, interior decorating, kitchen helps, home economics and related subjects.

Characteristically, this service to housewives will be transferred to do research for business firms. Both the funds and the personnel of the Agriculture Department will be assigned to food and nutrition research useful for marketing and processing for the meat packers, the canners and the food companies.

This move to eliminate household helps is an outgrowth of President Eisenhower's 1952 campaign speech against the government pamphlet, "Tools for Food Preparation and Dishwashing." Speaking all over the U.S.A., he held up this pamphlet as "a symbol of shameful wasting of tax funds."

Actually, Ike hadn't read the pamphlet, didn't know it was loaded with helpful hints to housewives and was one of the most popular pamphlets the government issued. After he moved into the White House, the Agriculture Department obliviously continued to publish the pamphlet. In fact, 15,000 new copies were printed and more than 22,000 copies mailed to inquiring housewives during the last two years. It had a bigger sale than ever before.

This column finally pointed out that Ike's famous symbol of waste was still being printed in greater quantities than ever, and when this news got to the White House it so infuriated the President, who still hadn't read the pamphlet, that he ordered it stopped.

Whereupon the Agriculture Department went to even greater lengths to please the President. It began cutting down on all public research aimed at helping housewives. Now the whole home-economics program has been cut out altogether.

Ohio's Democratic Congressman Ashley of Toledo took Senator Bricker to task for being too harsh on Ohio's duck population, which caused Mike Di Salle, ex-mayor of Toledo, to comment that Ashley's criticism had probably won the freshman congressman the vote of every duck in Ohio.

"Trouble is," added Di Salle, "that on election day all of Ohio's ducks are in Canada!"

It may seem strange for this writer, who was the first to expose the influence peddling of Henry Grunewald, to state, now that he's been convicted, that I feel sorry for him. Nevertheless, that is the case.

Grunewald was convicted on the basis of the Oliphant diary, a 3,000-page, closely typed record made by Charley Oliphant, former counsel of Internal Revenue, of every phone call he received, every caller who asked him for a favor.

That diary is now one of the most closely guarded secrets of Washington. It is held in the safe of an assistant secretary of the treasury. Originally it was sent to a congressional committee, which found the name of all sorts of big shots — from senators to cabinet members. Considered too hot to handle, it was sent back. The congressmen didn't want to touch it.

When the conversation ended, however, the U.S. ambassadress to Italy launched a barrage of questions which showed she had grasped every word of the briefing.

Indiana Politics

Senator Capehart of Indiana was pleased as punch when the Louisville Courier-Journal, after lampooning him for several years, cited him for outstanding achievement. It liked the way he had been investigating FHA corruption.

Though the Courier-Journal is published in Kentucky, just across the Ohio river from Indiana, it has considerable circulation in the senator's home state and he, a Republican, was not unhappy about getting kind words from a Democratic newspaper.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has also taken an editorial position in favor of a second toll bridge across the Ohio River from Louisville to Jeffersonville, Ind., and for keeping the old bridge on a toll basis. This was a matter on which the Indiana senator had taken no stand; but when he spoke at Jeffersonville the other day a delegation of citizens called on him to protest this plan.

Capehart listened carefully, finally said: "Why do you come to me with this? You talked to me about this two years ago and I told you then that I was for whatever you want."

"We remember that," piped one old fellow at the back of the room, "but the Courier-Journal has been buttering you up so pretty lately that we wanted to make sure you hadn't changed your mind."

International Law Plays Part In Defense Of Islands

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON—Time was when the mention of the phrase "international law" meant certain, well-defined principles of international conduct which history and custom had placed in a recognized code.

But today the words "international law" can be bandied about in public and few people question their real meaning in given situations. This may be due to unfamiliarity with the precedents or to forgetfulness.

Thus, in the new resolution backed by several Democratic senators who now want to reverse the decision taken by an overwhelming majority of both houses recently, which gave the President authority to defend Formosa and related areas, there occurs this language:

U. S. Recognizes Nationalists

"Whereas the United States under international law has no territorial rights or claims to the Matsu and Quemoy islands; and whereas a military defense of said islands by the United States subjects the United States to the charge of acts of aggression and involvement in a Chinese civil war; . . ."

But, under international law, the Republic of China is today the recognized government, and there is no involvement in a civil war from a legal standpoint if the United States continues to recognize the same government. To honor the request of a constituted government for military aid in resisting rebellion is a well-established principle of international law and, so far as the United States government is concerned, the Nationalist government is the constituted government.

In Greece, for example, the United States rendered military assistance to the constituted government a few years ago.

Other Legalizing Factors

Entirely apart from the principle of extending military aid to a recognized government, there are other facts which would legalize the action of the United States in defending the Quemoy and Matsu islands. Thus, the government of Red China took part in a major war in Korea against the United States and Allied forces. An armistice now has been signed, but an armistice is not a treaty of peace. It continues from the viewpoint of international law the legal conditions of a state of war which existed as against Red China before the armistice was signed.

This armistice, moreover, has been repeatedly violated by the Red Chinese. Americans captured during the war have not been returned as required by that agreement.

Yet so far afield have some American writers gone in their anxiety to appease the Red Chinese that the United States government now is blatantly accused of having a "guilty conscience" in ordering the release of the 76 Chinese students held in America during the Korean War.

One editorial in an eastern newspaper concedes that "it would have been foolhardy to have permitted persons who could aid the Chinese to return during the fighting" in Korea but argues that "after the fighting ceased, there was no moral or legal justification for retaining them."

U. S. To Be Commended

Since when does an armistice which stops the fighting also end the legal rights of two belligerents? The United States has very right to retain any foreign nationals during a state of war and, when an armistice comes, to return only those specified in the agreement. It is for a peace treaty, when duly signed and ratified, to say what disposition should be made of the foreign nationals and their property seized during a war. For, after all, it was a war in Korea—more than 140,000 Americans were killed or wounded in it.

The American government, therefore, cannot be rightly accused of having a sense of guilt but rather must be commended for doing a generous thing—not required by international law or the terms of the armistice—in giving up custody of the Red Chinese students. For they possess information about atomic physics and technical skills acquired during their stay in this country which could be used against American troops if the existing armistice breaks down and the Korean War is resumed. Also, since when does a government formally declare an "aggressor" by the United Nations, and still unpunished, acquire "rights" under international law?

Baering Down On The News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Ratification of the Bonn codicils is the cleverest rumor we've inhaled since the invention of upside-down cake.

It took some doing for France to see eye-to-keyhole with the militaristic Prussian. Paris has been invaded oftener than a moonshiner's dog has been kicked.

The French have not forgotten Bismarck, Hohenzollern or Shickelgruber. The French school-boy learns his arithmetic on invasion numerals.

Even Bonn hesitated over staking blunderbuses to 500,000 West Germans with spastic trigger-fingers.

There are some wrist-cuffing marginations in the protocols of belligerence. Under Paragraph 182, Article 674, Section 99,622, there will be no heeling or heiling.

And that's only the first draft of the pink papers. The 500,000 rookheimers will not be permitted to go in action for leeberstramming, Hitlerhoosing or straffingbotchen.

They will not be permitted to throw remote-controlled darts at out-size wall maps. Nor to give the Schickelgruber salute unless they bend the elbow. Nor can they sing that song about the hoarse weasel.

The French are right. Can you go to sleep waiting for upstairs West Germans to drop the other 500,000 shoes?

The West German army will line up on the Russian border. One iron-ribbed verboten order will be no "about face."

They must keep one foot on the floor while waltzing the Blue Danube, the lids on their steins must be up between the hours of six and twelve and medals from the last front must be worn on the back.

Only then will the French asthma breathe freely and their sinuses return to sea-level.

We hope this is one treaty that works out instead of working loose. There is always a chance of the next dance being a goose-step.

New Slant On Life

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, April 5—(INS)—My gosh, my gosh, I my goshed the other morning when I saw a picture of a stage full of fellows taking bows and holding the Oscars they had won for the great picture "On The Waterfront."

My gosh, I continued to my gosh, Malcolm Johnson certainly has lost weight. I can't even see him in the picture. So I dropped down to the caption to see where he was standing in the midst of the beaming left to right, and it wasn't a case of his being wafer thin at all. He just wasn't there in that happy lineup, joining one and all in saying, "Shucks, it warn't nothing."

So a few hours later Malcolm and I were lunching. Am pleased to report that the man who won the Pulitzer prize for bravely collecting the bulk of the waterfront material from which Budd Schulberg wrote his fine script is looking well-fed. He's now a valued public relations man.

Mike Isn't Bitter

It was comforting, he said, to hear from so many of the newspaper guys and dolls that day, all of whom began the conversation with, "How do you like them bums out there taking all those bows and making all that dough when, after all, it was you etc. etc. etc."

Mike, as we know him and respect him, isn't bitter, though once he owned five per cent of the movie, an option he lost when the original company that had the property was frightened out of making it—having received threats of boycott action by waterfront officials, one of whom is now under indictment for robbing his own union.

Early in the spring of 1948 Edmond P. Bartnett, city editor of the old New York Sun, assigned Mike to look into the murder of Tom Collentine, a waterfront hiring boss. Collentine was the latest in a considerable string of victims.

"Lot of unrest down there," Bartnett said. "Maybe you can get a story out of it." Mike worked for six weeks, got nowhere. Nobody was talking. Not even the police. For a time he thought of chucking the assignment and admitting failure, but he hung on until one day he got a call from a former FBI man he knew who had taken a job with a trucking concern.

The FBI man put Mike next to an informer whom he instantly suspected. But the fellow had the lowdown on shakedowns, thievery, kickbacks, shylocks, shape-ups, and murder. Armed with that background he found Bill Keating in the DA's office and Keating showed him dusty files which lacked a bit of evidence here and a bit there to put the subjects of those files behind bars. Mike went after the additional evidence.

Dangerous Work

It was the first time Mike had ever heard of Meyer Lansky, who was described to him as "one of the brightest boys in the syndicate." He had never heard of the syndicate either, so there followed more weeks of work . . . dangerous work done without the power of subpoena or too many muscles.

The 24-part series began November 7, 1948. Instantly his phone began ringing. Strange voices warned him or his wife to stop the series or he'd be killed. "The calls worried my wife a lot," he remembered the other day, "but not me. I kept thinking of old Peg (Westbrook Pegler). If they hadn't killed him through the years they were not going to kill me."

It was through the articles that Mike met Father John Corridan, S. J., "the waterfront priest." Corridan deeply impressed Mike.

"He got me emotionally involved with the people of the waterfront," Mike said. "Until then I had just looked upon his assignment as a rattling good crime story. I didn't care whether the guys were exploited or not.

"But he changed me . . . just as later he changed Budd Schulberg. I don't think I actually believed in God for 20 years before I met Corridan, and when I began to again I didn't join his team . . . I went into another church.

"But the important thing is that through him and that assignment I got a new slant on life. They're welcome to their Oscars and the dough. I got something more out of it."

Perforation, Hemorrhage Make Ulcer Serious

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Peptic ulcer is not always a simple condition that can be cured by going on a milk diet and taking baking soda. Healing the lesion is the aim, so that it will not bleed or perforate. While in the majority of victims the ulcer closes without too much difficulty, there is no way of determining beforehand whether a particular lesion will behave or go on a rampage.

Perforation is the most dangerous and dramatic of all ulcer complications. It is a simple process in that the ulcer grows larger and deeper and finally raises through the wall of the stomach or intestine. When this occurs, acid and other digestive juices—along with anything else that is present in the stomach—will spill into the abdominal cavity.

It is an agonizing experience and the victim drops in his tracks and refuses to move. This is understandable as the slightest movement shifts the caustic juices into new areas. Pain is written in every line of the face, which is ashen and drenched with perspiration. Even breathing hurts and it is a struggle to talk.

Meanwhile the abdominal muscles become taut and hard as a board. When the physician attempts to examine the affected area, the sufferer cringes because he is afraid to be touched.

When this complication develops, operation is imperative and the sooner it is done, the better the outlook. The usual operation is not difficult as most surgeons do no more than close the perforated hole. This is followed by the liberal use of antibiotics and by blood transfusions.

Hemorrhage is another complication that adds to the seriousness of ulcer. In this condition, the lesion erodes a blood vessel and the blood loss depends upon the size of the involved vein or artery, and how soon a clot forms. Most hemorrhages cease spontaneously, but should bleeding continue, emergency surgery may be needed to save life.

Internal bleeding manifests itself in several ways. Vomiting black blood and passing tarry stools may be the first clues. When hemorrhage is more extensive, the victim feels weak, faint, and dizzy and unless something is done, he collapses.

Bed rest is essential and an ice-bag placed over the abdomen helps to shrink the bleeding blood vessel. Morphine allays apprehension and quiets the individual. Small but frequent feedings also are of value because food in the stomach encourages the cessation of bleeding.

STONES FROM INACTIVITY

A. M. writes: Can kidney stones be the result of inactivity due to leg amputation?

REPLY

Yes. During prolonged rest from any cause, calcium has a tendency to leave the bones and pass out through the kidneys. An overabundance of this material encourages crystals to form and stones to develop.

RESTRICTIONS

D. F. writes: Are cocktails harmful in diverticulitis?

REPLY

Not in moderation. On the other hand, many attacks of diverticulitis have been traced to overindulgence. Consequently, individuals who harbor these pockets in the colon should not drink unless

SELF-RATING OF ZERO

Mrs. T. writes: I'm a housewife and my nerve cells are down to zero. This makes me nervous and sleepless. What can I do?

REPLY

Take stock of your life situation and concentrate on those people and activities that make life enjoyable. You may be bored with life and if you are to be successful in regaining interest, you must find an incentive. Reading some of the many books on mental hygiene may help you to gain a perspective.

TOMORROW: Colles' fracture of the wrist.

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 5—(INS)—Barbara Stanwyck must be Ben Bogeaus' favorite star. He has just bought a third story for her, James M. Cain's book, "Love's Lovely Counterfeit" and you may remember that Barbara reached the peak of her stardom in another Cain story, "Double Indemnity."

"Love's Lovely Counterfeit" is Ben's next for RKO release and it's about a woman who becomes the tool of a chisler in a smalltown political fight. Virginia Van Upp will script.

The other two movies Barbara has made for Bogeaus are "Cattle Queen Of Montana" and "Escape To Burma" and this marks her third within the year.

Joanne Dru sounded very happy when she called to tell me she has the lead with Alan Ladd and Edward G. Robinson in "The Darkest Hour" for Alan's independent company.

"Thank heavens I can get out of the cowgirl outfits I've been wearing in westerns. The part calls for me to be glamorous—and maybe you think I'm not going to revel in wearing beautiful clothes for a change."

Joanne has another thing to celebrate. Ground was broken in Phoenix for the Paradise Valley Country Club in which she and her husband John Ireland are financially interested. They are hoping it turns out to be another Palm Springs Racquet Club.

Grace Kelly saw for the first time "Catch A Thief," the picture she made with Cary Grant for Paramount.

She spent the weekend in Palm Springs, a guest of Betsy and Cary Grant, and Don Hartman took down a print of "Every Girl Should Be Married," which he wrote and produced at RKO with Betsy and Cary.

Don was the center of attraction at the awards. He had Grace, Edith Head (another award winner), Mrs. Hartman and Grace's mother, Mrs. John Kelly, with him.

I was glad to see Bette Davis at the Academy Awards and to have a chance to talk with her. When she left for home, she said, "I will see you again soon. I am perfectly sure when Darryl Zanuck gets back April 15 I will be called to Hollywood again for re-takes on 'Sir Walter Raleigh'."

Bette said that she had been offered a number of pictures but hasn't decided on any one yet.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Cosmopolitan was a full month ahead of any of the other magazines with a complete Grace Kelly story.

Fur designer Al Teitelbaum, who played such an important part in persuading Mario Lanza to make another picture, whipped up a gold mist mink stole (whatever that is) for Mrs. Lanza as a gift from her husband.

Dick Haymes startled even the gateman at Columbia Pictures when he showed up with his beard shaved off.

The hottest comeback actor in years is Jimmy Cagney, and those of us who have known him for many years are mighty happy. He's getting one good picture after another.

Took No Chances In Pet Contest

STAMFORD, Conn., April 5 (AP)—Alan Diedrickson, 11, of Darien, took no chances in the "weird pet contest" at a local theater this week.

His pet deodorized skunk, Woodie, won first prize of a $25 savings bond.

But Alan had two white mice, a cat, four turtles, a snake, a frog, and a toad in reserve.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, April 5—(INS)—Barbara Stanwyck must be Ben Bogeaus' favorite star. He has just bought a third story for her, James M. Cain's book, "Love's Lovely Counterfeit" and you may remember that Barbara reached the peak of her stardom in another Cain story, "Double Indemnity."

"Love's Lovely Counterfeit" is Ben's next for RKO release and it's about a woman who becomes the tool of a chisler in a smalltown political fight. Virginia Van Upp will script.

The other two movies Barbara has made for Bogeaus are "Cattle Queen Of Montana" and "Escape To Burma" and this marks her third within the year.

Joanne Dru sounded very happy when she called to tell me she has the lead with Alan Ladd and Edward G. Robinson in "The Darkest Hour" for Alan's independent company.

"Thank heavens I can get out of the cowgirl outfits I've been wearing in westerns. The part calls for me to be glamorous—and maybe you think I'm not going to revel in wearing beautiful clothes for a change."

Joanne has another thing to celebrate. Ground was broken in Phoenix for the Paradise Valley Country Club in which she and her husband John Ireland are financially interested. They are hoping it turns out to be another Palm Springs Racquet Club.

Grace Kelly saw for the first time "Catch A Thief," the picture she made with Cary Grant for Paramount.

She spent the weekend in Palm Springs, a guest of Betsy and Cary Grant, and Don Hartman took down a print of "Every Girl Should Be Married," which he wrote and produced at RKO with Betsy and Cary.

Don was the center of attraction at the awards. He had Grace, Edith Head (another award winner), Mrs. Hartman and Grace's mother, Mrs. John Kelly, with him.

I was glad to see Bette Davis at the Academy Awards and to have a chance to talk with her. When she left for home, she said, "I will see you again soon. I am perfectly sure when Darryl Zanuck gets back April 15 I will be called to Hollywood again for re-takes on 'Sir Walter Raleigh'."

Bette said that she had been offered a number of pictures but hasn't decided on any one yet.

She is very happy with Gary Merrill and can't wait to see him.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Cosmopolitan was a full month ahead of any of the other magazines with a complete Grace Kelly story.

Fur designer Al Teitelbaum, who played such an important part in persuading Mario Lanza to make another picture, whipped up a gold mist mink stole (whatever that is) for Mrs. Lanza as a gift from her husband.

Dick Haymes startled even the gateman at Columbia Pictures when he showed up with his beard shaved off.

The hottest comeback actor in years is Jimmy Cagney, and those of us who have known him for many years are mighty happy. He's getting one good picture after another.

County Home Employes Seek Pay Boost

Letters were received by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday from Earl Grim, superintendent of the County Home and Infirmary, and Ray Messmer, superintendent of Sylvan Retreat, in which they request the commissioners to provide a $30 monthly pay increase for employes in the three institutions.

The letters were accompanied by petitions signed by all of the 129 employes. In addition to the monthly pay raise of $30 the workers said they wanted coverage under Social Security and also a system of accumulation of sick leave. They also want three days sick leave allowed without a doctor's certificate.

Both Commissioners James Orr and Charles N. Wilkinson said the matter will be considered when the time for making the tax levy arrives the middle of this month. Commissioner William H. Lemmert is still absent due to an illness.

A large box of candy was delivered to the commissioner's office yesterday by the family of a man who has been a patient in the County Infirmary. The gift was made in appreciation of the excellent treatment given the man, according to a note accompanying the candy.

Commissioners Orr and Wilkinson instructed that the candy be sent to the infirmary to be distributed to the patients.

Planning a trip? What kind of people will you meet? It all depends on you.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Going on a trip? What kind of people will you meet? So much depends on your own attitude, you're likely to find people very much alike wherever you are. An appreciation of the good qualities of others does more than anything else to promise pleasant relations with strangers. There are bound to be many encounters with strangers on a trip. You can make every one of them count toward enjoyment of your adventure.

Remember that courtesy, consideration, and understanding will be real and rewarding. You'll find generous assistance with tickets and reservations; and if you welcome companionship, it will be the kind you want to offer in return.

Be a better, more confident traveller. Know what to take with you and what services to expect. This prevents imposing on others and asking for more than your share. Then, to know what opportunities the trip offers and what points of interest to look for means you won't needlessly miss anything—and experiences will have greater meaning.

Interest, appreciation, and especially enthusiasm are all contagious. You can help others enjoy the trip more.

Jews To Mark Passover Here

Both local Jewish congregations will join in the observance of the holiday of Passover which will be ushered in at sunset today.

A community Seder will be held in B'er Chayim Congregation today at 6 p. m. Passover services will also be held Friday at 8 p. m.

Beth Jacob Congregation's schedule is as follows: Wednesday, 7 p. m., First Seder; Thursday, 9:30 a. m., services; 7 p. m. Second Seder; Friday, 9:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. services; Tuesday, April 12, services at 7:30 p. m.; Wednesday, April 13, services at 9:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; Thursday, April 14, 9:30 a. m. service of Yizkor (memorial).

The story of deliverance of ancient Israelites from Egyptian bondage will also be celebrated in homes. Jewish families will gather around festive boards on Passover Eve for the holiday service and meal, known as the Seder. Along with prayers and songs of thanksgiving, the head of the household will re-tell how the Jews toiled for Pharoah, how Moses grew up in the palace but could not brook the serfdom of his people and how he led the revolt against Egypt and ultimately liberated his people.

Associated with celebration of Passover is unleavened bread or matso, symbolizing the "bread of affliction." Eating it during Passover is supposed to remind Jews of slavery's bitterness and their divine duties to aid in the uplift of human beings

Atomic Reactor Blast Chances Termed Remote

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO, April 5 (AP)—Scientists are forced to deal with the remote possibility that atomic reactors will blow up and spread their radioactive poisons over the country, Dr. Edward Teller, noted figure in the development of the hydrogen bomb, said yesterday.

The chances are remote because of elaborate safeguards. But the possibility has to be considered because accidents can happen in spite of everything, Dr. Teller told a Western conference on atomic energy.

A reactor explosion would not be like the blast of an atomic bomb, he added. It would be a flareup that might disintegrate the structure and scatter its tons of "hot" material into the air as fine particles.

The danger thereafter would be the fallout of this material over a wide area.

Dr. Teller spoke as a member of an advisory committee on the Atomic Energy Commission. This committee passes upon the safety characteristics of reactor design and operation.

Dr. Teller disclosed that the first death from an atomic explosion occurred at Los Alamos shortly after a circular was distributed to the personnel saying the laboratory had completed its big job successfully without a fatality.

All personnel in the A-bomb laboratory were well trained and aware of the dangers and every safety precaution was taken.

But one of the young scientists, Dr. Harry K. Daglian, violated a safety rule by going to work alone on fissionable material, Dr. Teller said. His hand slipped. There was a flareup like the sputter of an arc welder and he was subjected to enormous heat and radiation. He died later.

Later another Los Alamos scientist, Dr. Louis Slotin, met death under similar circumstances. Rules were violated somewhere, and something slipped while Slotin was at work.

Science Is Improving Soils For Engineering Purposes

Dr. Alan S. Yet he and the others agreed that even at the present stage of development, the techniques offer immediate possibilities for application in certain uses, such as making "fairly adequate" roads for military use in remote areas where gravel or asphalt might not be readily available for making a load-bearing surface on sandy, clayey or swampy soils.

The experts also noted that supplies of gravel and coarse aggregate in the United States are "depleting" due to road building in the past, and that current and projected building will intensify the problem.

Fairgo To Retain 10-Day Race Meet

Cumberland will continue to have a 10-day racing meet as the result of the House of Delegates killing Senate Bill 346 early Tuesday morning after having approved it on Monday at 5:15 p. m.

If the bill had passed it would have given Maryland tracks 34 more days of racing and extended Cumberland's meeting from 10 to 12 days.

The 10-day session at Fairgo remains August 3 to 13.

Getthere Jack Cops 5th In Row At Gulfstream

Confirms Ranking As Top 2-Year-Old To Race In Florida

MIAMI, Fla., April 5 (AP)—Getthere Jack, scoring his fifth victory to maintain an unbeaten record, confirmed his ranking as best two-year-old to race in Florida this winter by winning the $10,000 Juvenile Stakes at Gulfstream Park today.

The fast gelding, an offspring of Bimelech and By Sea, owned by the Lily-Ann Stable of Joan and John Dordan of Yonkers, N. Y., and Miami, came within one fifth of a second of the track record for 4½ furlongs by covering the sprint in :52 4/5.

Swoon's Son, racing for E. Gay Drake, was a length and a quarter behind Getthere Jack at the finish. The place runner led Lou Santore's Flying Teddy by a half length. Needles, representing the D. and H. Stable, was a length out of the money.

Getthere Jack was a $4.80 favorite of the estimated crowd of 11,000.

Steve Brooks sent Getthere Jack to the front at the start and the free-running gelding opened a two-length lead on the stretch turn. However he went wide in his first attempt at negotiating a turn and Swoon's Son cut to the inside and narrowed Getthere Jack's margin to three quarters of a length at the sixteenth pole.

Brooks brought his whip into play and Getthere Jack responded instantaneously. He again was increasing his advantage at the finish. Swoon's Son raced gamely but was no match for the winner. Flying Teddy and Needles finished well after starting slowly.

Getthere Jack earned $13,250 from a gross purse of $18,000 to boost his earnings $26,300. He will be shipped to Belmont Park this week to begin training for the Juvenile Stakes there, according to Trainer J. J. Weipert Jr.

Getthere Jack Cops 5th In Row At Gulfstream

MIAMI, Fla., April 5 (AP)—Getthere Jack, scoring his fifth victory to maintain an unbeaten record, confirmed his ranking as best two-year-old to race in Florida this winter by winning the $10,000 Juvenile Stakes at Gulfstream Park today.

The fast gelding, an offspring of Bimelech and By Sea, owned by the Lily-Ann Stable of Joan and John Dordan of Yonkers, N. Y., and Miami, came within one fifth of a second of the track record for 4½ furlongs by covering the sprint in :52 4/5.

Swoon's Son, racing for E. Gay Drake, was a length and a quarter behind Getthere Jack at the finish. The place runner led Lou Santore's Flying Teddy by a half length. Needles, representing the D. and H. Stable, was a length out of the money.

Getthere Jack was a $4.80 favorite of the estimated crowd of 11,000.

Steve Brooks sent Getthere Jack to the front at the start and the free-running gelding opened a two-length lead on the stretch turn. However he went wide in his first attempt at negotiating a turn and Swoon's Son cut to the inside and narrowed Getthere Jack's margin to three quarters of a length at the sixteenth pole.

Brooks brought his whip into play and Getthere Jack responded instantaneously. He again was increasing his advantage at the finish. Swoon's Son raced gamely but was no match for the winner. Flying Teddy and Needles finished well after starting slowly.

Getthere Jack earned $13,250 from a gross purse of $18,000 to boost his earnings $26,300. He will be shipped to Belmont Park this week to begin training for the Juvenile Stakes there, according to Trainer J. J. Weipert Jr.

Radio And Television

Tennessee Ernie

Sooner or later we're all going to have to turn our attention to Tennessee Ernie Ford who seems to be all over the place. Tennessee Ernie now has a television show five times a week (NBC-TV noon EST Mondays through Fridays), a radio show (CBS 7:30 p.m. EST Monday through Fridays); he has made records that have sold in the millions and, in his spare time, he is a guest on such shows as "I Love Lucy," Red Skelton and "Toast of the Town." And then when time hangs real heavy on his hands, he plays nightclubs How can you ignore a man like that?

Tennessee Ernie—it seems somehow indecent to call him Mr. Ford—is a squirrel-eyed, bemoustached man from the mid-South (as opposed to the way deep South) who talks about hominy grits with overpowering authority and sings hillbilly songs as if he lived that way. His television show is likely to open with Ernie singing something like "Look straight ahead, you'll find your troubles gone." The sky is shining and bright and there's a whole new day ahead of you, he carols. That kind of song.

In fact, most of the songs on this show are so resolutely designed to cheer us up that they may just wind up doing the opposite thing. One day Molly Bee, one of Ernie's assistants, dressed up as a nurse and fell to singing: "Will their bundle of joy be a darling girl or a darling boy" and the very next day Tennessee Ernie was singing away about the Chattanooga shoeshine boy who is "a great big bundle of joy." As I say, the joy-type songs on this show are inclined to get out of hand.

Apart from that, it's not a bad daytime show, shapeless, informal and harmless. After his opening song, Tennessee Ernie is likely to tell us what he did over the weekend, the language remaining firmly in the Tensessee hills. "Ah been pea-picking at San Bernardino. I lak to go to San Bernardino. Mah wife's people lives up there. And can that woman cook! Ah cain't eat it cause ah'm on a diet but ah can watch. Mah eyeballs gained 10 pounds."

Actually the accent isn't that thick but what Tennessee Ernie elects to talk about is right out of the Tennessee hills. The other day the president of the IGA chain stores came on the show and in recognition of "your great contribution to daytime television" gave Ernie a lifetime supply of hominy grits and another lifetime supply of Crush Puppy Biscuits. "This man," said Tennessee Ernie, "buys food for 850,000 families. It takes a lot of buttermilk to make biscuits for that many folks."

Or he may start talking about how to fry catfish or how to make "porcupine meat bawls," a couple of southern delicacies I have not yet sampled. That 'ast one caused a small controversy and dozens of housewives wrote in differing recipes for "porcupine meat bawls."

"Ah'm still willin' to hear all sides," said Ernie, "includin' the porcupines. Tear off a quill and write me a letter."

In between songs sung by Ernie, Molly Bee, Doris Drew and Skip Farrell and played by Jack Fascinato's orchestra, Ernie may read classified ads that have come to his attention. One was for a Dodge sedan fully equipped with heater, radio and Geiger counter ("Probably driven by a little old lady prospector.") or a Stradivarius violin still in the hands of the original owner ("Somebody's pullin' mah leg.") It's that kind of humor—mild, self-deprecatory and terribly southern.

There is a certain amount of horseplay. One day Ernie taught his orchestra leader, Jack Fascinato, how to milk a cow—a real live cow that had been used earlier as a prop for a song duet. Or he may trade terrible jokes with a puppet duck named Webster Webfoot ("You heard about the feller ate duck, feathers and all. He got a little down in the mouth.")

The songs range from Cole Porter to something called "I'm Hogtied To You" and even hymns. Something for everybody.

Contract Bridge

by Josephine Culbertson

TOO PERSISTENT

SOUTH in the following deal was one of those countless players who will never "let go" when they hold a long, semi-solid suit. Anyone listening to their insistent rebidding of that suit, to the exclusion of all other considerations, might well get the idea that these players bid in a sort of vacuum, without any partner.

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ K Q J 8 7 5 ♥ K 7 6 4 3 ♦ A ♣ 5
♠ 10 4 3 ♥ 9 ♦ K Q 10 7 2 ♣ Q 10 6 4	N W E S	♠ 6 2 ♥ Q J 10 8 ♦ J 9 8 6 4 3 ♣ 7
	♠ A 9 ♥ A 5 2 ♦ 5 ♣ A K J 9 8 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

Beyond question, South's club suit was good, but it certainly was not good enough for the lip service (in a literal sense) that South gave to it. It was plain from the bidding that North was very short or even void in clubs, and so there was a distinct danger that a club slam would come to grief—as it actually did.

It is true that the club break was unlucky and that South would have "sailed home" if he had found a better position of the missing trumps, but perhaps South was being punished for being so persistent and single minded. The hard fact is that six spades would have been a far superior contract—indeed, North could have taken all 13 tricks at spades.

South should have reasoned that North had been duly impressed by South's jump to three clubs and his next rebid of that suit, and would not have hesitated to support South with even two low clubs. Actually, however, North conveyed the strongest sort of warning against clubs. He not only rebid his spades but then mentioned a second suit, hearts, at the four-level. Surely, this was a message that South could ignore only at his own peril. Instead of bidding clubs for the third time, South should have supported North's spade suit.

Tennessee Ernie

Sooner or later we're all going to have to turn our attention to Tennessee Ernie Ford who seems to be all over the place. Tennessee Ernie now has a television show five times a week (NBC-TV noon EST Mondays through Fridays), a radio show (CBS 7:30 p.m. EST Monday through Fridays); he has made records that have sold in the millions and, in his spare time, he is a guest on such shows as "I Love Lucy," Red Skelton and "Toast of the Town." And then when time hangs real heavy on his hands, he plays nightclubs How can you ignore a man like that?

Tennessee Ernie—it seems somehow indecent to call him Mr. Ford—is a squirrel-eyed, bemoustached man from the mid-South (as opposed to the way deep South) who talks about hominy grits with overpowering authority and sings hillbilly songs as if he lived that way. His television show is likely to open with Ernie singing something like "Look straight ahead, you'll find your troubles gone." The sky is shining and bright and there's a whole new day ahead of you, he carols. That kind of song.

In fact, most of the songs on this show are so resolutely designed to cheer us up that they may just wind up doing the opposite thing. One day Molly Bee, one of Ernie's assistants, dressed up as a nurse and fell to singing: "Will their bundle of joy be a darling girl or a darling boy" and the very next day Tennessee Ernie was singing away about the Chattanooga shoeshine boy who is "a great big bundle of joy." As I say, the joy-type songs on this show are inclined to get out of hand.

Apart from that, it's not a bad daytime show, shapeless, informal and harmless. After his opening song, Tennessee Ernie is likely to tell us what he did over the weekend, the language remaining firmly in the Tensessee hills. "Ah been pea-picking at San Bernardino. I lak to go to San Bernardino. Mah wife's people lives up there. And can that woman cook! Ah cain't eat it cause ah'm on a diet but ah can watch. Mah eyeballs gained 10 pounds."

Actually the accent isn't that thick but what Tennessee Ernie elects to talk about is right out of the Tennessee hills. The other day the president of the IGA chain stores came on the show and in recognition of "your great contribution to daytime television" gave Ernie a lifetime supply of hominy grits and another lifetime supply of Crush Puppy Biscuits. "This man," said Tennessee Ernie, "buys food for 850,000 families. It takes a lot of buttermilk to make biscuits for that many folks."

Or he may start talking about how to fry catfish or how to make "porcupine meat bawls," a coupie of southern delicacies I have not yet sampled. That last one caused a small controversy and dozens of housewives wrote in differing recipes for "porcupine meat bawls."

"Ah'm still willin' to hear all sides," said Ernie, "includin' the porcupines. Tear off a quill and write me a letter."

In between songs sung by Ernie, Molly Bee, Doris Drew and Skip Farrell and played by Jack Fascinato's orchestra, Ernie may read classified ads that have come to his attention. One was for a Dodge sedan fully equipped with heater, radio and Geiger counter ("Probably driven by a little old lady prospector.") or a Stradivarius violin still in the hands of the original owner ("Somebody's pullin' mah leg.") It's that kind of humor—mild, self-deprecatory and terribly southern.

There is a certain amount of horseplay. One day Ernie taught his orchestra leader, Jack Fascinato, how to milk a cow—a real live cow that had been used earlier as a prop for a song duet. Or he may trade terrible jokes with a puppet duck named Webster Webfoot ("You heard about the feller ate duck, feathers and all. He got a little down in the mouth.")

The songs range from Cole Porter to something called "I'm Hogtied To You" and even hymns. Something for everybody.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Be careful when you wear your fur coat not to wear jewelry that will rub the fur thin. Do not always carry your handbag over your arm at the same place each time you wear your coat. Try to distribute the wear the coat will take.

Contract Bridge

by Josephine Culbertson

TOO PERSISTENT

SOUTH in the following deal was one of those countless players who will never "let go" when they hold a long, semi-solid suit. Anyone listening to their insistent rebidding of that suit, to the exclusion of all other considerations, might well get the idea that these players bid in a sort of vacuum, without any partner.

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ K Q J 8 7 5 ♥ K 7 6 4 3 ♦ A ♣ 5
♠ 10 4 3 ♥ 9 ♦ K Q 10 7 2 ♣ Q 10 6 4	N W E S	♠ 6 2 ♥ Q J 10 8 ♦ J 9 8 6 4 3 ♣ 7
	♠ A 9 ♥ A 5 2 ♦ 5 ♣ A K J 9 8 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

Beyond question, South's club suit was good, but it certainly was not good enough for the lip service (in a literal sense) that South gave to it. It was plain from the bidding that North was very short or even void in clubs, and so there was a distinct danger that a club slam would come to grief—as it actually did.

It is true that the club break was unlucky and that South would have "sailed home" if he had found a better position of the missing trumps, but perhaps South was being punished for being so persistent and single minded. The hard fact is that six spades would have been a far superior contract—indeed, North could have taken all 13 tricks at spades.

South should have reasoned that North had been duly impressed by South's jump to three clubs and his next rebid of that suit, and would not have hesitated to support South with even two low clubs. Actually, however, North conveyed the strongest sort of warning against clubs. He not only rebid his spades but then mentioned a second suit, hearts, at the four-level. Surely, this was a message that South could ignore only at his own peril. Instead of bidding clubs for the third time, South should have supported North's spade suit.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;

Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.

In Memoriam

CATLETT—In loving memory of Raymond H. Catlett, who died 2 years ago today, April 6, 1953.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days.
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Jane & Auggie.

IZAT—A tribute of love to the memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather WILLIAM who departed this life eight years ago today—April 6, 1947.
A beautiful memory, a smiling face,
A broken link we can never replace,
Til memory fades and life departs,
You'll live forever in our hearts.
LOVING WIFE Anna, Son Paul, Daughter-in-law Mary Alice, and Grandson Paul Jr.

Mishap Victim Still Critical

Paul Tressler, 26, of Mt. Lake Park, is reported in critical condition at Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, with injuries sustained in a highway accident Monday night on U. S. Route 50, near Keyser.

He suffered a fractured pelvis, numerous fractures of the left leg, a fracture of the upper right leg, and cuts on the face and arms.

Cpl. F. H. Tribett of the West Virginia State Police Detachment at Keyser said that Tressler was traveling up Allegheny Front when he fell asleep and crashed into a tree on the left side of the highway. Tressler traveled approximately 100 feet on the left side before smashing the tree.

Cpl. Tribett said that Tressler was trapped in the truck after it turned over, and it took more than two hours to get him out. The truck was loaded with bottled beer and canned food, which was spread over the highway. The truck was owned by Paul W. Hoye, Oakland, who was traveling behind Tressler and discovered the accident. Hoye was approximately one-half hour behind Tressler.

Md. Tax Setup Legally Sound, Officials Say

Confusion Caused Some Question

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS, April 5 (AP)—Legislative leaders and top state officials expressed confidence today that Maryland's new tax program is legally sound despite its enactment in a confused and riotous windup of the General Assembly early this morning.

Some veteran legislators believe there is a possibility of tax suits arising out of certain features of the 30-million-dollar program but even they doubt the success of any such ventures.

Atty. Gen. Sybert and Dr. Carl N. Everstine, head of the Department of Legislative Reference, both expressed the opinion legislative procedures were properly conducted. And Gov. McKeldin said this afternoon, "If they say it's all right, then it is."

The question arose whether the governor's 269 million dollar budget might be in jeopardy over action by the Senate and House on certain tax bills which came out of a conference committee without having been referred to it.

Bill Reconsidered

One was a bill previously passed by the House to level gross receipts taxes at 2 per cent, which had the effect of reducing taxes on railroads from 2½ per cent to 2 per cent and upping those on utilities from 1½ to 2 per cent. It would save railroads nearly half a million dollars but net the State a total of $864,000 through higher utility taxes.

The Senate, which had never considered the bill before, refused to give the railroads tax relief and put that $455,000 back in the tax plan.

If any suits arose out of the late goings on it was predicted that utilities or railroads would launch them.

Spokesmen for both the Western Maryland Railway and the Gas and Electric Co. in Baltimore acknowledged there was a possibility they might contest the utilities tax measure but were not certain.

A Western Maryland attorney said the firm's general counsel, Vice President William C. Purnell, would be asked to look into the matter. A gas and electric spokesman said no formal consideration had been given to it by the management but indicated that it would be examined soon.

Racing Bill Killed

The other bill, passed by the Senate to give race tracks an extra 34 days of racing, was also included in the compromise and had never previously been before the House. Delegates, after angry charges that it was "being forced down our throats," passed it yesterday afternoon with the understanding it was necessary to balance the budget.

Senators refused and this brought about one of the stormiest endings of a General Assembly that veteran observers could recall. Feeling had been running deep between both houses throughout the final week of the session and on a previous occasion the House refused to return to the Senate property assesments bill so that body could kill it.

Heart Group Gets Citation

Few Controversial Bills Manage To Get By In 1955 Session Of General Assembly

ANNAPOLIS, April 5 (AP) — Very few of the bills which provoked controversy in the 1955 Maryland General Assembly made it through the legislative mill, a survey showed today.

Those which were passed and—if approved by Gov. McKeldin—soon will affect the Maryland citizen and taxpayer, were chiefly money bills like:

1. The 269-million-dollar budget. State income taxes will be withheld from paychecks starting July 1. Corporation income taxes, raised from 4 to 4½ per cent, will be due at the end of the tax year. Exemptions will be a flat $800 per person instead $1,000 for the taxpayer and wife and $600 for each other dependent. Companies which lease items instead of buying them and which purchase out of state items "not readily obtainable" in Maryland will have to pay a sales tax on them. No other change in the sales tax. Utilities will pay two instead of 1½ per cent on their gross receipts.

2. Annual assessments — instead of waiting until June 1, 1956, State assessors will begin revising real estate valuations this year.

3. Controlled surplus—only two-million dollars may be thrown into the State's general funds at the end of the tax year. The rest will have to be used to help pay building construction, taking a load off the State real estate taxpayer. He is the only one who foots the bill for such construction now.

Other bills passed during the 90-day meeting of the General Assembly would change the means of executing criminals from the gallows to the gas chamber, make the use of voting machines mandatory throughout Maryland by November, 1956, revise workmen's compensation laws, give State Police $500 across-the-board raises, include State employes in the federal social security system, enable Baltimore City to tap the Susquehanna River for its water supply, and limit those who may place children for adoption.

The casualties in the session ranged all the way from the perennial bonus for service veterans to a spanking-new plan of variable annuities, called the "coming thing" in the insurance field.

The House killed one bonus proposal which did embody a new feature—financing it through a State-operated lottery. Sen. Phoebus (R-Somerset) proposed a bonus paid for by taxes on whisky and beer. It was passed by the Senate but died in House committee.

The variable annuities bill passed the House but died in the Senate Judicial Committee. This would have opened the way for established or new insurance companies to sell policies under which premiums would go toward purchase of "units" in common stock shares and similar investments.

When the policy is paid up, instead of drawing a flat sum, the subscriber would be paid according to the dividends earned by the "units" which his premiums had bought through the years. Backers of the plan, saying it has been used in some company and teacher pension programs but never opened to the general public, hailed as a safeguard for a long-term investor against inflation.

Other measures which failed would have:

1. Established a minimum scale of wages and hours for some workers not covered by federal law. They died after it was sent to the Senate with a House amendment eliminating virtually anyone handling seafood and farm products.

2. Banned union membership as a condition of getting or keeping a job. The Senate Labor Committee reported this bill unfavorably and the rest of the Senate joined it in rejecting the measure.

3. Required annual inspection of automobiles. This was hung in Senate after passing the House.

4. Prohibiting telephone wiretapping. This passed the Senate, died in the House.

5. Recodified the election laws with changes in provisions restricting politicians.

6. Banned rockfishing in January and February.

7. Provided $50,000 for an investigation of the roads commission.

The House passed two bills on this, one for an investigation by a legislative committee and the other by the Fiscal Research Bureau, but the Senate accepted neither.

8. Allowed the use of chemical tests as evidence in drunken driving cases. The house passed it but the Senate Judiciary Committee turned thumbs down on it.

9. Exempted certain materials used in newspaper production from the sales tax. This died in the House Ways and Means Committee after passage by the Senate.

10. Raised teachers' pay by $400 a year. The Ways and Means Committee held it up.

11. Made it unlawful to ban anyone from a public place because of race, color or national origin.

State, Federal Tax Returns Due In 9 Days

It isn't a very pleasant reminder but your federal and state income tax returns are due for filing on Friday, April 15, which is just 9 days away.

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service with offices in the local Post Office yesterday said that the bulk of the business has been taken care of, although quite a few residents are still reporting to the offices daily for assistance in filing their returns.

The offices are open this week from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Saturday.

About the only consolation as far as the state income tax is concerned, is that it can be paid quarterly. Edward V. Welsh, who is in charge of the local office at 9 Market Street yesterday said the "heavy load" of business is expected next week.

At present at least 150 persons have been coming to the office each day to file their returns. Those paying cash and have their forms filled out need not wait but go directly to the cashier.

Those paying their tax by check leave their forms and the check with one of the auditors on duty, Welsh pointed out. There are three employes and the cashier to assist residents in filing returns.

The office is open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday although it will be closed on Good Friday this week. If a person chooses to pay his tax by the quarter, payments are due on April 15, July 15, September 15 and December 15.

Welsh said that in the event a person misses a quarterly payment, the entire balance must be paid in one lump sum.

The Maryland return covers income received by the taxpayer during the calendar year 1954.

Surplus Food Registration Shows Drop

There was a decline in the county-wide registration for surplus food Monday and yesterday compared with the corresponding days last month.

Red Cross branches throughout the county reported some 1,116 families certified in the past two days. All branches will continue their enrollment today.

Meanwhile, the Associated Charities here also reported a drop in the number applying for surplus foods. Officials of the Red Feather agency said 275 applications were taken Monday and yesterday. The enrollment for the May distribution will end at 4 p. m. today.

Associated Charities spokesmen said many former applicants have gone back to work and are not signing up for help next month. The agency certified 455 for food to be received this month.

In Cumberland, where 187 have been certified in two days, the Red Cross office in the Post Office building is open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. At Frostburg, where 242 have registered this week, registrars will be at the Fire Hall from 9 a. m. until noon.

In Lonaconing the registration is conducted in the Red Cross center on Main Street from 1 until 3 p. m. Some 201 have been enrolled there.

Mt. Savage registration is held at the VFW Home from 1 to 3 p. m., where 110 have been enrolled so far.

For the Westernport-Luke area registrations are being received at the Devon Club in Luke from 1 until 3:30 p. m. The total in two days there has been 84.

Barton registers in the Fire Hall from 9 a. m. until noon. In two days 127 families have been signed. Midland reports 97 for Midland Gilmore and National. Registration center is the Midland Fire Hall from 1 until 3 p. m.

Eckhart, where registrations are being received at Thomas' Grocery from 9 a. m. until noon, some 68 have been enrolled so far.

Brooks Hotel Is Opened On Baltimore Ave.

The former York Hotel located at 202 Baltimore Avenue was reopened yesterday under new management and will be known as the Brooks Hotel.

The four-story brick building owned by Patsy Idoni has been redecorated throughout, according to Jacob B. Shanholtzer, 225 Baltimore Avenue, manager.

Shanholtzer, who is an engineer on the west end of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, yesterday said the modern facilities are located on the second, third and fourth floors.

New furniture has been included in the renovation of the hotel which has 34 sleeping rooms with tub and showers on each floor. On the first floor of the building are a shoe shop, barber shop and grill.

Television has been installed in the lobby located on the second floor. The hotel, located directly across the street from Central YMCA is about the second oldest hotel in Cumberland.

Originally it was known as the Walton Hotel, Shanholtzer pointed out. Desk clerk will be Charles Campbell. The hotel had been closed since last August and reopened for business yesterday.

Youth Is Indicted In Westernport Cutting Spree

The sailor, Raymond Edward Vinci, was a patient at Potomac Valley Hospital for some time after sustaining a two-and-one-half inch cut in his abdomen in the S&S Restaurant at Westernport about 1 a. m. December 30.

Witnesses said that the knifing occurred after an argument about the merits of the United States Navy.

Kearns last appeared in Circuit Court here May 15, 1953. At that time Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris sentenced him to a term not to exceed 18 months in the Maryland Reformatory for Males. He had been found guilty that time of wounding Donald R. Wilson, an 18-year-old Westernport companion, who was shot in the abdomen. Judge Harris said then that Kearns was emotionally unstable and needed psychiatric treatment and discipline. He was released a short time before the December 30 incident.

Although a number of indictments have been returned by the grand jury, the Kearns' case is the first one to be placed on the open docket in Circuit Court, thereby making it a public record.

Meanwhile, the grand jury will resume its deliberations this morning. Court attaches do not expect the grand jury to complete its activities before tomorrow.

Voting Machine Plan Started By County

Prepare To Discuss Finance Of Purchase

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday instituted plans for purchasing voting machines which must be used throughout Maryland in the 1956 election.

Allegany is one of nine Maryland counties which must acquire and use voting machines under a bill enacted overwhelmingly by the General Assembly before it adjourned yesterday morning.

The Commisisoners announced plans for inviting officials of county banks to meet with them next Tuesday to discuss the possibilities of arranging a loan of $146,464 for the purchase of the machines.

Bill Is Enacted

The voting machine plan was assured when both the Senate and House voted almost unanimous approval Monday night to an amendment offered by Senator Robert B. Kimble to a House bill.

This bill, introduced by Del. Derr (R-Frederick) and co-sponsored by Del. Fred B. Driscoll of Allegany County, provided that voting machines would be mandatory throughout the state by the 1958 elections.

Senator Kimble amended the bill to advance the effective date to 1956 and won 24-1 approval in the Senate.

The amended bill was enacted when the House concurred with Kimble's amendment.

Del. Driscoll reported last night there was virtually no opposition in the House.

The Allegany County Delegation had earlier killed a bill introduced by Senator Kimble to make the use of voting machines mandatory here in 1956.

Study Financing

Representatives of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation of Jamestown, N. Y., will also be here to explain the device and answer any questions which might be asked. William A. Wilson, presi-

Centre Street Plans Service On Good Friday

Seven local clergymen will preach during the Good Friday Community Service at Centre Street Methodist Church from noon until 3 p. m., according to Rev. Howard M. Amoss, pastor.

Centre Street Methodist Church also will conduct its annual Communion service at 7:30 p. m. Holy Thursday as an anniversary of Jesus' last earthly night. The sanctuary choir will provide the musical leadership.

The seven sermons on the last words of Christ from the cross will be preached by Rev. Harold L. May, assistant pastor of Centre Street Church; Rev. Carl Johnson Jr., pastor of First Christian Church; Rev. Maurice Robertson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church; Rev. John Bayley Jones, pastor of the Frostburg First Methodist Church; Dr. Crates S. Johnson, Rev. W. W. Patterson, pastor of LaVale Methodist Church, and Rev. Edgar W. Hammersla, pastor of Central Methodist Church.

Appropriate music will precede each of the sermons. Miss Josephine Kompanek, soprano, will sing "Oh All Ye That Travel," before the first word. Rudulph Kompanek, tenor, and W. Cletus Hartsock, baritone, will sing a duet, "So Thou Liftest Thy Divine Petition."

As an anthem after the third word, the choir, with Miss Kompanek, Hartsock and James Hager as soloists, will sing "Woman, Behold Thy Son." As a solo Hartsock later will sing "God, My Father, Why Hast Thou Forsaken Me?"

Charles I. Sager, baritone and choir director, will sing "Before The Cross" preceding the sermon on the sixth word. As closing anthems the choir will sing "It Is Finished" and "Father Into Thy Hands I Commend My Spirit."

Mrs. Kenneth F. Beck is the organist.

Children Tamper With Ropes Used By Paint Crew

City officials yesterday warned children using the Valley Street Bridge that the span will be barricaded if ropes used by painting crews are tampered with.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said the paint crew yesterday lost 10 gallons of red lead paint after children loosened knots holding paint buckets.

Officials said the loosened ropes just happened to be the ones used to lower paint, and that if another rope had been tampered with, men working on a scaffold under the span might have been toppled off into Wills Creek some 30 feet below.

Commissioner Buchholtz said the action was "not a prank" since it affected the safety of men working under the span.

The American Bridge Company, which erected the superstructure of the span, is painting the steel bridge across Wills Creek.

Officials warned that children will have to take a great many additional steps if it is necessary to barricade the bridge for the protection of the workmen.

Annual Fire School Opens On April 30

Will Be Conducted In Frostburg Hall

The annual fire school for volunteers of the Allegany-Garrett County Firemen's Association will be conducted April 30 and May 1 at the Fire Hall in Frostburg.

David E. Kirk, association president, yesterday said outdoor drills will probably be held at the ball park in that community.

The school will be sponsored by the association and conducted by personnel of the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland headed by Robert C. Byrus.

Chairman of this year's annual school will be Jesse Jacobs of the Frostburg Fire Department. Assisting him are Harry DeHaven, chief of Baltimore Pike; Homer Ambrose, McCoole fire chief; Harry Hackett, of the Potomac Fire Company, Westernport and George Comp, chief at Deer Park.

Arrangements for the school were completed during a meeting Sunday at McCoole. Representatives are expected from the 30 volunteer companies which belong to the two-county association.

Kirk said the school will include the latest in fire fighting techniques and the use of modern equipment.

Owner Notified Firemen Won't Enter Building

The Mayor and Council yesterday instructed City Attorney Thomas B. Finan to notify the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company that the Fire Department will not let its men go into the company's building at 130 Wineow Street in case of fire.

The establishment was discussed by city officials yesterday afternoon during routine approval of a list of licenses to be issued for various city businesses.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said an order has been posted on the Fire Department bulletin board that no fireman is to go into the building.

Finance Commissioner John J. Long asked if Feldstein had been notified of the order.

Fire Chief V. A. Parker said the order was issued after an inspection by him and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum.

He said the order reflected the weight on the second floor and the contents and condition of the building.

Chief Parker said men will not go into the building, except in the case of a minor blaze, and that if a fire involved the second floor the department would have to concentrate on the surrounding property.

The building, he added, would not stand the weight if a fire were extensive.

Eight other directors still have one year remaining on their current terms. They are Carney, Dr. William S. Firey, Oscar H. Lashley Jr., Raymond H. Lapp Jr., Raymond C. Dorn, E. William Lowery, Kenneth Williams and Conrad Hohing Jr.

$2,400,000 Bond Issue Sold To Baltimore Firm

City Will Pay 2.52 Per Cent Interest

The City of Cumberland yesterday awarded a $2,400,000 bond issue to the Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore.

The action was taken when the Mayor and Council, at a special meeting held at 3 p. m., accepted the bid of the Baltimore firm for the issue which includes $2,000,000 of Cumberland Sewage Disposal Plant bonds, and $400,000 of Flood Protection bonds of 1949.

The bid, the lowest of eight, calls for an average interest rate of 2.522 per cent interest.

Is Termed Favorable

Finance Commissioner John J. Long said the bid was excellent in view of the present bond market.

He termed the bid "a favorable outcome" for the city and evidence that Cumberland's credit is good in the investment field.

Eight investment firms entered bids yesterday morning on the bond issue to finance the sewage treatment plant and flood control.

But tabulation of the bids continued past the noon hour forcing a recess of the Mayor and Council until 3 p. m. City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson was absent because of illness and Joseph M. Naughton, president of Second National Bank, and H. Warren Buckler, of Niles, Morrow, Yost and Dankmeyer, Baltimore bond attorneys for the city, took over the tabulation job.

Bidding besides Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company were Alex Brown and Son, Baltimore; Union Securities Corporation, Harriman-Ripley and Company, Lehman Brothers, Phelps-Fenn and Company, Halsey-Stuart and Company, Inc., and Drexel and Company, all of New York City.

Bids Go To 2.65

Interest rates on the largest single issue sold in the city's history ranged from 2.522 to 2.6596 per cent.

Last week, Gibson said general municipal obligation bonds were selling at about 2.42 per cent.

The bids were higher than on three issues sold last year including a $350,000 Urban Development and $150,000 Recreation issue which brought 2.25 per cent. A $150,000 Water Department issue payable first from water revenues and then from general taxation if water revenues are insufficient, was sold for 1.34 per cent.

Sewage disposal bonds will have the same status as water bonds since interest and principal will be paid from charges set by the city from sewage service, but carry the full faith and credit of the city which must levy ad valorem taxes to pay bond issues in event revenues prove insufficient in any one year.

Good Friday Service Set

The Words from the Cross will be given in a service of worship Friday at First Methodist Church, sponsored by the Tri-State Christian Fundamental Ministerium of Cumberland, Inc.

Rev. William J. Elliott, minister, last night said the service will begin at noon and will last until 3 p. m. Following the prelude, call to worship, invocation and Collect for the day, Rev. Abner G. Miller, pastor of the Mennonite Church, will speak on the "Word on Intercession."

Following a prayer and meditation by Rev. Cornelius B. Davis, pastor of Second Baptist Church, Rev. Roscoe Hall, of Calvary Methodist Church, Ridgeley, will speak on the "Word of Pardon."

Rev. J. P. Sheesley, of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church will then give the meditation which will be followed by the "Word of Human Care" with Rev. Sheesley saying the prayer and Rev. Hall the meditation.

The "Word of Loneliness," will be by Rev. Clarence A. Stogsdill, Brethren B.Y.C. Director with the meditation by Rev. L. O. McCartneysmith, First Brethren Church.

Rev. McCartneysmith also will have the "Word of Human Need," with Rev. Stogsdill in charge of the meditation. The "Word of Victory" prayer will be by Rev. Donald A. Vosseler, of the English Baptist Church, Frostburg, and Rev. Brooks N. Henry, First Baptist Church, Eckhart, will give the meditation.

The final word, the "Word of Cimmitment," will be the prayer said by Rev. Henry and the meditation by Rev. Vosseler. The service will be concluded by the benediction and postlude.

Today and tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. a special service will be held at the church with Communion at the Thursday evening service.

Valley Street Bridge To Be Blacktopped

The Valley Street Bridge will be closed Thursday to allow the contractor to apply a blacktop wearing course, according to Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

He said traffic will be stopped beginning at 7 a. m. and kept off the blacktop for 24 hours so the surface will have time to set.

The work will be done by the S. T. Brotemarkle Company, which is expected to complete work on the span during the next few weeks.

Buchholtz said remaining work includes some painting, the installation of lights, landscaping and a final cleanup.

Md. Tax Setup Legally Sound, Officials Say

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS, April 5 (AP)—Legislative leaders and top state officials expressed confidence today that Maryland's new tax program is legally sound despite its enactment in a confused and riotous windup of the General Assembly early this morning.

Some veteran legislators believe there is a possibility of tax suits arising out of certain features of the 30-million-dollar program but even they doubt the success of any such ventures.

Atty. Gen. Sybert and Dr. Carl N. Everstine, head of the Department of Legislative Reference, both expressed the opinion legislative procedures were properly conducted. And Gov. McKeldin said this afternoon, "If they say it's all right, then it is."

The question arose whether the governor's 269 million dollar budget might be in jeopardy over action by the Senate and House on certain tax bills which came out of a conference committee without having been referred to it.

Bill Reconsidered

One was a bill previously passed by the House to level gross receipts taxes at 2 per cent, which had the effect of reducing taxes on railroads from 2½ per cent to 2 per cent and upping those on utilities from 1½ to 2 per cent. It would save railroads nearly half a million dollars but net the State a total of $864,000 through higher utility taxes.

The Senate, which had never considered the bill before, refused to give the railroads tax relief and put that $455,000 back in the tax plan.

If any suits arose out of the late goings on it was predicted that utilities or railroads would launch them.

Spokesmen for both the Western Maryland Railway and the Gas and Electric Co. in Baltimore acknowledged there was a possibility they might contest the utilities tax measure but were not certain.

A Western Maryland attorney said the firm's general counsel, Vice President William C. Purnell, would be asked to look into the matter. A gas and electric spokesman said no formal consideration had been given to it by the management but indicated that it would be examined soon.

Racing Bill Killed

The other bill, passed by the Senate to give race tracks an extra 34 days of racing, was also included in the compromise and had never previously been before the House. Delegates, after angry charges that it was "being forced down our throats," passed it yesterday afternoon with the understanding it was necessary to balance the budget.

When the Senate late last night restored the railroad reduction, delegates figured this balanced the budget and requested the Senate to return the enacted race track bill.

Senators refused and this brought about one of the stormiest endings of a General Assembly that veteran observers could recall. Feeling had been running deep between both houses throughout the final week of the session and on a previous occasion the House refused to return to the Senate property assesments bill so that body could kill it.

ANNAPOLIS, April 5 (AP) — Very few of the bills which provoked controversy in the 1955 Maryland General Assembly made it through the legislative mill, a survey showed today.

Those which were passed and—if approved by Gov. McKeldin—soon will affect the Maryland citizen and taxpayer, were chiefly money bills like:

1. The 269-million-dollar budget. State income taxes will be withheld from paychecks starting July 1. Corporation income taxes, raised from 4 to 4½ per cent, will be due at the end of the tax year. Exemptions will be a flat $800 per person instead $1,000 for the taxpayer and wife and $600 for each other dependent. Companies which lease items instead of buying them and which purchase out of state items "not readily obtainable" in Maryland will have to pay a sales tax on them. No other change in the sales tax. Utilities will pay two instead of 1½ per cent on their gross receipts.

2. Annual assessments — instead of waiting until June 1, 1956, State assessors will begin revising real estate valuations this year.

3. Controlled surplus—only two-million dollars may be thrown into the State's general funds at the end of the tax year. The rest will have to be used to help pay building construction, taking a load off the State real estate taxpayer. He is the only one who foots the bill for such construction now.

Other bills passed during the 90-day meeting of the General Assembly would change the means of executing criminals from the gallows to the gas chamber, make the use of voting machines mandatory throughout Maryland by November, 1956, revise workmen's compensation laws, give State Police $500 across-the-board raises, include State employes in the federal social security system, enable Baltimore City to tap the Susquehanna River for its water supply, and limit those who may place children for adoption.

The casualties in the session ranged all the way from the perennial bonus for service veterans to a spanking-new plan of variable annuities, called the "coming thing" in the insurance field.

The House killed one bonus proposal which did embody a new feature—financing it through a State-operated lottery. Sen. Phoebus (R-Somerset) proposed a bonus paid for by taxes on whisky and beer. It was passed by the Senate but died in House committee.

The variable annuities bill passed the House but died in the Senate Judicial Committee. This would have opened the way for established or new insurance companies to sell policies under which premiums would go toward purchase of "units" in common stock shares and similar investments.

When the policy is paid up, instead of drawing a flat sum, the subscriber would be paid according to the dividends earned by the "units" which his premiums had bought through the years. Backers of the plan, saying it has been used in some company and teacher pension programs but never opened to the general public, hailed as a safeguard for a long-term investor against inflation.

Other measures which failed would have:

1. Established a minimum scale of wages and hours for some workers not covered by federal law. They died after it was sent to the Senate with a House amendment eliminating virtually anyone handling seafood and farm products.

2. Banned union membership as a condition of getting or keeping a job. The Senate Labor Committee reported this bill unfavorably and the rest of the Senate joined it in rejecting the measure.

3. Required annual inspection of automobiles. This was hung in Senate after passing the House.

4. Prohibiting telephone wiretapping. This passed the Senate, died in the House.

5. Recodified the election laws with changes in provisions restricting politicians.

6. Banned rockfishing in January and February.

7. Provided $50,000 for an investigation of the roads commission.

The House passed two bills on this, one for an investigation by a legislative committee and the other by the Fiscal Research Bureau, but the Senate accepted neither.

8. Allowed the use of chemical tests as evidence in drunken driving cases. The house passed it but the Senate Judiciary Committee turned thumbs down on it.

9. Exempted certain materials used in newspaper production from the sales tax. This died in the House Ways and Means Committee after passage by the Senate.

10. Raised teachers' pay by $400 a year. The Ways and Means Committee held it up.

11. Made it unlawful to ban anyone from a public place because of race, color or national origin.

State, Federal Tax Returns Due In 9 Days

It isn't a very pleasant reminder but your federal and state income tax returns are due for filing on Friday, April 15, which is just 9 days away.

A spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service with offices in the local Post Office yesterday said that the bulk of the business has been taken care of, although quite a few residents are still reporting to the offices daily for assistance in filing their returns.

The offices are open this week from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Saturday.

About the only consolation as far as the state income tax is concerned, is that it can be paid quarterly. Edward V. Welsh, who is in charge of the local office at 9 Market Street yesterday said the "heavy load" of business is expected next week.

At present at least 150 persons have been coming to the office each day to file their returns. Those paying cash and have their forms filled out need not wait but go directly to the cashier.

Those paying their tax by check leave their forms and the check with one of the auditors on duty, Welsh pointed out. There are three employes and the cashier to assist residents in filing returns.

The office is open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday although it will be closed on Good Friday this week. If a person chooses to pay his tax by the quarter, payments are due on April 15, July 15, September 15 and December 15.

Welsh said that in the event a person misses a quarterly payment, the entire balance must be paid in one lump sum.

The Maryland return covers income received by the taxpayer during the calendar year 1954.

Surplus Food Registration Shows Drop

There was a decline in the county-wide registration for surplus food Monday and yesterday compared with the corresponding days last month.

Red Cross branches throughout the county reported some 1,116 families certified in the past two days. All branches will continue their enrollment today.

Meanwhile, the Associated Charities here also reported a drop in the number applying for surplus foods. Officials of the Red Feather agency said 275 applications were taken Monday and yesterday. The enrollment for the May distribution will end at 4 p. m. today.

Associated Charities spokesmen said many former applicants have gone back to work and are not signing up for help next month. The agency certified 455 for food to be received this month.

In Cumberland, where 187 have been certified in two days, the Red Cross office in the Post Office building is open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. At Frostburg, where 242 have registered this week, registrars will be at the Fire Hall from 9 a. m. until noon.

In Lonaconing the registration is conducted in the Red Cross center on Main Street from 1 until 3 p. m. Some 201 have been enrolled there.

Barton registers in the Fire Hall from 9 a. m. until noon. In two days 127 families have been signed. Midland reports 97 for Mildand Gilmore and National. Registration center is the Midland Fire Hall from 1 until 3 p. m.

Eckhart, where registrations are being received at Thomas' Grocery from 9 a. m. until noon, some 68 have been enrolled so far.

Brooks Hotel Is Opened On Baltimore Ave.

The former York Hotel located at 202 Baltimore Avenue was reopened yesterday under new management and will be known as the Brooks Hotel.

The four-story brick building owned by Patsy Idoni has been redecorated throughout, according to Jacob B. Shanholtzer, 225 Baltimore Avenue, manager.

Shanholtzer, who is an engineer on the west end of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, yesterday said the modern facilities are located on the second, third and fourth floors.

New furniture has been included in the renovation of the hotel which has 34 sleeping rooms with tub and showers on each floor. On the first floor of the building are a shoe shop, barber shop and grill.

Television has been installed in the lobby located on the second floor. The hotel, located directly across the street from Central YMCA is about the second oldest hotel in Cumberland.

Originally it was known as the Walton Hotel, Shanholtzer pointed out. Desk clerk will be Charles Campbell. The hotel had been closed since last August and reopened for business yesterday.

Youth Is Indicted In Westernport Cutting Spree

Richard E. Kearns, an 18-year old Westernport youth, has been indicted by the April grand jury in Allegany County Circuit Court on a charge of assault with intent to kill a 19-year old Pekin sailor in a Christmas holiday cutting spree.

The sailor, Raymond Edward Vinci, was a patient at Potomac Valley Hospital for some time after sustaining a two-and-one-half inch cut in his abdomen in the S&S Restaurant at Westernport about 1 a. m. December 30.

Witnesses said that the knifing occurred after an argument about the merits of the United States Navy.

Kearns last appeared in Circuit Court here May 15, 1953. At that time Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris sentenced him to a term not to exceed 18 months in the Maryland Reformatory for Males. He had been found guilty that time of wounding Donald R. Wilson, an 18-year-old Westernport companion, who was shot in the abdomen. Judge Harris said then that Kearns was emotionally unstable and needed psychiatric treatment and discipline. He was released a short time before the December 30 incident.

Although a number of indictments have been returned by the grand jury, the Kearns' case is the first one to be placed on the open docket in Circuit Court, thereby making it a public record.

Meanwhile, the grand jury will resume its deliberations this morning. Court attaches do not expect the grand jury to complete its activities before tomorrow.

Voting Machine Plan Started By County

Prepare To Discuss Finance Of Purchase

The Board of Allegany County Commissioners yesterday instituted plans for purchasing voting machines which must be used throughout Maryland in the 1956 election.

Allegany is one of nine Maryland counties which must acquire and use voting machines under a bill enacted overwhelmingly by the General Assembly before it adjourned yesterday morning.

The Commisisoners announced plans for inviting officials of county banks to meet with them next Tuesday to discuss the possibilities of arranging a loan of $146,464 for the purchase of the machines.

Bill Is Enacted

The voting machine plan was assured when both the Senate and House voted almost unanimous approval Monday night to an amendment offered by Senator Robert B. Kimble to a House bill.

This bill, introduced by Del. Derr (R-Frederick) and co-sponsored by Del. Fred B. Driscoll of Allegany County, provided that voting machines would be mandatory throughout the state by the 1958 elections.

Senator Kimble amended the bill to advance the effective date to 1956 and won 24-1 approval in the Senate.

The amended bill was enacted when the House concurred with Kimble's amendment.

Del. Driscoll reported last night there was virtually no opposition in the House.

The Allegany County Delegation had earlier killed a bill introduced by Senator Kimble to make the use of voting machines mandatory here in 1956.

Study Financing

Representatives of the Automatic Voting Machine Corporation of Jamestown, N. Y., will also be here to explain the device and answer any questions which might be asked. William A. Wilson, presi-

Centre Street Plans Service On Good Friday

Seven local clergymen will preach during the Good Friday Community Service at Centre Street Methodist Church from noon until 3 p. m., according to Rev. Howard M. Amoss, pastor.

Centre Street Methodist Church also will conduct its annual Communion service at 7:30 p. m. Holy Thursday as an anniversary of Jesus' last earthly night. The sanctuary choir will provide the musical leadership.

The seven sermons on the last words of Christ from the cross will be preached by Rev. Harold L. May, assistant pastor of Centre Street Church; Rev. Carl Johnson Jr., pastor of First Christian Church; Rev. Maurice Robertson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church; Rev. John Bayley Jones, pastor of the Frostburg First Methodist Church; Dr. Crates S. Johnson, Rev. W. W. Patterson, pastor of LaVale Methodist Church, and Rev. Edgar W. Hammersla, pastor of Central Methodist Church.

Appropriate music will precede each of the sermons. Miss Josephine Kompanek, soprano, will sing "Oh All Ye That Travel," before the first word. Rudulph Kompanek, tenor, and W. Cletus Hartsock, baritone, will sing a duet, "So Thou Liftest Thy Divine Petition."

As an anthem after the third word, the choir, with Miss Kompanek, Hartsock and James Hager as soloists, will sing "Woman, Behold Thy Son." As a solo Hartsock later will sing "God, My Father, Why Hast Thou Forsaken Me?"

Charles I. Sager, baritone and choir director, will sing "Before The Cross" preceding the sermon on the sixth word. As closing anthems the choir will sing "It Is Finished" and "Father Into Thy Hands I Commend My Spirit."

Mrs. Kenneth F. Beck is the organist.

Children Tamper With Ropes Used By Paint Crew

City officials yesterday warned children using the Valley Street Bridge that the span will be barricaded if ropes used by painting crews are tampered with.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said the paint crew yesterday lost 10 gallons of red lead paint after children loosened knots holding paint buckets.

Officials said the loosened ropes just happened to be the ones used to lower paint, and that if another rope had been tampered with, men working on a scaffold under the span might have been toppled off into Wills Creek some 30 feet below.

Commissioner Buchholtz said the action was "not a prank" since it affected the safety of men working under the span.

The American Bridge Company, which erected the superstructure of the span, is painting the steel bridge across Wills Creek.

Officials warned that children will have to take a great many additional steps if it is necessary to barricade the bridge for the protection of the workmen.

Annual Fire School Opens On April 30

Will Be Conducted In Frostburg Hall

The annual fire school for volunteers of the Allegany-Garrett County Firemen's Association will be conducted April 30 and May 1 at the Fire Hall in Frostburg.

David E. Kirk, association president, yesterday said outdoor drills will probably be held at the ball park in that community.

The school will be sponsored by the association and conducted by personnel of the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland headed by Robert C. Byrus.

Chairman of this year's annual school will be Jesse Jacobs of the Frostburg Fire Department. Assisting him are Harry DeHaven, chief of Baltimore Pike; Homer Ambrose, McCoole fire chief; Harry Hackett, of the Potomac Fire Company, Westernport and George Comp, chief at Deer Park.

Arrangements for the school were completed during a meeting Sunday at McCoole. Representatives are expected from the 30 volunteer companies which belong to the two-county association.

Kirk said the school will include the latest in fire fighting techniques and the use of modern equipment.

Owner Notified Firemen Won't Enter Building

The Mayor and Council yesterday instructed City Attorney Thomas B. Finan to notify the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company that the Fire Department will not let its men go into the company's building at 130 Wineow Street in case of fire.

The establishment was discussed by city officials yesterday afternoon during routine approval of a list of licenses to be issued for various city businesses.

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said an order has been posted on the Fire Department bulletin board that no fireman is to go into the building.

Finance Commissioner John J. Long asked if Feldstein had been notified of the order.

Fireman have notified him of the fact, Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said, adding it "would be suicide for a man to go in."

Fire Chief V. A. Parker said the order was issued after an inspection by him and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum.

He said the order reflected the weight on the second floor and the contents and condition of the building.

Chief Parker said men will not go into the building, except in the case of a minor blaze, and that if a fire involved the second floor the department would have to concentrate on the surrounding property.

The building, he added, would not stand the weight if a fire were extensive.

$2,400,000 Bond Issue Sold To Baltimore Firm

City Will Pay 2.52 Per Cent Interest

The City of Cumberland yesterday awarded a $2,400,000 bond issue to the Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore.

The action was taken when the Mayor and Council, at a special meeting held at 3 p. m., accepted the bid of the Baltimore firm for the issue which includes $2,000,000 of Cumberland Sewage Disposal Plant bonds, and $400,000 of Flood Protection bonds of 1949.

The bid, the lowest of eight, called for an average interest rate of 2.522 per cent interest.

Is Termed Favorable

Finance Commissioner John J. Long said the bid was excellent in view of the present bond market.

He termed the bid "a favorable outcome" for the city and evidence that Cumberland's credit is good in the investment field.

Eight investment firms entered bids yesterday morning on the bond issue to finance the sewage treatment plant and flood control.

But tabulation of the bids continued past the noon hour forcing a recess of the Mayor and Council until 3 p. m. City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson was absent because of illness and Joseph M. Naughton, president of Second National Bank, and H. Warren Buckler, of Niles, Morrow, Yost and Dankmeyer, Baltimore bond attorneys for the city, took over the tabulation job.

Bidding besides Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company were Alex Brown and Son, Baltimore; Union Securities Corporation, Harriman-Ripley and Company, Lehman Brothers, Phelps-Fenn and Company, Halsey-Stuart and Company, Inc., and Drexel and Company, all of New York City.

Bids Go To 2.65

Interest rates on the largest single issue sold in the city's history ranged from 2.522 to 2.6596 per cent.

Last week, Gibson said general municipal obligation bonds were selling at about 2.42 per cent.

The bids were higher than on three issues sold last year including a $350,000 Urban Development and $150,000 Recreation issue which brought 2.25 per cent. A $150,000 Water Department issue payable first from water revenues and then from general taxation if water revenues are insufficient, was sold for 1.34 per cent.

Sewage disposal bonds will have the same status as water bonds since interest and principal will be paid from charges set by the city from sewage service, but carry the full faith and credit of the city which must levy ad valorem taxes to pay bond issues in event revenues prove insufficient in any one year.

Good Friday Service Set

The Words from the Cross will be given in a service of worship Friday at First Methodist Church, sponsored by the Tri-State Christian Fundamental Ministerium of Cumberland, Inc.

Rev. William J. Elliott, minister, last night said the service will begin at noon and will last until 3 p. m. Following the prelude, call to worship, invocation and Collect for the day, Rev. Abner G. Miller, pastor of the Mennonite Church, will speak on the "Word on Intercession."

Following a prayer and meditation by Rev. Cornelius B. Davis, pastor of Second Baptist Church, Rev. Roscoe Hall, of Calvary Methodist Church, Ridgeley, will speak on the "Word of Pardon."

Rev. J. P. Sheesley, of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church will then give the meditation which will be followed by the "Word of Human Care" with Rev. Sheesley saying the prayer and Rev. Hall the meditation.

The "Word of Loneliness," will be by Rev. Clarence A. Stogsdill, Brethren B.Y.C. Director with the meditation by Rev. L. O. McCartneysmith, First Brethren Church.

Rev. McCartneysmith also will have the "Word of Human Need," with Rev. Stogsdill in charge of the meditation. The "Word of Victory" prayer will be by Rev. Donald A. Vosseler, of the English Baptist Church, Frostburg, and Rev. Brooks N. Henry, First Baptist Church, Eckhart, will give the meditation.

The final word, the "Word of Cimmitment," will be the prayer said by Rev. Henry and the meditation by Rev. Vosseler. The service will be concluded by the benediction and postlude.

Today and tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. a special service will be held at the church with Communion at the Thursday evening service.

Valley Street Bridge To Be Blacktopped

The Valley Street Bridge will be closed Thursday to allow the contractor to apply a blacktop wearing course, according to Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

He said traffic will be stopped beginning at 7 a. m. and kept off the blacktop for 24 hours so the surface will have time to set.

The work will be done by the S. T. Brotemarkle Company, which is expected to complete work on the span during the next few weeks.

Buchholtz said remaining work includes some painting, the installation of lights, landscaping and a final cleanup.
